Thin Defense Line Of 80,000 Thrown Up 100 Miles From Shaken Nanking

Nanking, Dec. 1 (AP).—With 350,000 government troops trapped on the Suchow front, a thin new defense line was thrown up today only 100 miles from shaken Nanking.

The capital seemed to have scant faith in the new line, manned by only 80,000 soldiers. Officials packed. Archives were boxed. Diplomats expected official word within 24 hours that the city is no longer safe.

(Chinese official sources in Shanghai said an "auxiliary" capital will be set up at Canton, on the south China coast. They denied, however, that Nanking is being abandoned by the government.)

The new defense line is being dug along the south bank of the Hwai River. It will be anchored on Pengpu, about 105 miles up the railway from Nanking.

Reports from the front said the bulk of 80,000 men in the Sixth and Eighth Army Groups man the line. Most of them are recruits, or remnants of veteran armies of the lost Manchurian campaign.

Neutral military observers reported that 100,000 Communist veterans of Gen. Chen Yi's east China armies are sweeping south, hoping to encircle and destroy the two army groups before they can fortify the river line.

Meager reports shroud the fate of the 350,000 first-line troops caught in the Communist net south of Suchow, 211 miles northwest of Nanking.

The 250,000-man garrison of Suchow has been stalled 25 miles south of the city in an attempt to fight free and rejoin the battle to save Nanking.

The Communists were believed to have numerical superiority on this front, and had three fresh columns—possibly 45,000 men—ready to throw in if needed.

About 40 miles farther south, superior Communist forces had a tight ring around the Twelfth Army Group of 100,000 men.

Hollington Tong, director of information, denied that the government was planning to quit Nanking.

(Rioting was reported in Communist-blockaded Suchow today and the joint United States military advisory group ordered the evacuation of all its planes and equipment from Nanking, the United Press said.)

Mme. Chiang to Rest Before Making Appeal

Mme. Chiang arrived in Washington yesterday and will rest two or three days before making appeal for aid to China.

Miles Vaughn, United Press correspondent, is told by Generalissimo Chiang that there is yet time for United States aid to save "all Asia" from communism. Stories on Page 3.

Chinese Envoy Appeals For Quick U. S. Help

New York, Dec. 1 (AP).—Chinese Ambassador Wellington Koo appealed today for quick American aid to China, and said the Chinese government is ready to accept "corruption proof" American control of expenditures.

In an address for the China Institute, Koo declared that "if China falls behind the Iron Curtain, Asia will lose her freedom, too," and "the burden and responsibility of this country as the leader of freedom's crusade will increase a hundredfold."

"As the grave situation stands today, time is of the essence," he said. "It may be a little late, but it is not too late yet."

The envoy came here after conferring in Washington with Madame Chiang Kai-shek, wife of China's President.

With an obvious reference to Soviet Russia, Koo declared the Communist forces that are advancing on Nanking "are aided and abetted, however clandestinely, by a mighty external power."

Crusade in Europe

XXVI

By Dwight D. Eisenhower

Under the terms of the surrender document the heads of the German armed services were required to appear in Berlin on May 9 to sign a ratification in the Russian headquarters. The second ceremony was, as we understood it, to symbolize the unity of the Western Allies and the Soviets, to give notice to the Germans and to the world that the surrender was made to all, not merely to the Western Allies. For this reason we were directed to withhold news of the first signing until the second could be accomplished.

In order that American and British newsmen could have the full story of the Reims surrender, we invited a number to be present at the ceremony. In accepting the invitation they agreed to withhold publication until the story could be officially given out under the agreements among the Allies.

One American reporter published the story before the release hour, which infuriated other newsmen who kept faith. The incident created a considerable furor, but in the outcome no real harm was done, except to other publications.

The Western Allies were invited and expected to participate in the signing at Berlin, but I felt it inappropriate for me personally to go. The Germans had already appeared in the Allied Headquarters to accomplish their unconditional surrender and I thought the ratification in Berlin should be a Soviet affair. Consequently I designated my deputy, Air Chief Marshall Tedder, to represent me at that ceremony.

Moscow Film Failed To Mention Reims

Some months later I saw in Moscow a movie film portraying the highlights of the Berlin ceremony. No mention was made in the film of the prior surrender at Reims.

We had no local victory celebrations of any kind, then or later. When Jodl signed we merely went to bed for some much-needed rest, to get up the next day and tackle the multitude of tasks that followed upon the cessation of hostilities.

Thereafter, however, all our work was done in the satisfying knowledge that the carnage of Europe had ended. Our problems were difficult but we were spared casualty lists.

The most intricate and pressing of our immediate problems was redeployment. On the day of the surrender there were, in the great Allied Force, more than three million Americans under my command. This force included 61 United States divisions, all except one of which had participated in actual battle.

Men with the longest battle service were to be assigned to occupation duty or sent home; others were to go on to the Pacific. Many of our divisions were veterans of 11 months' continuous fighting, while some, among them the First, Third, Ninth, Thirty-sixth and Forty-fifth Infantry Divisions and the Eighty-second Airborne, and Second Armored Divisions, had entered the war in the Mediterranean campaign. The older ones had fought with only brief interruptions for two and a half years. The Thirty-fourth Infantry and First Armored Divisions, still in the Mediterranean theater, had done likewise.

Adjustment Required Wholesale Transfers

To make necessary adjustments required wholesale transfers from many of the veteran divisions and the filling up of vacancies by men with shorter battle service. At the same time we had to be extremely careful to preserve the efficiency of units; to have sent to the Pacific whole divisions of near recruits would have been senseless.

Our administrative machine in Europe had to be thrown into reverse. Bases, fields, depots, ports, roads and railways were geared up to push men and supply forward into the heart of Germany. They had, figuratively, to face about and begin operating in the other direction.

Supplies and munitions were scattered throughout western Europe and through much of Italy and northern Africa. These had to be collected, inventoried, packaged and shipped. Speed was the primary consideration.

So vast and urgent was this single undertaking that we set up a special headquarters with no other responsibility than to guide, supervise and expedite the movement.

Red 'Tinge' Seen in Raid On 2 Plants

Michigan Hunting Auto Caravan of 300 in Attack on Struck Factories

Kalamazoo, Mich., Dec. 1 (AP).—A band of 300 raiders invaded two struck factories early today, overturned and burned vehicles, beat up workmen and smashed equipment.

Michigan's top-ranking police officer said the speed and precision with which the military-style foray was carried out hinted of "a possible Communist tinge."

After a flying trip to the scene with Gov. Kim Sigler, State Police Commissioner Donald S. Leonard told newsmen the possible Communist angle would not be overlooked in a widespread investigation.

Law enforcement agencies in Michigan and neighboring States threw all their resources into the hunt for members of the auto-borne raiding party which struck and disappeared shortly after dawn.

Governor Sigler, other State officials and Kalamazoo Police Chief Howard Hoyt blamed "union goons" for the sudden, forceful assault. Sigler demanded an immediate grand jury investigation of the invasion.

Organized Destruction

The raiders hurled bricks through windows, smashed parked cars, set a milk truck afire and swarmed into the factories to wreck equipment.

Then, with commando-like precision, they reformed a 40-car motor caravan, and escaped from the city in the early dawn.

Seven persons, including a police sergeant struck by a brick, were injured. None was reported seriously hurt, however.

Governor Sigler came from Lansing at noon for a conference with Kalamazoo officials. He brought his State police commissioner, Donald S. Leonard.

Kalamazoo's outmanned police force of 75 officers had issued an urgent appeal for State aid when the raiders drove into town about 6:30 a. m. (EST). The request was withdrawn when the invaders departed in less than an hour.

State police observers remained on the scene and Governor Sigler made it plain that help would be available if needed.

"We don't want any recurrence of this situation and we want to take steps to see that none occurs," the Governor said.

Union Comment Lacking

The USW-CIO did not comment directly on the invasion. Glenn E. Sigman, in charge of the strike, accused the company of "importing outside strikebreakers."

He did not indicate whether the raid was in retaliation for the alleged strikebreaking maneuver.

As quickly as the raid began, it ended. The men hustled back to their cars and roared away before police could make arrests.

Plant officials did not try to estimate damage immediately.

The strike began in a dispute over contract changes, with wages not an issue. About 700 persons were employed at the two plants, but the company claimed that 500 have returned to work.

Companies include the Shakespeare Products Co. and the Shakespeare Co., which produce fishing tackle and auto parts.

Union demands include requests for revision of seniority clauses and those governing probationary periods for new employes.

Outstanding Heroes Included

Truman Approves Promotion Of 24 to Rear Admiral Rank

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Twenty-four captains, including several outstanding heroes of the war, were listed yesterday for promotion to rear admiral.

President Truman approved the report of a naval selection board headed by Admiral DeWitt C. Ramsey recommending them for advancement.

Among those promoted were:

Capt. Thomas H. Binford, 52-year-old Mississippian who won the Navy Cross for whipping a superior Japanese force at Badoeng Straits in 1942. His little group of destroyers sank a number of Jap ships in a night attack and got away with only one casualty among the crews of his ships. He's now chief of staff of the Hawaiian Sea Frontier.

Capt. Milton E. Miles, leader of the American Navy "underground" in Japan-occupied China during the war. He narrowly escaped death four times while directing espionage, weather reporting and other work in China. The 48-year Arizonan, whose home is at 111 Shadow rd, Chevy Chase, Md., now is chief of staff to the Atlantic Fleet service force commander.

Navy officials said the senior 12 of the 20 seagoing line officers selected will be promoted as soon as they can qualify. The senior of the four engineering specialists also has a vacancy waiting for him. The others will replace admirals who retire or die during the coming year.

Classmates of those picked below the zone are not considered "passed over" and will be consid-

Berlin Reds Bar Mayor From Office In City Hall

Attack on Rally In West Sector May Be Start of Planned Rowdyism

Berlin, Dec. 1.—(NYHT).—The legally elected city assembly of Berlin held an extraordinary sitting today, after east sector police had denied its mayor entrance to his office in city hall. The assembly proclaimed a state of emergency in the city of Berlin.

The state of emergency may be in the offing, but today the calm of Berlin was broken only by a few election incidents. West sector police reported that Communists had attempted to break up a west sector political meeting but that after some rowdyism the disturbance was brought under control. The Soviet-licensed news agency added to this an account of a street parade of Communists in the American sector, also broken up by the police.

It may well be that this is the start of organized rowdyism and disturbances in the west sectors. But so far the incidents have been minor and nothing more than might be expected in Berlin with the election only four days away.

Mayor Barred From Office

The Soviet sector, having established its Communist rump government yesterday, is taking the position the new government is the legal government and the Soviets will wait until someone denies it by an act. The Western Allies maintain the legal status of the elected government remains unchanged.

Thus, the Allies are maintaining their liaison officers in city hall, deep in the Soviet sector, even though the legal Berlin city government is denied access to the building. Col. Frank L. Howley, military commandant of the American sector, asserts that the Russians have not yet officially notified him that they recognize the rump government.

This morning, when Mayor Ferdinand Friedenburg made a token attempt to enter his offices in the city hall, East sector police turned him back verbally. He made an effort to enter. They gently turned him back physically. He then announced that neither he nor any of his colleagues in the legal government were to be permitted to enter, and left the scene.

Western Berliners who wished to see the liaison officers were escorted to their presence by armed guards. Otherwise the building was strictly verboten for the West.

City Assembly Meets

The city assembly meeting today was held in the British sector and was presided over by the assembly president, Otto Suhr.

In another part of Berlin today, the Economic Commission of the Russian zone, a sort of legislative assembly, declared itself in favor of helping the city of Berlin.

This will take the form of including Berlin in the Russian zone, and putting it under the economic rule of the commission.

Western Powers Hint Of Counter Action

Britain, France and the United States tell the neutrals working for a Berlin settlement that the three Western powers are free to counter Soviet measures in Berlin. Story on Page 2.

Woman Found Strangled, Man Dead by Shot

'Couldn't Go On,' Says Note; Ruling Is Murder, Suicide

A 44-year-old District automobile salesman who wrote he "couldn't go on this way" strangled a 37-year-old married woman, then tried four times to shoot himself before he succeeded.

Near the bodies, found early yesterday nearly 36 hours after police believe the killings took place, were two notes, in one of which the man told of his love for the woman, and in the other pleaded "God help us."

The bodies were discovered in the woman's apartment at 1909 B st. ne. She was Mrs. Fern V. Hardin, twice married and separated from her second husband, William A. Hardin, when he enlisted in the Army six months ago. She was employed by the National Radio Institute.

The man was Archie M. Archer, 2815 6th st. ne., who for two years has been employed as a service salesman at the Alber Oldsmobile Co., 1630 14th st. nw.

In announcing a verdict of murder and suicide in the deaths yesterday, Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald discounted the theory that the pair had a suicide pact.

He said marks on Mrs. Hardin's neck indicated Archer had strangled her.

"In view of the fact that she was strangled and he was shot," explained Dr. MacDonald, "I do not believe it was a suicide pact." He said no inquest would be held.

The bodies were found by two policemen from the Ninth Precinct, who were summoned at the request of Richard F. Larson, 4613 Hanna pl. se., who told police he was a friend of Mrs. Hardin's.

He said he had talked to her about 9:30 Monday night from New York City. He said he had tried to call her again early Tuesday, and when he failed to reach her, had asked the operator to check her phone every hour.

Returning to Washington early yesterday, he again tried unsuccessfully to telephone Mrs. Hardin.

Government, Press Mourn Noyes Death

The passing of a pioneer newspaperman, Frank Brett Noyes of the Evening Star, was mourned yesterday by officials of the Government and the newspaper world.

President Truman sent a letter of sympathy to the Noyes family. Cabinet members, Supreme Court Justices, members of Congress, noted newspaper publishers—all joined in paying tribute to Mr. Noyes.

With his death yesterday at 1:40 a. m. at his home here, Frank Noyes wrote "30" to a career of journalism that spanned more than 60 years.

During that career he became first president of the modern-day Associated Press in 1900, a post he held continuously until 1938.

He was president of the Evening Star Newspaper Co. from 1910 until last February, when he chose to step aside because of advancing age. At that time he accepted the chairmanship of the board of directors of the Evening Star.

Frank Noyes was the last survivor of the three sons of Crosby Stuart Noyes.

Crosby Noyes joined the Evening Star in 1855, three years after its birth, and became its guiding genius. When he died in 1908, he passed the destiny of the newspaper into the hands of his sons.

Frank Noyes was primarily interested in the business side of the Evening Star. Under his leadership, the newspaper's circulation and revenue soared.

Moon Use as Reflector For Television Planned

Belmar, N. J., Dec. 1 (AP).—Scientists are planning to use the moon as a reflector for transoceanic telephone and television signals, S. Davis Page, New Jersey Bell Telephone Co. researcher, said today.

In the very near future, he said, the first experiment will be made in the hope that the signals will be reflected back to the earth and picked up in Europe.

Three years ago at nearby Wall Township, the Army Signal Corps made the first successful experiment in bouncing radar off the moon.

Board Warned School Need Is Desperate

Some Fire Escapes 'Travesty,' Says Author Of Construction Plan

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

Dr. George D. Strayer declared yesterday that the safety, health and education of a number of District school children are endangered by inadequate school buildings.

The author of the $37,901,816 program for new school construction told the Board of Education he would not want to be responsible for the safety of children in some buildings.

"Just because you never have had a serious fire does not mean you will never have one," Strayer said.

The New York educator, who is conducting a survey of school needs under congressional authorization, expressed confidence that Congress will back his recommendation by approving an interest-free loan to finance the program.

"There comes a time when an accumulation of requests carries conviction," Dr. Strayer said.

He cited previous recommendations, nearly paralleling his own, made by the Board of Education, the Commissioners and the Board of Trade's education committee.

The educator answered charges made earlier this week by District Budget Officer Walter Fowler that the survey overestimates school populations anticipated within the next several years.

Without making mention of Fowler, Strayer said the survey

Council Gets 5-Year Program

School Building Needs Put At $139 Million in Maryland

Baltimore, Dec. 1 (AP).—A new five-year, $139,800,000 school building program for the State was laid before Maryland's Legislative Council today.

Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, jr., State superintendent of schools, sponsored it.

He told the Legislature's interim committee that thousands of pupils will have to be placed on part-time school schedules in the next few years if the expanded facilities are not provided.

His $139,800,000 program is in addition to the big building expansion now in progress.

Under the current program, he said, $54,928,077 worth of new buildings have been put up since 1945, are now under way, or are to be started within six months.

Counties that face the most acute problems because of increased enrollments, and the cost of the new buildings they need, were listed by Dr. Pullen as: Montgomery, 20 million dollars; Prince Georges, 20 million dollars; Anne Arundel, five million dollars; Harford, four million dollars, and Baltimore 16 million dollars.

He said the bonding power of these counties is now taxed almost to maximum and nothing short of State aid or Federal grants will solve the problem.

"How far the State can go in this matter," Pullen declared, "and just what kind of program is advisable, is debatable.

"It must be realized that unless something is done thousands of children each year will be placed on part-time schedules in school."

Pullen reported the tremendous increase in the birth rate the past few years has boosted elementary school enrollments by 31,000 since 1945 and he expects an annual increase of about 23,000 the next several years.

This also brings about the problem of educating more teachers to run the classrooms, he pointed out.

To meet it, Pullen said, the State needs $8,500,000 worth of new buildings at its four teachers' colleges, and another three million

D. C. Area School Needs Placed at 115 Million

The Greater Washington area needs 115 million dollars for school construction to bring its public school systems up to snuff. Estimated needs, disclosed in the past week: District, 38 million; Prince Georges County, 20 million; Montgomery County, 20 million; Arlington County, 12 million; Alexandria, 6 million; Fairfax County, 19 million.

Total Virginia needs are listed as 396 million with Maryland requiring nearly 140 millions. Related stories on Page 7.

Embassy Aide Assailed

High Chilean Official Charges Argentina Inspired Coups

(From Press Dispatches)

Santiago, Chile, Dec. 1.—A charge that Argentina has inspired recent military coups in Latin American countries was made here today by a Chilean official.

The official, army prosecutor Jose Nogues, asked and obtained government action to declare Argentine Embassy secretary Luis Zervino persona non grata on charges Zervino was involved in a recent abortive military coup here.

Nogues said proved facts and sworn testimony had led him to the conviction "that the subversive movement designed to overthrow the government and to replace it by one headed by former President Carlos Ibanez was inspired from Argentina and intimately synchronized with similar movements in other Latin American countries."

Nogues said Argentine Consul General Roberto Tixi Massa was also involved in the plot.

Nogues' charges were made in his formal summation of the case against Ibanez, former Air Force Chief Col. Ramon Vergara Montero and 30 others being tried for conspiracy to overthrow the government.

Democratic Countries Urged to Heed Warning

Bogota, Colombia, Dec. 1 (U.P.)—El Tiempo, Colombia's leading newspaper, urged all American democratic countries today to heed the warning implied in the charge of Chilean Army Prosecutor Jose Nogues that recent military coups in Latin America are part of a concerted plan inspired from Argentina.

Tiempo linked the recent barracks coup in Venezuela with that in Peru and said both were patterned after the Argentina military revolution of June, 1943.

Guatemala Arrests 26 In Alleged Plot

Guatemala, Guatemala, Dec. 1 (AP).—The arrest of 26 persons in connection with an alleged plot to seize the military base at Puerto Barrios was disclosed here tonight.

President Abolishes Costa Rican Army

San Jose, Costa Rica, Dec. 1 (AP).—The Costa Rican Army was abolished today.

Jose Figueres, president of the revolutionary government, took the action and said the tiny Central American country will have only a national police force. (It now numbers about 1000 men.) He said Costa Rica loves peace and there is no need for keeping a standing army, although a call to arms will be made if danger threatens.

He handed over army headquarters to the education ministry for a museum.

Figueres said army officers have offered themselves for any other government service and have pledged cooperation.

Chicago Scientist Predicts A-Bomb Poisoning Remedy

Chicago, Dec. 1 (U.P.).—A University of Chicago scientist tonight predicted the world eventually will have a protective remedy from radiation poisoning due to atomic bomb blasts.

Dr. Robert D. Boche spoke on the eve of the sixth anniversary of the atomic age.

Basing his prediction on recent research in radiation, he said the antidote may come "in our lifetime." He said it might even be a pill.

Six years ago Thursday a group of scientists, including famed Italian Physicist Enrico Fermi, huddled in a concrete squash court under the university's athletic stadium.

They watched a "pile" of bricks and rods hum into action. The first self-sustaining nuclear chain reaction was born.

From this test came the atomic bomb and a new era in history.

Electrode Hitched To Nerve May Replace Iron Lung

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 1 (AP).—The time may not be far distant when patients with paralyzed lungs will be plugged into an electric socket for treatment.

Doctors at the Harvard School of Public Health have built a gadget called an "electrophrenic respirator" which is expected to supplement or even replace the famed iron lung that has been used for 20 years.

The small machine is plugged into a wall socket and wires are attached to the phrenic nerve in the patient's neck. When the voltage is raised and lowered, the nerve acts to contract and expand the diaphragm making the lungs operate and the patient breathe.

Dr. Stanley J. Sarnoff, the inventor, says he got the idea watching an operation—the patient's diaphragm contracted when the surgeon accidentally pinched the phrenic nerve.

Acting as a human guinea pig, he had a copper electrode injected into the back of his neck and it worked.

Negotiations Under Way

Alexandria Theater May Offer Stage Shows From Broadway

Negotiations are under way to bring legitimate Broadway shows to the Greater Washington area, it was announced yesterday.

Reports that negotiations were in progress with a New York booking agency for the productions to be shown at the Virginia Theater, Alexandria, were verified by Valentine Smith, manager of the theater.

Smith said a contract, calling for a 17-week tryout run early next year, is expected to be signed in the next 30 days.

Under the terms discussed, the theater would be leased to the agency which would produce the shows, it was said.

Successful conclusion of the contract will bring the first legitimate stage productions to Greater Washington since the closing of the National Theater as a legitimate showhouse last July.

The theater was closed by Marcus Heiman, president of the corporation operating the showhouse, after Actors Equity, performers union, banned the theater in protest against racial segregation policies.

While Virginia law decrees segregation in public places, Actors Equity was seen as unlikely to make an issue of it since it is a matter of law and not of custom, as in the National Theater dispute.

A spokesman for the performers' union in New York yesterday said that it was up to the union's council to decide the question, but, without "committing" the union, he pointed out the legal factor. He also charged that Equity had viewed the Washington situation more seriously since the segregation had taken place "in the Nation's Capital."

The Virginia Theater, situated at 1st and St. Asaph sts., seats 1133. It was opened in May, 1947.

The stage, 45 feet wide and 30 feet deep, lacks the depth necessary for elaborate musical revues but is sufficient for drama, Smith said.

While Britons Are Denied Facts

Russian Fifth Column Active In All Britain, Says Churchill

(From Press Dispatches)

London, Dec. 1.—Declaring that the Kremlin knows more about Britain's military resources than Britons do, Winston Churchill today accused the Labor government of playing politics with national defense.

The wartime Prime Minister asserted that a highly organized Soviet fifth column is active in all parts of Britain—"in our factories, in our trade unions and in our camps."

He warned that Britain's defenses were totally unprepared for any emergency and that its available military force today was less than one quarter of the 1914 British strength.

Churchill spoke during debate on a bill to extend the draft period from 9 to 18 months. It was passed on second reading, 338 to 51.

Churchill asserted the government's refusal to give out information on Britain's military strength was not fear of potential enemies, but fear its "mismanagement and incapacity" would be found out.

Churchill demanded to know what happened to large war stockpiles of weapons. He said Britons had as much right to the information as the Kremlin.

Churchill said the fundamental facts in the world situation have been unchanged for four years and the government knew it.

"Once the expansionist ambitions of Soviet Russia were apparent and once the armies of the democratic powers had been dispersed to their homes without any clear understanding being reached between East and West, it was certain that a period of grave anxiety lay before us," Churchill continued.

"The only outstanding facts in that world situation were the atomic bomb and the increasing willingness of the United States to help defend the liberties of

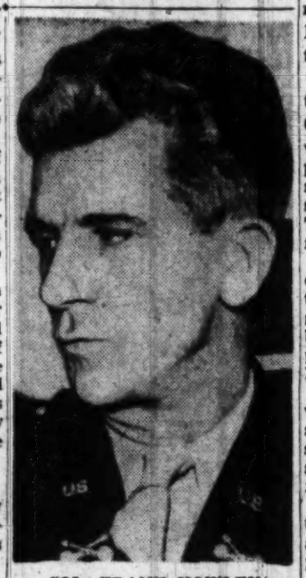
Col. F. L. Howley Has 'Taken It' for 3 Years—And 'Dished It Out'—As Berlin Commander

Col. Frank L. Howley, commandant of the American sector in Berlin, rides the crises in the blockaded German capital in the same way he rides his favorite chestnut mount in Gruenwald Forest. With aplomb.

Neither hot words nor cold war fazes the slender but wiry former Philadelphia advertising man. His continued presence in Berlin after three years of occupation are ample evidence of his ability to take it.

But he's no slouch himself when it comes to a few well chosen —and sometimes impetuous—hot words. When the occasion permits, he loves to ride the Russian almost as much as he loves to ride horses.

At a meeting of the Berlin Kommandatur — the four-power council which ran the city until the Russians withdrew in a huff —the Soviet representative, one General Kotikov, started to read aloud one of his customary blasts against the behavior of a few American occupation troops in the capital.



COL. FRANK HOWLEY
Our "CO" in Berlin

Figured He Could Read It

The American soldiers, Kotikov declared from a prepared statement, had been biting the necks of elderly women, and . . .

"We needn't waste time with the statement," interrupted Colonel Howley. "I'm sure it will all be printed in the morning press."

Irish-witted Howley kidded Kotikov, who, though apparently a pleasant person himself, was always accompanied to the Kommandatura meeting by a political commissar. It is rumored that Kotikov's charges, often highly ridiculous, were drawn up by the commissar and distributed to the newspapers before the general himself got to see the accusations.

Innately shrewd, Colonel Howley is said to be a student of public opinion. He can size up a situation, associates say, and counter Russian propaganda with an appropriate retort; often forceful, always to the point.

His attitude on the long-drawn Russian blockade of Berlin—aimed to force the Allies out—is simply stated: "If we want to hold up our heads in Europe, we have to stand firm."

Studied Art in Paris

Last September the Western world was thrilled by a spontaneous demonstration of courage by the people of Berlin. Some 300,000 anti-Communists gathered around the Reichstag and pledged themselves to hold out against the Red blockade.

Colonel Howley was there, too, coolly taking color pictures of the historic event, including the pulling down of the Red flag over the Brandenburg Gate. There are some who think that the eye-twinkling Howley may just possibly have had something to do with the spontaneity of the rally.

The ruddy-cheeked iron-gray-haired director of the American Military Government in Berlin was born in Hampton, N. J.; earned a BS degree at New York University; studied art and history in Paris; set up a thriving advertising business in Philadelphia.

A cavalry reservist, the 5-foot-9, 155-pound officer was called up in September 1940. He went overseas with a military government detachment in 1944, moved into Cherbourg, then Paris, and in July, 1945, into Berlin.

Distributes Airlifted Food

Among his other tasks, he currently supervises distribution of the food brought in by the airlift for all three western sectors. He's a getter-arounder, hops around to the trouble spots. For all of his impetuosity, Howley works smoothly with his top boss, General Clay.

For the past two years Colonel Howley's wife and four young children have been living with him in Berlin. Recently Mrs. Howley flew to the United States, and then was delayed flying back. During the brief period of her absence, the tough-acting, tough-talking commander had a rough time of it. To a friend here, Colonel Howley wrote:

"I'd rather handle a dozen protocols than the four battling Howley kids."

Lovett Says Allies Mean to Stay in Berlin

Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett made it clear yesterday that creation of a Communist "city government" would not shake the Western Allies' purpose to stay in Berlin.

"If the Soviets feel that this action of theirs alters our determination not to be driven out of Berlin by force, they are mistaken," he told a press conference.

Officials took a grave view of the Soviet decision to set up a Communist government in the Soviet sector of the city. One highly placed authority did not go quite so far as a military government spokesman in Berlin, who said on Tuesday that it virtually ended efforts to solve the Berlin crisis.

But this State Department officer did say that the task of settling the currency and dispute and getting the blockade lifted "has been made infinitely harder, and perhaps impossible" by what the Russians have just done.

In the official view here, the Soviet action is the climax of a long succession of Soviet acts of obstruction and intimidation, designed to make four-power administration of Berlin impossible.

The State Department regards the new Communist administration as wholly unrepresentative of the people of Berlin. The Soviet decision to set up such a "government," can hardly be accidental, it was said yesterday, in view of the efforts now being made by six neutral members of the U. N. Security Council to settle the currency controversy.

A Department spokesman recalled the seizure of the Berlin city council building by a Communist mob last September; he recalled, too, the intimidation that has accompanied elections in Soviet-controlled territory elsewhere in eastern Europe. What has happened in Berlin, he said, simply follows the habitual Soviet pattern.

Full Strength Planned For Third Division

Army officials yesterday said the Third Division based at Fort Bennings, Ga., will gradually be brought up to full strength of 15,000 men.

The division, now a paper outfit consisting only of headquarters and administrative people, was shifted to Fort Bennings recently.

Counter Steps Against Soviet Measures Are Hinted by West

Paris, Dec. 1 (AP).—The Western powers declared today they were not bound to submit to successive Soviet measures intensifying the Berlin crisis and were free to take their own countersteps.

The notice was given in a joint note to Juan Bramuglia, of Argentina, spokesman for the neutrals of the U. N. Security Council who only last night set up a committee of economic experts to propose a solution in 30 days. The note gave no clue as to what action might be taken.

At the same time a highly placed French source declared "something new" was needed if the Berlin case is to be solved by the Security Council neutrals.

The official pointed out that even if agreement should be reached now on a currency for Berlin and a lifting of the blockade, the division of the city would still exist. It would be necessary to heal that split to administer any four-power currency scheme, he pointed out.

American sources here said the three Western powers will shortly send an informal note to Bramuglia's financial committee recapitulating the events which have ruptured Berlin's administration.

Bramuglia's original draft of instructions to the six-nation financial committee told it to base its efforts on the agreement in principal which was reached in Moscow on August 30. This provided for a Soviet mark to be introduced in all Berlin under four-power control and for lifting the blockade. Negotiators never were able to agree, however, on details of four-power control of the currency.

Following receipt of the Western note, Bramuglia revised his instructions to permit the committee to take into account happenings after August 30.

Perhaps, significantly, Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, accepted the revised draft without dissent, French sources said.

The financial committee set up by Bramuglia scheduled its first working session tonight. The six neutrals—Argentina, China, Canada, Colombia, Syria and Belgium —are represented on it by economic experts, assisted by a financial technician appointed by Secretary General Trygve Lie.

Reds Active, Churchill Says

Western Europe. They are indeed tremendous facts and our salvation depends on them."

A stormy argument raged over dispatch of war-usable raw materials to Russia and the government admitted it had information indicating both Romanian and Bulgarian armed forces are over treaty strength while Hungarian forces are being expanded.

Maj. Tufton Beamish claimed the armed force of the Balkan countries are possibly three times as large as permitted.

Conservative war veteran Maj. Guy Lloyd asked whether the government is going to halt delivery of potential war goods to the Soviet Union.

Foreign Undersecretary Christopher Mayhew said the government's commercial relations with eastern Europe are "guided entirely by the balance of advantage to British interests."

Anthony Eden, citing the Allied note to Russia on Berlin, asked whether it is not incongruous to "deliver notes in such strong, almost unprecedented language, at the same time we are exporting valuable war material to Russia."

General U. N. Session on Veto Is Proposed

Paris, Dec. 1 (U.P.).—Argentina proposed tonight that the United Nations hold a general meeting at Lake Success, N. Y., next April to consider the problem of the veto.

Argentina Delegate Jose Arce made the proposal to a special U. N. political committee.

The Argentina idea is not to abolish the veto but to replace it with some other voting formula that would deprive Russia of its present right to block action in the Security Council.

In advance of its submission, New Zealand, Egypt and Cuba approved the resolution. The United States, Britain, France and China, which share the veto power with Russia, favor a resolution of their own asking a voluntary limitation by the big powers on their veto right.

Dmitri Manuilsky, Ukraine, charged before the committee that the United States broke faith with Russia a few months after the Yalta conference by secretly trying to eliminate the veto from the U. N. Charter.

Mme. Chiang Given Cool Welcome Here

China's First Lady, Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, arrived in Washington yesterday for what looked like a forlorn attempt to get more American help for her husband's government.

The pomp and ceremony of her wartime welcome to Washington in 1943 was missing this time. President Truman sent his Air Force aide, Col. Robert Landry, to greet Mme. Chiang; Secretary Marshall was away at Walter Reed Hospital for a physical checkup, and the State Department was represented by W. Walton Butterworth, head of the Office of Far Eastern Affairs.

But Mrs. Marshall was on hand for the airport courtesies, and a big delegation from the Chinese Embassy helped to make Mme. Chiang feel welcome.

Ambassador Wellington Koo and former Prime Minister H. H. Kung greeted the wife of China's generalissimo as she stepped from President Truman's former plane, the Sacred Cow. She looked fresh and smiling in spite of the tiring flight from San Francisco.

Mrs. Marshall asked her whether she wanted to speak to the reporters who clustered around the plan. "No, I do not," was the firm answer.

Later, on the lawn of the Marshalls' home at Leesburg, Va., Mme. Chiang posed for newsreel photographers and talked briefly into the cameras.

"I wish to express my appreciation," she said, "for the interest and sympathy shown to my country—China—by our American friends.

"As I have been flying continuously since Sunday morning, I still feel dizzy, even on terra firma. I know you will understand and give me a little time to recover my equilibrium.

"I am happy to be here in the historic and hospitable home of my good friends, General and Mrs. Marshall."

Once, while the newsreel cameras ground away, she reminded Mrs. Marshall, "This is my wedding anniversary"—the nineteenth."

"We must have a celebration," said Mrs. Marshall.

"It is enough of a celebration just being here," Mme. Chiang answered.

Mme. Chiang plans to stay in this country about two weeks, spending part of her time as guest in the Washington home of T. S. Shih, commercial attache of the Chinese Embassy, at 2800 Woodley rd.

For Greater Syria

Abdullah's Realm Grows —On Paper

Beirut, Lebanon, Dec. 1 (U.P.). Arab leaders met in Jericho today and proclaimed Abdullah "King of Transjordan and all Palestine." It was an attempt to merge, at least on paper, Arab Palestine with Transjordan.

Political sources interpreted the action as a major step forward in the 67-year-old Abdullah's life-long ambition to establish and rule over a "greater Syria," embracing Transjordan, Palestine, Syria and, perhaps, Lebanon.

The proclamation coincided with:

1. Collapse of Syrian Premier Jamal Mardam Bey's government in Damascus after he was unable to check a three-day general strike and violence protesting Syria's failure to take a strong Palestine stand.

Unofficial reports said three persons were killed and at least 57 injured in the Damascus riots. Troops restored order.

2. Declaration by Iraq's regent and heir apparent, Crown Prince Abdul-Ilah, that his government is determined to carry on the Palestine struggle with other Arab states. He spoke from the throne, opening Parliament.

Fight for Preliminary Approval of Israel Lost

Paris, Dec. 1 (AP).—Australia gave up tonight a hard fight to obtain preliminary United Nations approval of Israel's application for membership.

The U. N. Security Council will meet Thursday to consider the application. There was doubt among Council delegates that any decision would be reached.

Faris el Khouri of Syria told a reporter "there is no question" but that the six Arab nations—Egypt, Syria, Lebanon, Yemen, Saudi Arabia and Iraq—would "reconsider their membership" in the U. N. if Israel were admitted.

The Australian action took place in the 58-member political committee of the General Assembly after the United States, Canada, Britain and several others said the committee was not the place now to consider Israel's application.

Dean Rusk of the United States stressed that the United States strongly favors Israel's application, but pointed out the question will come up Thursday in the Security Council.

U. N. Observers Find Arms in Convoy

Tel Aviv, Israel, Dec. 1 (U.P.).—United Nations observers checking an Egyptian food convoy on its way from Gaza to El Faluja today said they found 190 striking pins and springs for machineguns and automatic rifles.

Israeli forces had given permission for the convoy to pass their lines to relieve 3000 Egyptian troops besieged at Faluja on condition no arms would be smuggled.

Clark Asked To Probe Visit Of Irgun Chief

The executive committee of the Washington Chapter of the American Council for Judaism yesterday asked Attorney General Tom Clark to investigate the presence in this country of Menachen Beigin, leader of Palestine's Irgun Zvai Leumi group.

The executive committee, in a statement released by its secretary and counsel, Alfred N. Lilienthal, also asked Clark "to look into the tax-free status of the political organization sponsoring the leader of the Palestine underground."

According to the council committee, many prominent Americans who were listed as among those who were to receive Beigin in New York, withdrew from the list and said they had not authorized use of their names.

The statement charged Beigin with responsibility for the bombing of the King David Hotel and the kidnaping and garroting of two British sergeants.

A State Department spokesman said Beigin had been issued a passport by the Israel government and had been granted a visa to this country as "a recognized political leader in Israel."

Baby's Life Saved . . .

The Washington Post

Diana Bryant, 17 months, who was worried about all the fuss over the walnut particle, clings to Ward Aide Ella Bullard

A minute piece of walnut, lodged since Thanksgiving dinner in the windpipe of 17-months-old Diana R. Bryant, has been removed in a delicate and life-saving operation performed by Captain Adrian J. Delaney at the Bethesda Naval Hospital, it was revealed yesterday.

The child, daughter of Chief Electrician's Mate and Mrs. Bruce F. Bryant of 4 Capstan Green sw., was rushed to the hospital Tuesday morning, virtually unable to breathe, and apparently suffering from acute bronchitis.

Within an hour after admission, the girl was in an oxygen tent, completely cured, and the walnut, described by Dr. Delaney as the size of only "one eighth of a half a peanut," was in the ashcan. During that hour, young Diana had undergone X-rays, fluroscopes, and a bronchostomy, where a narrow tube is inserted in the windpipe, and the foreign particle removed with the aid of a small light and thin forceps.

Despite the fact the child had eaten the walnut on Thanksgiving, she felt no pain until late Monday, Dr. Delaney said. He described the delayed reaction as "normal."

"Children of that age simply should not be fed nuts," he cautioned. "After every holiday, we have to risk a baby's life to remove nuts. Generally, peanuts are our biggest headache."

Chinese Think U. S. Adviser Can Save Nation From Reds

By Miles W. Vaughn

Nanking, Dec. 1 (U.P.).—Chinese leaders believe the plight of their nation is desperate, but that it is not too late to turn the tide against communism.

They think the appointment of an outstanding American military leader, such as Gen. Douglas MacArthur, as adviser to the nationalist armies, could save China.

These are the impressions received by this correspondent in a long conversation today with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Calm and poised although a major Communist force is only about 100 miles from Nanking and other smaller forces are nearer, Chiang made it clear this was not a formal interview, but a personal conversation granted me because of our long acquaintance.

He regretted, he said, he could not state his viewpoint for quotation. He said he considered it improper for him to appear to be carrying on at this time a publicity campaign to influence American or other opinion.

It was possible, however, to draw these conclusions:

1. Chinese leaders believe the present situation probably is the gravest this country has faced in modern times.

2. Nationalist leaders believe they can hold the area south of the Yangtze River indefinitely, but admit an immediate and urgent need for American munitions and other supplies.

3. China would welcome appointment of MacArthur or some other leading American military man as supreme military adviser and would give him the fullest cooperation. "The mere announcement that MacArthur had been appointed would turn the tide" against communism in China, one high source said.

4. The Chinese want to know quickly whether the United States will give them additional assistance. They are prepared to agree to almost any conditions.

5. The Chinese feel they are fighting to save all Asia, not China alone, from communism.

6. The highest Chinese leaders would welcome a "Marshall Plan for Asia" in which aid to China would be allotted as part of an over-all program for all Asiatic nations including Japan.

7. Chinese leaders feel one of the greatest dangers is "Communist-inspired" propaganda exaggerating alleged government reverses and claiming Communist victories.

British Sign Beef Contract

Montevideo, Uruguay, Dec. 1 (U.P.). Britain will pay 30 per cent more for Uruguayan beef under a contract signed today.

Greece, Yugoslavia Reported Nearing Border Agreement

Paris, Dec. 1 (AP).—A Greek official said today Greece and Yugoslavia are near agreement on a plan to keep peace along their borders.

He added, however, that final agreement depends on satisfactory settlement of Greece's quarrel with her other Balkan neighbors, Bulgaria and Albania.

The official credited United Nations-sponsored mediation efforts among the four Balkan countries for what he called a settlement of most border questions between Greece and Yugoslavia.

The agreement, he said, would provide cooperative control over border traffic and lessen the danger of armed conflict between the two countries.

The Greek official said both Greek and Yugoslav officials attending the U. N. General Assembly had reached a "stage of mutual understanding."

He said Yugoslavia feared a bilateral settlement with Greece might provoke new discord between Yugoslavia and her Communist neighbors, Bulgaria and Albania.

Yugoslavia favors instead a four-nation accord, the official explained, possibly to avoid further isolation from Cominform countries.

Virginia Yard May Build Biggest U. S. Liner

Bids were opened yesterday on a new super-liner which officials hope will outstrip Britain's Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary and give America its first "champ" since clipper ship days.

An award for building the 48,000 ton luxury liner will not be made for several weeks, but Maritime Commission officials indicated that construction would start early next year.

Low bidder was the Newport News Dry Dock & Shipbuilding Co., Newport News, Va. If that company gets the contract, as is expected, the 67-million-dollar craft—largest ocean liner ever built in the United States—will be laid down side by side with the Navy's new 65,000-ton aircraft carrier.

This company and Bethlehem Steel Co., Quincy, Mass., entered bids, opened yesterday by the commission, to build the new 980-foot passenger vessel. The Newport News shipyard bid $67,350,000 against $75,649,000 by Bethlehem.

The ship, as yet without a name, would fly the colors of the United States Lines and ply the North Atlantic sealanes between this country and Europe. The U. S. Lines also operates the America, currently the largest U. S. liner afloat, with passenger space for 1219 persons and a gross tonnage of 26,454.

The new vessel is designed to provide luxurious peacetime facilities for 2000 passengers. As a troop transport it could haul 12,000 men and equipment.

Defense officials have kept the designed speed of the new craft secret, but it is known that it will be faster than Britain's "queens" or other craft operating today.

Wagner Act Stirs Row at Labor Parley

By The Associated Press

A fight developed at the Labor Department's conference on State labor legislation yesterday over flat indorsement of the Wagner Act as the type of labor law to supplant the Taft-Hartley law.

The 143 representatives of State labor departments and union groups from 45 States and Territories unanimously favored repealing the Taft-Hartley Act.

But they weren't unanimous about returning to the Wagner Act as it existed on June 22, 1947, before the Taft-Hartley bill was enacted over President Truman's veto.

After an afternoon's debate, noisy at times, the delegates returned to committee a section of the report on industrial relations which seemed to favor restoring the Wagner Act.

Told to Rewrite Paragraph

The committee, headed by Frank Corsi, New York State Industrial Commissioner, was told to rewrite its Taft-Hartley paragraph by calling for new legislation which "guaranteed the right of free collective bargaining as granted by the Wagner Act."

Walter Mason, an AFL legislative representative, argued against a flat OK of the Wagner Act, which he said contained some features the federation did not like. This view collided with action taken by other AFL leaders at their Cincinnati convention, however, because they emphatically called for a restoration of the old labor law.

Nevertheless delegates from the States stood by Mason. The whole argument seemed to indicate that there will be a tough fight in Congress over the issue.

The Corsi committee also was instructed to frame a declaration calling for a provision in any new labor law giving the Federal statute priority over State acts.

Better Sometimes

Corsi himself was against that proposal, on the ground that New York State had legislation which sometimes was better for the workers than Federal laws.

The opposite view was taken by Robert C. Eckhardt of Dallas, Tex. He argued for Federal law to supersede any State law on labor matters affecting interstate commerce.

The Taft-Hartley Act provides that where there are more stringent regulations on union security in the States, the State law prevails. The Wagner Act, on the other hand, assumed absolute jurisdiction in interstate commerce.

The rest of the industrial relations report was adopted. It called for widespread training and labor-management cooperation courses, cooperation between Federal and State mediation services, reestablishment of a labor extension service in the Labor Department, and "equal treatment under Federal labor laws" in the territories and possessions of the United States.

Earlier the delegates had approved a report calling for a uniform standard for employment of child labor, and workmen's compensation.

Truman to See 'Mighty Mo' Get Silver Service

President Truman will journey to Norfolk, Va., Saturday to see his home State present a special silver service to the battleship Missouri.

The "Mighty Mo," on which the Japanese surrender was signed, will receive the service from Gov. Phil Donnelly of Missouri. He will present it to Capt. James Thach, ship's commander.

The President will leave here Friday at 10 p. m. aboard the yacht Williamsburg and arrive at Norfolk at 12:30 p. m. Saturday.

After the ceremony aboard the Missouri, Mr. Truman and his party will be guests of the ship's officers at a buffet lunch. The President will arrive back here at 10 a. m. Sunday.

He will be accompanied by Mrs. Truman and their daughter, Margaret; Secretary of Navy John L. Sullivan, Admiral William D. Leahy and others, including his naval aide, Capt. Robert L. Dennison, who commanded the Missouri before taking his present post.

AT&T Would Raise Rates $240 Million

New York, Dec. 1 (AP).—The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. disclosed today that its Bell System subsidiaries have applications pending for a total of 240 million dollars a year in new rate increases.

Rate increases already granted to Bell companies since the war, company officials said, now total 170 million dollars a year.

The pending applications, covering 29 States, include second and third round boosts in some States.

The rate boosts thus far approved by State and municipal regulatory commissions, A. T. & T. spokesmen said, represent about a 14-per cent increase. If pending applications should be granted, they said, the average would be 22 per cent.

Company officials called these increases modest in relation to their own higher costs and to price increases in general since the war. They added that of the 170 million dollars a year already granted, Bell companies would receive about 100 million dollars after taxes, and the same proportion would apply to future grants.

Since VJ-Day, Bell companies have installed nine million telephones and now have about 31 million in operation.

Bell companies still have a backlog of about 1,500,000 unfilled requests with others coming in at the rate of some 225,000 a month.

NLRB Gets New View on Mass Picketing

The National Labor Relations Board will have to decide for itself whether peaceful picketing by large numbers of strikers is legal, after getting conflicting views from two of its own trial examiners.

Examiner Charles W. Schneider ruled yesterday that the Taft-Hartley Act ban on mass picketing does not apply to picketing in "unusual numbers" as long as non-striking employes are free to come and go as they please.

Last October examiner Irving Rogosin held that even peaceful mass picketing is illegal because" . . . force of numbers alone . . . has an intimidatory and coercive effect upon employes otherwise willing to cross a picket line."

Must Define Mass Picketing

The five-man board now must decide just what constitutes "mass picketing" and whether it is legal. In a formal ruling on part of the issue, the board already has held that force on the picket line is illegal.

Schneider's ruling was made in a case involving the CIO United Electrical Workers and the Bucyrus-Erie Co., Evansville, Ind.

The electrical workers struck last July for higher wages, and threw a picket line around an addition being built on the plant by AFL construction workers. The AFL workers immediately quit.

Secondary Boycott Charged

The company accused the electrical workers of illegally conducting a secondary boycott against the Ryan Construction Co., which was building the addition, and illegally coercing Ryan's AFL workers with pickets.

Rejecting both charges, Schneider held that the AFL workers refused to cross the picket line of their own free will. And, he said, peaceful mass picketing is legal.

If his ruling is not contested within 20 days, charges against the CIO union are dissolved automatically. If his findings are challenged, the full labor board must review the case and make a final decision.

Associate School Head Is Retired

The Board of Education yesterday retired Associate Superintendent of Schools Jessie LaSalle and extended for a year the services of First Assistant Superintendent Garnet C. Wilkinson.

Miss LaSalle, a teacher and school supervisor for more than 35 years, has been in charge of educational research in the white divisions since the department was founded in 1923. Her retirement becomes effective at the end of the month.

Dr. Wilkinson, who will be 70 next month, has been in charge of Negro schools since 1921 and an employe of the schools system for 46 years.

In calling on the board to extend Dr. Wilkinson's services beyond the retirement age, Schools Supt. Hobart M. Corning said it is "with the understanding that additional extensions of time may be recommended in order that the board may continue to have the services of Dr. Wilkinson as long as he is willing to serve."

Corning said that the school system, "now in the midst of considerable reorganization, cannot spare Dr. Wilkinson."

The board also yesterday retired two teachers with long records of service. They are:

Mrs. Margaret L. Snoddy, Riverdaye, Md., teacher at Brent Elementary School, after 33 years.

Mrs. Mabel M. Davison, 3634 Windom pl. nw., teacher of atypical children at Edmonds Elementary School, after 30 years.

Va. Fund Jumps 18% Over 1947

Richmond, Va., Dec. 1 (AP).—Revenues of the general fund—the Commonwealth's lifeline for education, health and welfare services—rose by 18 per cent for the first four months of this fiscal year over the corresponding period of 1947.

A revenue statement released today by State Comptroller H. G. Gilmer showed that receipts of the general fund through October of the current fiscal year totaled $16,076,609, an increase of $2,592,287 over receipts of $13,484,322 paid into the fund for the first third of the last fiscal year.

Total revenues of the State increased by a relatively small percentage. Receipts for the July-October period this year were $82,923,642, as against $82,492,375 for the comparable period of 1947, a gain of $431,267.

While major revenue sources of the general fund gained in most cases, special funds were down in the case of payroll taxes received by the Unemployment Compensation Commission and for sales of alcoholic liquors by the State.

School Needs $139 Million dollars worth as soon thereafter as possible.

The State superintendent suggested one approach to the problem is increasing the so-called "incentive fund" authorized by the 1947 Legislature.

This helps to pay for the buildings and also stimulates the raising of funds by the local government subdivisions.

Another matter involving education was on the docket for the Legislative Council.

The Council Committee on Education was looked to for a report on its study of recommendations by the Marbury Commission on Higher Education in Maryland.

Montgomery School Need 9 Million for 2 Years

Of an estimated 20 million dollars needed for school construction in Montgomery County during the next five years, approximately 9 million will be needed within the next two, County School Board President H. Stanley Stine said yesterday.

Preliminary estimates based on new home and apartment construction in the county show next year's increased enrollment will be between 2600 and 3000, Stine said.

At present, school construction to accommodate the county's 21,000 pupils is being financed by a three-million-dollar school bond issue approved last summer by the county commissioners.

All of the money has been committed, he said, and more funds will be needed next year. The exact amount needed next year has not yet been determined, he reported.

Present commitments probably will not take care of additional classroom needs past September, 1949, he said.

Half of Prince Georges Fund Is Marked 'Urgent'

Slightly more than half of the 20 million dollars needed for school construction in Prince Georges County during the next five years is marked "urgent," County Superintendent of Schools G. Gardner Shugart said last night.

The "urgent" projects were estimated at $10,500,000.

They include, according to Shugart, Ager Road Elementary, Bladensburg Grammar, Bladensburg Senior High, District Heights Elementary, Suitland Senior High, Mount Rainier-Brentwood Elementary, a senior high on Colesville rd. near Hyattsville and Fairmont Heights High. Part of the work on the Fairmont Heights School has been started, the superintendent said.

Also included in the sum are funds for purchase of the Greenbelt High School and North End Elementary School at Greenbelt, and the Calvert Houses Elementary School.

Of the remainder of the 20 million dollars, five and one half million dollars will be needed by 1951 and the remainder by 1953, Shugart said.

School enrollment for the current year is 24,716,000, an increase of more than two million over last year, Shugart said. He expects annual increases that will account for 37 million pupils by 1953.

Robeson Listeners Hurt

Kingston, Jamaica, Dec. 1 (AP).—A grandstand collapsed here last night during a concert by Paul Robeson, American Negro singer, and 28 persons were injured. Robeson said the crowd of 8000 was "the biggest I ever sang to. He left Jamaica today for Canada.

Strayer Tells School Needs

does not recommend "over-building."

"Our estimates are the most conservative we could possibly make," he said.

"The need is desperate and I mean just that," Strayer said. He spoke for more than an hour on his report and answered questions put by board members.

He struck particularly hard at outdoor fire escapes on some schools, describing them as a "great travesty."

"There is not a ghost of a chance that children will crawl out windows and reach safety in a serious fire," Strayer said.

Large Slice For Fire Towers

A large slice of $1,282,500 that he recommends be spent to rehabilitate old schools would go for fire towers.

He reemphasized points brought out in his report that District schools are poorly lighted and overcrowded.

"Children can't live and work year after year without suffering consequences" in classrooms that measure five to six footcandles of light when the desirable intensity is 30, he said.

He described overcrowding as "astounding."

Standing to deliver his report, Dr. Strayer shook his finger at school board members and said:

"Too many children are being taught to be failures.

"You can't carry on a significant program of education when you pile up more than 30 or 40 and sometimes more than 50 children in a single classroom."

Called Particularly Poor

He singled out as particularly poor schools, the three Negro high schools, the white Hine Junior High School, the Negro Terrell and Shaw Junior High Schools, and the white Benning and the Negro Stevens Elementary Schools.

"No one in his right mind would consider that Cardozo should be inhabited by boys and girls of the high school level," Strayer said.

"'Terrible Terrell' ought not to be continued in use any longer than necessary and the only thing good about Shaw is the stone on the outside," he said.

Dr. Strayer, who has conducted more than 60 similar surveys in other cities, said the Benning and the old Bell Vocational Schools "stand out in my memory as the worst schools I have ever seen."

Stevens, rising four stories above the street, is "the greatest hazard in the city," he declared.

More Alarm Boxes Asked

Methods for calling the Fire Department in some schools are inadequate, Schools Supt. Hobart M. Corning yesterday told the Board of Education.

He recommended that fire alarm boxes be installed inside each school and that an additional box be placed outside immediately in front of each building.

Corning said that while a large number of outside street fire alarm boxes are located on the same block with the schools, there are instances where boxes are located from one to three blocks from the schools. In some cases it is necessary to cross heavily traveled streets to reach them, Corning said.

The board postponed action on his recommendation pending a report to be submitted by Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young.

In other matters involving school buildings, the board yesterday:

Accepted an addition to the Randall Junior High School on condition that new drains be installed to prevent flooding of the cafeteria floor during a heavy rain.

Told the Recreation Department it cannot tear down the old Birney School Building at completion of the new structure since the old building will be needed to take care of anticipated overcrowding.

Golfer, 78, Dies On Rock Creek Putting Green

A 78-year-old golfer died yesterday afternoon when putting on the green near the Rock Creek golf course club house.

He was Magnus T. Young, retired Government Printing Office employe, of 5119 28th ave., Hillcrest Gardens, Prince Georges County, Md.

The death was due to natural causes, Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, coroner, ruled. Young had been under treatment for a heart condition, Dr. MacDonald said.

Md. U. Control Recommended For Princess Anne College

Baltimore, Dec. 1 (AP).—The Legislative Council's education commitee recommended today that Princess Anne College remain under the administration of the University of Maryland.

At the same time, the committee took a rap at the way the college for Negroes, located on the Eastern Shore, has been run.

"We saw at Princess Anne evidence of the neglect mentioned in the Marbury report," the committee said in its review of the work of the Marbury Commission on Higher Education.

The Marbury Commission had recommended that Princess Anne be placed under Morgan State College as the land grant college for Negroes. The Legislative Council committee complimented Morgan State but said "for the time being Princess Anne should remain on its present site under the University of Maryland."

Some consideration should be given, the committee added, to transferring the Negro Land Grant College to Bowie and the Bowie Teachers College to Princess Anne. That move would put the Negro Land Grant College close enough to College Park for direct supervision by the university faculty.

The committee also blasted "efforts made to build up the student body at Princess Anne with enrollments solicited from outside the State."

Other recommendations of the committee were:

1. That Frostburg State Teachers College be maintained "to serve the western part of this State." The State should furnish all necessary facilities.

2. That St. Mary's Female Seminary be continued.

Federal Church Council Urges Early Action On Proposed Merger With National Group

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

Cincinnati, Ohio, Dec. 1.—A recommendation urging member denominations of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America to speed action on a proposed merger with the National Council of Churches of Christ in the USA, was adopted here today.

The action was taken at the biennial meeting of the Federal Council. The meeting has drawn about 450 representatives of 22 Protestant denominations and three Orthodox bodies.

The National Council proposes to merge eight in interdenominational agencies. In addition to the Federal Council, they are the Foreign Missions Conference, the Home Missions Council, the International Council of Religious Education, the Missionary Education Movement, the National Protestant Council on Higher Education, the United Council of Church Women, and the United Stewardship Council.

To date, 16 of the Federal Council's denominations, with 25,057,826 members, have approved the merger. Six bodies, with 2,949,355 members, have taken no action, and two bodies with 2,372,000 members have the action under consideration. Six of the agencies involved have registered approval of the plan.

In a message to the Federal Council, President Truman today called for greater unity of purpose and effort among religious forces in America and congratulated the council for its 40-year effort to draw Christian forces together in cooperation.

"It is highly gratifying to see the American churches exerting a united influence for the strengthening of spiritual foundations of our national life at a time when a materialistic philosophy is widespread," the President's message said.

"I warmly welcome the invaluable contributions which the Churches of the Federal Council are making to the faith of our people, to social welfare, to international order."

Constant struggle to make society more Christian by securing freedom and justice for all people is the one effective way of preventing communism, Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert, journal secretary of the council, told the delegates. He asserted that the "premises of Christian social action are very different from those of proud and confident humanism," and require a firm rootage in the word of God.

Says Spirit Is Needed

"It is sheer illusion to talk of an ecumenical church unless there is a truly ecumenical spirit in the local community," he declared, referring to the organization of the World Council of Churches in Amsterdam last summer.

"The world council will succeed or fail to the extent that the churches which are next door neighbors in the same town really carry on their work, not as competing congregations, but as one family of Christ."

Dr. Cavert asserted that much of the "feebleness of the church in relation to secular affairs" has been due to its depending too exclusively on the preacher in the pulpit, too little on men and women in their daily occupations.

Total church membership in all denominations is now the highest in history, Dr. Jesse M. Bader, secretary of the council's department of evangelism, reported. He said that since 1946 membership of Protestant bodies has increased by 3,713,006 persons, to a total of 77,386,188.

Applications for membership in the Federal Council were received from the Religious Society of Friends of Philadelphia and vicinity, with a membership of 4865 and the Romanian Orthodox Episcopale of America, which has 21,000 members. Action on the applications will be taken Thursday.

Six Areas of Concern

Delegates will consider six areas of concern to the churches in sectional meetings Thursday and will present reports to the full council Friday for action.

In introducing the study on the responsibility of the churches for displaced persons, the Rev. Canon Almon R. Pepper, executive vice president of Church World Service, urged that DPs become a priority activity of the churches.

He called upon the churches to be prepared for "new and man-made catastrophes." Palestine, he said, is one area that found the churches unprepared to meet their Christian obligations. He urged special efforts to help churches that are oppressed by totalitarian governments.

Branding the confusion and fear of the present day a "ghastly joke," Prof. William G. Mather of Pennsylvania State College asserted that "the present postwar revolution is a continuance of the world-wide struggle of men who feel themselves unfairly treated to remove the handicaps and discriminations other men have put in their way." He heads the study on human rights.

"Christians must decide whether men are to treat each other as if each were a nuisance to be suppressed or tolerated," he said, "or a son of God whom Jesus of Nazareth thought worth enough to die for." He said "Christian performance must surpass Communist promise if it is to survive."

Scores Professionalism

In calling for greater lay participation in the work of the churches, Francis S. Harmon, vice president of the Motion Picture Association of America, scored the growth of "professionalism" in the churches.

He deplored the spectacular approach by which "we go to hear the minister and criticize him as if he were a quarterback." The gospel he said, needs no defense, but rather proclamation, which must come from the pew as well as the pulpit.

Sections will also study the problems of juvenile delinquency, older people in the church, and the need for a united evangelistic advance.

Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of the Methodist Church of the New York area told the delegates at the fortieth anniversary banquet that "the highly complex problems of world affairs cannot be solved by the passage of hastily drawn resolutions: They call for the trained mind and long experience of dedicated Christian leadership qualified to give expression to Christian principle in terms of practical measures."

Pilot Plane Loses Drone Over Salisbury

Salisbury, Md., Dec. 1 (AP).—A pilotless Navy target plane got away from another which controlled it by radio and disappeared.

The Navy said it apparently crashed into the sea or one of the extensive marshes on the lower part of the Delaware-Maryland-Virginia Peninsula.

The "drone" plane, a converted Hellcat fighter, took off with its control craft from the Navy's nearby Chincoteague Air Station just after 11 o'clock this morning.

It was set to climb at full throttle and somehow got beyond the range of the control signals from the low altitude mother plane.

At 11:20 the Civil Aeronautics Authority sent out an alarm on its airways teletype network reporting the plane circling out of control at 22,000 feet over Salisbury.

Maryland State police got the alarm 10 minutes later. Volunteer fire companies were asked to stand by.

Capt. W. V. R. Vieweg, commanding officer of the air station, expressed a belief the plane would crash quickly. But there were no reports of it coming down within the next five hours. Captain Vieweg said at 1:30 p. m. that its fuel should have given out by that time and apparently it landed on water or in the marshes.

He called off the aerial search. A high-altitude control plane had been sent up in an attempt to intercept the stray and bring it back.

The drone was used for aerial target practice and its mission today was routine. It carried no explosives.

Woman Strangled, Man Dead by Shot

went to her apartment and received no answer to his knock.

Police said Mrs. Hardin and Archer were in Mrs. Hardin's double bed. Each clasped a picture of the other. Police, who believe Archer placed his picture in Mrs. Hardin's hand after her death, said she was fully clothed, except for her shoes. Archer was minus shoes and shirt.

Police said a table lamp, apparently on since Monday night, was shining full in Mrs. Hardin's face as she lay flat on the bed, with Archer's body, lying on its side, facing her.

Mrs. Hardin had been strangled, while Archer had been shot once through the right temple. A .32-caliber revolver was in his right hand. Ballistics tests showed that each of the four shells left in gun had been dented by the firing pin, indicating Archer had pulled the trigger four times before a shot was fired.

Notes Written by Man

Police believe that two notes, found on the dresser beside the bed, were written by Archer after he had choked Mrs. Hardin to death. A Police Department handwriting expert yesterday said both notes were entirely in Archer's handwriting, although one, addressed to Archer's sister, Mildred, had been signed "Fern and Archie."

Police said yesterday that Archer's sister was out of the city on vacation in New York. Mrs. Hardin's husband, William A. Hardin, was to be notified of her death at his Army post in California. A daughter, Mrs. Thelma West, 21, of 1845 A st. se., learned the news yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Hardin also is survived by a son, Milton E. Garber, 18, who is attending a Texas school, Mrs. West said.

Her first husband, Paul Garber, of 1836 Burke st. se., is employed by Thompson's Dairy. The couple had been divorced for about 10 years.

Friends of Mrs. Hardin said they believed she had married Hardin in 1942. They had moved to the B street address a year later and lived there until their separation about six months ago.

"Quiet, Sympathetic"

Neighbors described her as a "quiet, sympathetic" person, who frequently offered to "baby sit" for young couples in the apartment house, but otherwise "kept pretty much to herself."

They said she had visited friends in New York over Thanksgiving weekend, and that while she was away she received both flowers and telegrams from Archer. Although she was rather reticent about her affairs, neighbors said she had described Archer as "just a friend," but that she thought he was in love with her.

While Archer had made frequent visits to Mrs. Hardin's apartment, neighbors said Larson's calls were very infrequent. They said he had visited Mrs. Hardin last Saturday night, however. Mrs. West said she last saw her mother last Friday, when Mrs. Hardin visted her, and seemed in "good spirits."

Neighbors said that on Monday night they heard someone, whom they believed to be Archer, knock on Mrs. Hardin's door shortly after 7 p. m. They heard her say what they remembered as ". . . Why couldn't you wait until I got dressed?"

The man was admitted to the apartment, neighbors said, and all was quiet until about 9:30, when sounds of a struggle were heard. One neighbor said she heard Mrs. Hardin scream, but thought the couple "might have been just wrestling."

No one reported having heard the gunshot. Police said, however, that Archer apparently had held a pillow to his head when he fired, deadening the noise. The pillow was found beside his body.

Mrs. Hardin, who was employed as a supervisor in the packing section of the National Radio Institute, had held that position for the last three years. A native of Nokesville, Va., she formerly had been emloyed by a local trunk company.

Archer, a native of Washington, had been employed by the Alber company prior to the war, but left in 1942 to do war work at the Engineering Research Corporation in Riverdale. He returned to the firm in 1946.

Truman Honored As Pedestrian

By D. C. Board

President Harry S. Truman yesterday received a new title—Honorary Pedestrian of the Week—because he waits for a green light like everyone else.

The title was bestowed by the District Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board in connection with a pedestrian traffic safety drive.

"Your firm decision to wait faithfully for a green light before crossing Pennsylvania ave. demonstrates your genuine interest in the promotion of traffic safety," the board said in a letter to Mr. Truman.

The President, living at Blair House, across the avenue from the White House, until the executive mansion is repaired, recently rejected a plan for a special red light when he crosses the avenue.

Effort to Influence Trade Board Denied

London, Dec. 1 (U.P.)—The central figure in the government's investigation of the alleged Board of Trade bribe scandal today denied that he had made any "gifts" to influence board officials.

Promoter Sidney Stanley denied he had bought favors from John Belcher, undersecretary of the Board of Trade, or George Gibson, director of the Bank of England. Witnesses had testified that he knew both men well.

Frank B. Noyes

The passing of Frank Brett Noyes at the august age of 85 ends a life of great usefulness to the local community and the newspaper world. These were his two interests. His motto in life was "Once a newspaperman, always a newspaperman," and he had little patience with men in the same position as himself who seemed to regard their work on a newspaper as a sort of sparetime occupation. He himself had no hankering for public jobs, and he could not understand other newspapermen who had. This attitude reflected his absorption in newspaper work and his devotion to the task of improving both the product that was his especial care and the standards of the business generally.

In both respects Mr. Noyes since his retirement from the presidency of the Evening Star last year could look back with pride and satisfaction upon his achievements. The Star is one of the most successful newspaper properties in the country and owes not a whit of its prosperity to sensationalism or self-seeking. Mr. Noyes sought to serve the community according to his lights. His reward was that he helped to carve out for the Noyes family a singular place among the distinguished families of the Capital City. Here he was born, and the smell of printer's ink engaged his nostrils so early in life that his editor-father had some difficulty in persuading him to undertake his formal education. He was on the Star payroll at the age of 13, and left Columbian, later George Washington, University prior to graduation because he could not resist the lure of the newspaper. Nevertheless he was a man of wide cultivation, though it was on the business rather than on the editorial side that he found his metier.

His public career showed he had profound convictions about the content of newspapers. News, he felt, should be objective, unbiased, unadorned, and authoritative. So deeply was he concerned about the freedom of news from editorial taint and from clique domination that he was foremost in the development of the present Associated Press, set up by the publishers of the entire country. He has been called the AP's Moses. But he was more than that. He led the newspaper publishers out of a wilderness of backbiting and competition, out of the dangers of dependence; and in 1900 became the first president of the independent AP, staying in that office for 38 years. In 1947 the organization made him honorary president.

It must be admitted that his ideal of news treatment was pretty Spartan. And of late his theories have been questioned as an insufficient contribution to the first draft of history which newspapers profess to furnish. It has been contended that the AP should delve back of the news and also report the environment whence it springs. Perhaps Mr. Noyes would not have agreed, but, whatever his contribution, it would have been worthy of consideration, for he justly had a reputation as the sage of the newspaper industry, or, as Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, former British Ambassador to Washington, called him, "a master of covert and anonymous wisdom." Mr. Noyes was far from dogmatic, having a warm humor, stemming no doubt from the happiness he enjoyed in his own family.

Depreciation Reserves

The problems resulting from rapidly mounting depreciation costs have long engrossed the attention of students of taxation and brought demands for more realistic treatment of depreciation allowances by the tax collector. Recently the question of depreciation policy was under discussion by a committee of the American Institute of Accountants, who recommended that corporate annual reports should provide such supplementary information as is required to explain to stockholders, employes and the general public the need for retention of earnings. For, as the accountants point out, companies must be able to retain out of profits amounts sufficient to reproduce productive facilities at current prices if they are to stay in business. Some of the committee members even went so far as to urge a basic change in the accounting treatment of depreciation on the ground that inflation has reached a point "where original dollar costs have already lost their practical significance."

The U. S. Steel Corp. affords an outstanding illustration of the difficulties facing many business concerns having to make heavy expenditures for plant and equipment. Big Steel solved the problem by setting up special replacement reserves in addition to regular depreciation charges. The result, of course, is substantially to reduce estimates of net profits—a proceeding that gives some color to charges of labor leaders that the company's record earnings are underestimated. Even if part of the company's outlays—actual and prospective—for improvements and additions to facilities belong in the category of capital investment rather than depreciation charges, they are indirectly benefiting labor by building up the industry instead of going to stockholders in the form of increased dividends. It has also to be kept in mind that Big Steel's ultraliberal depreciation policy is in good part due to the drop in dollar purchasing power, which is reflected in much higher costs for plant and equipment and the need for larger amounts of working capital. Moreover, the demands made on the steel industry, which is operating at top capacity, add to the wear and tear on production facilities—in other words, accelerate the rate of depreciation.

Two Berlins

The conflict over Berlin has entered a new phase with the setting up of a Communist government for all Berlin, though its jurisdiction, of course, will be restricted to the Soviet sector. One reason for the maneuver is to blanket the municipal elections slated for Sunday. Already the Communists had decided to boycott them, and now they are seeking to make them look meaningless. The vote, however, will have its worth, aside from fulfilling the obligation which the four powers undertook at the last election, which was two years ago. The Soviets, by this fresh move, have simply added another item to their long list of violations of international commitments.

In 1946 the Social Democrats almost won a clear majority, 48.7 per cent of the total votes cast, while the Soviet-sponsored Socialist Unity Party won only 19.8 per cent. It is likely that in a fair and full vote the Communist ratio would now be much less than that—according to some observers, as little as 10 per cent of the electorate. Such a showing would have been extremely damaging in the Soviet zone of Germany, not to say satellite Europe in general. Clearly the Soviet Union could not risk any such outcome. Indeed, the 1946 showing should have been the signal to the Western powers that Moscow from then on would try to squeeze them out of Berlin, so that the iron curtain could enshroud the city in 100 per cent unanimity.

The U. N. Security Council, presumably, will have to take cognizance of the Soviet action. It already has on its agenda the Western complaint against the Soviet Union over the imposition of the blockade against the Western powers—a blockade intended to intimidate them into the abandonment of their legal rights in Berlin. Not the slightest progress has been made to bring about a settlement. If the Security Council fails to act, then the Western powers will have no recourse but to ask that the case be taken off the agenda, so that they can submit it to the General Assembly. There the maximum that could be expected would be some resolution condemning the Soviet's act of brigandage.

In the meantime the Anglo-American airlift will go on. In neither London nor Washington is there any slackening of the determination to bypass the surface blockade imposed by the Muscovites. It is an expensive business, and nobody can see the end of it, but the commitment has been undertaken so long as the Soviet maintains its pressure. The new Soviet step in Berlin makes the task of finding a solution both more difficult and more imperative. Perhaps it may galvanize action on Senor Bramuglia's proposal for a commission of neutral experts. The Berlin situation is deteriorating so fast that a settlement must come soon or probably not at all.

Anniversary

It is perhaps not generally understood even now that the Monroe Doctrine, which is 125 years old today, had its original inspiration, like the Truman Doctrine, in resistance to Russian imperialism. The new nations of Latin America had successfully fought their wars of independence against the Spanish Crown. Great Britain had abandoned the four-power alliance created at the Congress of Vienna. The spirit of revolution in Europe, which appeared to have been extinguished by the agonies and miseries of the long Napoleonic wars, was beginning to revive. The result of all these developments had been the formation, under the leadership of Metternich, of the so-called Holy Alliance of Austria, Russia and Prussia, to preserve the principle of legitimacy, whereby these powers, at the Congress of Laibach, pledged the use of their forces to suppress any attempt at revolution on the continent of Europe.

King Ferdinand VII of Spain, with considerable encouragement at the European courts and among the European aristocracy, was seeking to have this policy extended to include also the American continents. France was prepared and even eager to provide the help that he asked, so that Bourbon monarchy might consolidate its restored authority and enlarge its prestige by colonial adventures in the New World. Meanwhile, the Russians, already established in Alaska, were with the approval of their allies, laying claim to the Pacific Coast of North America to a point only slightly above what is now the boundary of California. The United States indignantly rejected this claim and was joined by the British, whose imperial interests were, of course, also involved.

The general outlines of the Monroe Doctrine were formulated for the first time in the note dispatched from Washington to St. Petersburg in the summer of 1823. The Tsar's government was notified that the United States would "contest the right of Russia to any territorial establishment on this continent." The note also set forth, as the official policy of the United States, "the principle that the American continents are no longer subjects for any European colonial establishment." It was not until some weeks after the dispatch of this note that George Canning, British Foreign Secretary, sent to Richard Rush, the American Minister in London, the "private and confidential" letter in which he proposed a joint declaration by Great Britain and the United States of their opposition to the transfer to "any other power" of "any portion" of the former Spanish colonies in the Americas. Canning urged Rush to sign this convention on his own authority; but the Minister, unwilling to take so great a responsibility, referred the matter to President Monroe.

The President was at first inclined to approve the Canning proposal, but found himself bitterly opposed by his Secretary of State, John Quincy Adams. Canning's draft of the declaration had included the statement that neither the United States nor Great Britain would ever seek to possess "any portion" of the former Spanish colonies. The United States, Adams felt, should not commit itself to any such principle. The Government should act, precisely as it was acting in the Alaskan boundary affair, unilaterally, and should make the whole question "an American cause," and one that would be "inflexibly adhered to."

President Monroe was emboldened to take Adams' counsel by the success he was having in his controversy with Russia. Thus the President began his famous message to Congress, of December 2, 1823, by observing that—

> The Government of the United States has been desirous . . . of manifesting the great value which they [the United States] have invariably attached to the friendship of the Emperor [of Russia] and their solicitude to cultivate the best understanding with his government. In the discussion to which this interest has given rise, and in the arrangements by which they may terminate, the occasion has been judged proper for asserting as a principle in which the rights and interests of the United States are involved, that the American continents by the free and independent condition which they have assumed and maintain, are henceforth not to be considered as subjects for future colonization by any European power. (Italics ours.)

A few months later the Tsar's government accepted the treaty defining the latitude 54 degrees and 40 minutes as the southernmost limit of Russian colonization in North America, thereby obviating a potential Russian claim to California.

Symphony Transition

There is no question that Dr. Hans Kindler merits a large share of the credit for the fact that the National Symphony Orchestra is now among Washington's permanent institutions. He founded and nurtured an orchestra where others had failed. The imprint of his 17 years of devoted service will remain on the National Symphony even though Dr. Kindler himself has resigned effective with the 1949-50 season.

A man of strong tastes, with a streak of egocentricity, Dr. Kindler inevitably made foes as well as champions. There is reason to believe that the controversy over Kindler's leadership was partly responsible for the financial doldrums in which the orchestra has languished. The effect of the dispute certainly has been to reduce the symphony's prestige, though there are grounds for thinking that some of this loss has been due to the fact that the orchestra has outgrown its conductor and lacks inspiration. While Dr. Kindler's musicianship is brilliant in his favorite scores, it is not well-rounded, so that the National Symphony, despite its technical excellence, is not yet known as a first-rate orchestra.

Instead of bringing in an outside conductor of more established reputation, the symphony board has chosen to vest future leadership of the orchestra in Howard Mitchell, who has served with distinction as associate conductor. This seems to us an altogether praiseworthy decision. It capitalizes on the popularity and respect Mr. Mitchell has already won with his performances at the Watergate and during Dr. Kindler's illness. Mr. Mitchell already has indicated what we believe will be improvements in orchestra programming—more scheduled concerts, especially in the Wednesday evening series, and more guest conductors from topnotch orchestras.

It goes without saying that the orchestra will need full public support now more than ever—for even with all auditorium seats filled, the symphony falls short of meeting expenses. What is necessary, above all, is a surcease of strife to give Mr. Mitchell a chance to carry on the work of molding an orchestra worthy of the Capital of the United States.

Blood And Loyalty

One of the questions asked of a Federal employe recently appearing before a regional loyalty review board is sufficient in itself to warrant a review of the reviewers by the Administration. "What is your opinion of segregation of white and Negro blood in Red Cross blood banks?" the employe was asked in effect. The defendant replied that medical opinion finds no distinction between blood of the various races for transfusion purposes. "I didn't ask you for medical opinion," the interrogator retorted. "What is your opinion?"

Has it suddenly become subversive to accept the objective findings of medical science? Do such tangents have one iota of meaning in determining loyalty or disloyalty to the United States? This reductio ad absurdum is not from some Swiftian parody of the loyalty investigation procedure; it is from the actual record. There are other equally shocking reports of what has transpired in similar cases. We cannot believe that the top personnel of the loyalty inquiries, who seem to be trying conscientiously to protect the rights of the accused, will have any truck with this kind of tactics. But this is ugly business, and unless there is prompt intervention to right the wrongs and prevent recurrence, the whole loyalty procedure will soon be stigmatized as something repugnant to every American tradition.

"The Chauvinist"

Your November 19 editorial on De Gaulle stated that Post policy has opposed the return of the Ruhr to German hands. A letter published November 24 attacked the editorial on the ground that the general was only fighting for the future and safety of France. If this in itself were the entire story, then the letter defending De Gaulle would have its justification.

In reading his speeches and in examining his tactics, we find that General De Gaulle will commit any act or maneuver in order to put himself in power. It has become evident that the similarity of the attitude of the Communist and the Gaullists permit one interpretation. Both groups are not concerned with the recovery of France or of western Europe; their single and obvious purpose can be stated as to achieve control of the government regardless of cost or consequences.

If necessary, De Gaulle will come to power even if he rules astride the prostrate body of a bleeding France. It is no secret that both extremist groups are arming for the eventual conflict. De Gaulle, if he were sincerely concerned for the security of his country, would not purposely create pressures against the present French government because that action is advantageous to the strong Communist element in France. In his blind thrust for power he is mimicking the Reds whom he claims to fear and to oppose.

The letter-writer also attributes great powers of clairvoyance to the general. It is most perplexing that nationalism which seems to be losing adherents all over the Western world has found a new champion in De Gaulle. According to the writer, the only political figure who surpasses De Gaulle in this great wisdom, Winston Churchill, has been clamoring not for more narrow ancient nationalism but for a union of western Europe.

"Secularism"

Having read with much interest the editorials and letters in your paper on church and state, I should like to add a few more points for consideration.

The simple statement by the Constitution as to the separation of church and state seems to me to be quite unequivocal. But I have been wondering of late whether or not the issue has not been considerably clouded. Your editorial of November 28 takes a statement of the Roman bishops to task on certain grounds. I should like to point out that in that editorial you found it impossible to abstain from reference to an established church.

Now this has nothing to do with the question at all. The question raised in religious circles regarding the recent ruling by the Supreme Court on religious education was concerned with the public recognition of the Almighty God and of its recognition by the Government —not of its union with the Government.

We must not be duped into compromising the ideals of our founding fathers and the spirit of the Constitution. God, the Father, King and Judge of Mankind, was a guiding light to the soldiers and leaders of the Revolution. The Pilgrims landed on these shores to give them freedom to worship God as they chose, not to give them freedom from God. A man must, however, be free to choose; and if he does not accept the Christian precepts, that is his right. But, in this country we are pledged to allow a man to find Christianity here if he wants it. Our muddled thinking on this issue is more dangerous to the public welfare than the denial of an atheist the right to talk.

Your editorial "Secularism" in the November 28 issue shows a complete lack of understanding of the nature of religion.

Religion is not "feeling," it is not a valuable extra activity for children, like the Boy Scouts or dancing lessons.

Religion is an explanation of the universe, of our duty to our Creator and of our final destiny. Nobody who really believes in any religion could accept nonsectarian exercises as a substitute for the religious education of his children.

Tojo's Execution

As a native of our Capital City and as a cofounder of George Washington Post No. 1, "The Pioneer Post" of the American Legion in your city, I write to register a violent protest to the action by Gen. Douglas MacArthur in barring reporters from the execution of condemned Japanese war criminals soon doomed to die.

It is shameful enough to grant immunity from the recent trials to the Japanese Emperor. It is worse to insult the veterans who lived through it all by flaunting in their faces the cloak of sympathetic protection being drawn around the condemned thugs who ordered the rape of Nanking, the destruction of our fleet at Pearl Harbor and the death and misery that followed our declaration of war.

Where are the spokesmen for the American Legion in this shameful hour? Why do they not go to our President and demand that he overrule General MacArthur's order that the press may not witness this historic event? Is there something sacred about the occasion?

Auxiliary Police

I feel that our police chief has been very capable in his position and has done a splendid job so far. However, I would like to say that his suggestion of hiring 80 women to serve as an aid to deportment is quite untimely.

During the war, we had men who did a splendid job as auxiliary police and who carried out many types of assignments in all of the precincts. Now these men are neglected and forgotten.

The GI's get some type of consideration for their services rendered on the foreign fronts. Why not those who did all that they could at home? Why not select these men and pay them an hourly rate?

We are not looking for glamour in the precincts but we are looking for a square deal for the auxiliary police know some of the laws of the city already.

Displaced Employes

Mr. Kluttz's column of November 25 made reference to the situation of about 1000 displaced career employes, many of whom have been on the list for many months. It may be well to call attention to the fact that this is of major concern to those of us who are not DCEs as yet. It offers a sorry prospect to all the rest of us in case it happens to be our turn next.

I have known personally almost a dozen displaced career employes of long years in the service who exhausted substantial amounts of savings (several went completely broke) before obtaining new employment either in or out of the Government.

The DCE does not benefit when a war service appointee is terminated. Such vacancies are almost always filled by promotion from within. After promotional adjustments, the finally resultant opening is at about entrance grade. The DCEs are much beyond the entrance grades and are or should be more concerned about the promotions into their levels from the lower levels than about termination of war service appointees. By mere attrition alone the DCE list would have disappeared long ago if promotions into such levels had been suspended for occasional short periods.

Chinese Student's View On Aid

I have read and listened to with deep interest many of our American friends' views and opinions on this aid-to-China question.

I am a Chinese student who came here during the war. I have not been too deeply involved in the postwar situation back home, but from my close blood relations I have been thoroughly briefed on the existing conditions.

When V-J day came, my father, an educator in his late fifties who went into the interior from North China, danced with other jubilant Chinese on the streets of Kunming to celebrate victory. A few months later, he went back home, still with his arms wide open, ready to welcome the victorious government back in our home city.

What had happened subsequently made an entirely different picture: First the Kuomingtang came, smug and arrogant, took over the best houses in town, and in a manner more like looting took over the best of everything else, too, acting all the way as if it beat the Japs single-handed.

Then prices rose; pork from 1800 a pound in 1946 went up to 2,000,000 a pound the last I heard. Rice at US100 a sack became unobtainable at any price. Our family, a well-to-do one by preware standards, has been reduced to selling its furniture to scrape enough to live on.

Finally, the first enthusiastic exultation has shrunk to a mere nothing. My folks are simply throwing up their hands and saying, "Let the Communists come. We'd rather have them than to see the war continue, and let the effects of it finally rob us of our lives."

On the other hand, I know for sure that a certain Chinese, high-placed during the war, became a millionaire overnight by selling American surplus goods in the Far East, and now lives like one in this country.

The issues are quite clear. The American people have to decide whether to refrain from aid so that the Chinese people can be given peace, even at the price of communistic rule, and be permitted to work out their own destiny, which includes the price of pork and rice—or to continue aid which eventually will go into the private purse of corruptionists and will make these people sit on top of the world, smuggler than ever, at the expense of the happiness of our people, and the pocketbook of the American taxpayer. World's Sex Disparity

By Malvina Lindsay

Future Repercussions

WHILE A RISING movement against polygamy gathers force in Eastern countries, the usual spurt of postwar talk of the adoption of it or its equivalent is now heard in the Western world. Significantly the revolt comes from those who have first-hand knowledge of the practice, the talk from those who speculate upon what the world is going to do with its surplus commodity—women.

Chief polygamy and free love discussion is in Germany, where the man shortage is an acute social problem—however, only a little worse than in other European nations. And now that the sex unbalance has for the first time spread to the United States it is taking on a global pattern to be reckoned with. For a husband scarcity generally contributes to social ills, as illegitimacy—now on the rise throughout the world — prostitution, mental and emotional upsets and instability of marriage. It also threatens the social and even political prestige of women because they lose their sexual bargaining power. What is more, the foundation of Western society rests largely on an equal ratio of men and women as expressed in monogamy.

No legalized polygamy is ever likely in Western nations. But it is significant that in the British military government public opinion research in its German zone, 13 per cent of those questioned in Hamburg expected polygamy to spread—though a much smaller number approved, and in the general questioning 30 per cent said they saw no moral reason against free love for the unmarried.

GERMAN WOMEN today are victims on a greater scale of the same loneliness, economic struggle and frustration they met after World War I. When Hitler came along goading men to the altar with his emphasis on human breeding, promising German women the safe domesticity they so ardently longed for, they turned to him in great numbers. Any potential dictator of tomorrow might with equal success promise husbands and homes to lonely women.

In Britain, which has been plagued with the spinster problem from the time of Jane Austen, the single woman past 30 has virtually been scratched off the marriage list, it is reported. However the English spinster is trained to take it because even in 1860 British magazines estimated that the chances of a girl past 25 getting married were about 1 in 6.

This country has recently had to accept the fact that there were now 100 women to 99 men, whereas a half century ago there were 106 men to 100 women. But here the disparity is chiefly in the older-age groups since women generally live longer than men. Marriage chances of girls haven't been materially cut down as yet. However, the decline of immigration and the high death rate of men is steadily creating a "bloc" of surplus women. Does this mean a trend toward widow domination? Or will American women tend to lose the independence and aggressiveness that developed out of their being so long at a premium in the marriage market?

SOME FEAR the world surplus of women will strengthen totalitarian forces. For in Germany, Italy, Japan, countries with excess women, Fascist forces with their emphasis on masculine culture came into power. However, strong and aggressive political activity is developing among European women, even to some extent among Japanese, and it is not likely they will surrender this unless hunger and loneliness break their spirits. And in the Soviet Union one result of an excess of women has been to open to their sex virtually all forms of manual, technical and professional work—because workers were so urgently needed and because excess women had to earn livings.

The world's woman surplus will also mean more and more women working outside the home. It will mean that every girl will have to be prepared to earn her own way. It will also mean that political education for women will need to be stressed as never before.

But the social problems of the man shortage may be expected to continue for a generation, probably longer. Only by increasing the ratio of men to women can they be greatly helped. One aid to this would be more attention to the health of men, whose mortality at every age is higher than that of women. The sentimental tradition that the "big strong man" can stand anything has contributed to the man-woman unbalance in the United States, especially in the middle-aged population, where men who are heads of families are often hard driven. And men generally are more careless and irresponsible about their health than are women.

The best cure of all for the world's sex disparity and its attendant evils is peace. Approximately 10 million men were lost in the last war, many more millions permanently disabled. If another war can be held off, the next generation might get well started toward restoring the man and woman balance.

Washington Calling

ADA In The Election

IF THERE were any justice in this cruel world, such things couldn't happen. Former Congressman Roger C. Slaughter of Missouri has been indicted and will be tried for violating the law requiring lobbyists to register and list their employer and the amount of their compensation.

Childs

Slaughter says he was not a lobbyist for the grain trade. He was a lawyer paid for his legal services.

This is a fine point. Here in Washington a great many lawyers, some of them graduates of the New Deal, are paid large sums by their clients even though they never go near a courtroom. They are part of the influence industry in the Capital, and if the courts hold that Slaughter was actually a lobbyist and not a lawyer, there will be considerable trepidation in certain important law firms.

But the truly poignant point in the Slaughter case is not legal or technical at all. On the record as it stands, you can make a good case that Slaughter did as much as any single individual to help get President Truman reelected.

Whether as lawyer or a lobbyist, he was influential in persuading Congress to include a limitation on the powers of the Commodity Credit Corporation to store grain on the farms. This meant that the bountiful grain crop overflowed on the open market, with farmers forced to sell at less than the subsidy price. This fact, hammered home by President Truman in his repeated attacks on the Eightieth Congress, is believed to have had a greater influence in rural areas than anything else.

WHILE he was elected to Congress in 1942 as a Democrat, Slaughter almost invariably during his two terms voted against the measures sought by the head of his party. His record may have pleased the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, but his opposition angered President Truman, who took a particular interest since Slaughter's district was next door to the one in which the President votes.

In 1946 the President helped to defeat Slaughter in the primary. In the election that followed, a Republican, Albert J. Reeves, jr., in turn defeated the President's man.

What happened there this year is typical of the November 2 revolution. In the Democratic primary an unknown, an amateur, Richard W. Bolling, had routed the Pendergast forces to win the nomination. On November 2 he rolled up the biggest majority in the history of the Fifth District to swamp Reeves.

Bolling, a Pacific war veteran, was Midwest organizer for Americans for Democratic Action. He made a forthright, hard-hitting liberal-New Deal campaign.

Bolling is only one of a number of active ADAers who were elected to the new Congress. This liberal-labor organization, which was strongly anti-Communist and anti-Wallace during the campaign, will exercise considerable influence in the Eighty-first Congress.

HUBERT HUMPHREY, elected to the Senate from Minnesota, was a national vice chairman of ADA. Humphrey led Senator Joseph Ball by over 200,000 votes. In St. Paul an active ADAer, Eugene McCarthy, topped his Republican opponent for the House by about 25,000.

In Wisconsin ADA's national political director, Andrew J. Biemiller, was elected to Congress from Milwaukee. He had served a term in Congress from 1944 to 1946. Another Wisconsin Democrat, Clement J. Zablocki, was elected with ADA support.

One of the most startling reversals was in New Jersey, where Charles R. Howell, the first New Jersey State chairman for ADA, won by about 30,000 votes. While New Jersey went for Dewey, three other congressional candidates backed by ADA were elected.

In Massachusetts the leader of ADA was the distinguished Harvard historian, Prof. Arthur M. Schlesinger, sr. He put together a highly effective team aimed to win votes from labor, the independents and the Wallaceites. One result was the election to Congress of a young veteran, Foster Furcolo.

To point up the contrast, ADA has called attention to what happened in California, where every Democrat who accepted Wallace support was defeated. Every Democrat against whom Wallaceite candidates had filed was elected or reelected.

The newcomers will be heard from in the new Congress. And ADA has already started an organizing drive aimed at elections still to come.

U. S. Reassures France on Ruhr Plans

New assurances have gone to the French government that the United States is determined to prevent rebirth of German military power.

The assurances were contained in a formal note replying to a French memorandum of protest against returning Ruhr industries to German ownership. The American note expressed pleasure that the French had agreed to take part in the Angle-American control agencies set up in the Ruhr.

The offer to let France join in this control, even before the final merger of the French zone with the American and British zones in western Germany, was first announced by Secretary Marshall last week.

Foreign Minister Romert Schuman is expected to comment on the American assurances, and to restate the French position, in the French Assembly's debate on the Ruhr policy today.

Sun and Wind Lifting Fog From England

London, Dec. 1 (AP).—Wind and sun brought some relief to fog-bound Europe today, but in many areas the mist drifted back with nightfall.

Within four hours after the sun broke through, the world's three largest passenger ships—the Queen Elizabeth, Queen Mary and Aquitania—left Southampton harbor on delayed voyages to New York and Halifax.

Closed down for two days by the weather, the Allied airlift to Berlin resumed limited operations shortly after noon, then stopped when the murk again blanked out landing fields.

All of Denmark cleared of fog during the day. Air and sea traffic was resumed.

British Shipping Freed

London, Dec. 1 (AP).—The British government lifted its war-imposed controls on shipping today, freeing this nation's great merchant fleet to seek cargoes on a competitive basis for a six-months test period.

Eisenhower's Command Ended

That headquarters was formally established on April 9, a full month before the German surrender.

With the end of hostilities the Western Allies had to begin making arrangements for breaking up the great combat force into its national elements. The governments had rejected my repeated recommendation that the Western Allies occupy their portion of Germany on a unified basis.

Ike's Plan for Berlin Ruled Out on Politics

My plan was considered politically inexpedient, although I urged that, since occupation would be a residual task of the war and would require armies of the Western Allies for its accomplishment, there could be no reasonable objection to the maintenance, in western Germany, of the same Allied organization that had attained victory.

The question was, however, clearly a political one, and our governmental leaders believed that my plan would be subject to unfortunate misinterpretation by the Soviet Union.

Military government had quickly to be installed over the recently overrun sections of Germany. Add to this the never-ending volume of administrative detail incident to the control of the vast Allied Force in the west and it is easy to understand the remark of an overworked staff officer who said: "I always thought that when the Germans finally surrendered I would celebrate by going on a big binge. Now I'm taking aspirin every day—without the fun of looking back on the binge!"

We received word from Washington that, because circumstances prevented American units in Europe from returning to the United States to appear in the traditional parades of victorious troops, General Marshall wanted me to pick representative officers and enlisted men for return in groups of some 50 each for a short tour of our country. He felt that through these representative celebrations America would have a chance to pay tribute to her fighting men in Europe.

Nation's Gratitude Was Overpowering

For every man the experience was inspiring and heartwarming. The generous cordiality and hospitality poured out upon those groups by the people of the United States were overpowering.

During the months succeeding VE-Day I went to various European capitals for similar celebrations, among them London, Paris, Brussels, The Hague and Prague; other invitations I found it impossible to accept. My later visits to Moscow and Warsaw did not involve "victory celebrations."

By agreement on the political level, SHAEF went out of existence on July 14. To mark the occasion I sent a final message of thanks and goodby to the entire command.

For the first time in three years I ceased to be an Allied commander. Henceforth my responsibilities were American only.

Preliminary agreements for an initial meeting of the Allied Council in Berlin were accomplished with difficulty. Complications included differences in language and laborious methods of communication, the lack of intimate contacts between senior commanders, and the destruction in the city of Berlin which so stringently restricted accomodations. It was not until June 5 that we progressed far enough with all these tortuous negotiations to hold the first formal meeting of the Allied commanders in Berlin.

Russians Debated First Proclamation

The purpose was merely to sign our basic proclamation, a document announcing the formation of the Council and assumption of joint responsibility for the administration of Germany. We thought that the papers in the case had been completely agreed upon before we went to Berlin, but when we reached there we discovered that there were questions which the Russians still considered unsettled.

The meeting was arrange for the middle of the afternoon and before it began I seized the opportunity to call at Marshal Zhukov's headquarters to present him with the Chief Commander grade of the Legion of Merit, awarded him by the American Government. I thought Marshal Zhukov an affable and soldierly-appearing individual.

When I got back to my own temporary quarters in Berlin I found that there was an unexpected delay in convening the meeting, at which Marshal Zhukov was to act as host. This was annoying, as I had to return to Frankfurt that evening. Through the long afternoon hours we waited, but the English-speaking liaison officer from Zhukov's headquarters could give us no explanation for the delay. Finally, late in the afternoon, I determined to force the issue.

I asked the liaison officer to inform Marshal Zhukov that, much to my regret, I should be forced to return to Frankfurt unless the meeting began within 30 minutes. However, just as the messenger was ready to depart word came that we were expected at the conference room, to which we all instantly repaired.

Zhukov Shows Up, Insists on a Toast

The marshal tendered an explanation for the delay, saying that he had been awaiting final Moscow instructions on an important point. The rest of us accepted the statement in good part and the Berlin Council got off to a start in an atmosphere of friendly cordiality.

It then developed that Marshal Zhukov had arranged an elaborate banquet for his guests, but I was not prepared to spend the night in Berlin. I therefore told Zhukov that I would have to go back to Frankfurt that evening, sufficiently early to land before dark.

He asked me to compromise by coming to the banquet hall for a toast and to hear the Red army choir sing two songs. He promised me a speedy trip through the city to the airfield, saying he would go along himself to see that there was no delay.

Because of the marshal's hospitable gesture toward his allies I regretted my inability to stay. The singing of the Red army chorus was remarkable, and the table was piled high with Russian delicacies. Before I left Marshal Zhukov announced that he had received a mesage from Moscow instructing him, with the approval of Generalissimo Stalin, to confer upon Field Marshal Montgomery and me the Russian Order of Victory, a Soviet decoration that had never previously been given to a foreigner. The marshal asked me when I should like to have the decoration presented and I invited him to visit my headquarters at Frankfurt for the ceremony.

I invited Zhukov to bring to the ceremony at Frankfurt a number of staff assistants and to stay as long as he pleased, with the assurance of a warm welcome. He replied that he would come on June 10 and would be accompanied by no more than ten staff officers, but could stay for the day only. Consequently I planned a state luncheon for him and his party.

Just a few hours before his arrival I received a telegram saying that in addition to the ten staff officers he was bringing five officer bodyguards. An officer bodyguard was a functionary of whom I had never heard, and I was somewhat puzzled as to what to do with five at a luncheon.

We met Zhukov at the airport with a guard of honor and the United States Army Band, and we then, with an interpreter, got into my car for the trip back to headquarters. I promptly brought up the question of the proper place for officer bodyguards at a luncheon.

I told him that he could have them seated immediately around him, standing behind him, or at the far end of the table. When all this was interpreted to him he blurted out: "Please tell the general he can put them wherever he pleases. I brought them along because I was told to do so."

Zhukov Impressed By Air Review

The luncheon at Frankfurt was a great success. It was a beautiful summer day and we first took our guests to a large gallery, open to the sky, where wines and pre-luncheon refreshments were served. For this interval we had arranged a parade of a large segment of our Air Force, on the assumption that Marshal Zhukov would consider it a compliment. From nearby fields we brought over hundreds of fighter planes, followed by bombers ranging in size from the lighter types on up to the heaviest equipment we possessed. In the bright sunlight it was a tremendous show and Zhukov seemed much impressed.

The decorations presented to Montgomery and me were among the few I have seen that have great intrinsic rather than exclusively sentimental and symbolic value. Designed in the form of a star, each contains some eighty or ninety diamonds surrounding a group of synthetic rubies, in the center of which is a small enameled representation of the Kremlin.

On the part of Zhukov and his assistants there was discernible only an intense desire to be friendly and cooperative. Looking back on it, that day still seems to have held nothing but bright promise for the establishment of cordial and close relations with the Russians.

That promise, eventually lost in suspicion and recrimination, was never to be fulfilled. But so far as the friendly association between Marshal Zhukov and myself was concerned, it continued to grow until the moment I left Europe in November 1945. That friendship was a personal and individual thing and unfortunately was not representative of a general attitude.

General Eisenhower received "astounding proposition" from President Truman at the Potsdam conference, in July, 1945. In tomorrow's installment of "Crusade in Europe" he describes this episode, which has an important bearing on recent political developments. He also discusses his reaction to the atomic bomb, as well as to the postwar problems with which the conference was primarily concerned.

This is a condensed serialization of Dwight D. Eisenhower's "Crusade in Europe." It contains highlights of the book published by Doubleday & Co. Copyrighted by Doubleday & Co., Inc.

Crisis Threatened in Italy On Issue of Military Pacts

Rome, Italy, Dec. 1 (U.P.)—Italian politicians feared today that Premier Alcide de Gasperi's coalitiongovernment was heading for a crisis as a result of right-wing Socialist demands that Italy stand clear of all military alliances.

Political sources said the Christian Democrats and Republicans were "ready and willing for Italian entry into the Brussels and Atlantic pacts, but that the right-wing Socialists threatened to walk out.

The right-wing Socialist executive committee had decided to postpone action until De Gasperi makes a clear reply in the current foreign policy debate.

The seething political situation has resulted from a reported Anglo-American agreement that Italy shall not get back all of its former African colonies.

Foreign Minister Count Carlo Sforza said President Truman yesterday promised the Italian ambassador in Washington, Alberto Tarchiani, that he would try to head off United Nations discussion on the former Italian colonies.

Units Reported In South Korea

Seoul, Korea, Dec. 1 (U.P.)—Seoul Police Chief Tim Tai Sun said today that the Soviet-sponsored North Korean people's army has invaded South Korea in force. He ordered police to shoot down Communist agitators "without hesitation."

Reports from the border did not indicate any large-scale invasion was under way. However, Deputy Home Minister Kan Suk Won said after an inspection of Kangwon Province that Communist guerillas infiltrating from the north clashed with South Korean police at least 50 times during the past few weeks.

He said "an atmosphere of war" prevailed in the province, bordering on Russian-occupied territory.

The President's Calling List

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday saw the following White House callers:

10:30 a. m.—Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.).

10:45—Eric Johnston, president, Motion Picture Association of America.

11—Thomas B. McCabe, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

11:15—Anthony A. Buford, personal friend of the President from St. Louis, Mo.

11:30—Governor-elect McMath of Arkansas.

11:45—Cyrus S. Ching, director of the Federal Mediation Service.

12 noon—Secretary of the Treasury Snyder.

12:30 p. m.—Sir Carl Berendsen, Ambassador of New Zealand.

3—Budget Director James E. Webb and Assistant Director Frank Pace.

Orr, Ex-Director of FAO, Asks Arms Cut to Aid Food Supply

London, Dec. 1 (U.P.)—Sir John Boyd Orr, former director general of the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization, urged today that all nations cut their armament programs by 10 per cent and donate that money to setting up a World Food Board.

Sir John, who farms 280 rich acres in Scotland, explained the World Food Board then could:

1. Double food production throughout the world in 25 years, ending hunger and poverty—"the breeding ground for communism."
2. Build up food reserves after bumper harvests against famine.
3. Stabilize prices in the international market at levels fair to both farmers and consumers.

Sir John said the United States could make a "tremendous gesture to the world" by renewing her offer to take part in a World Food Board provided Britain and Russia also join.

He believed Russia would join the World Food Board if given another chance.

The present FAO's World Food Council without money or authority is a "watered-down version" of his plan for a World Food Board.

"All it can do is recommend," he said.

ERP Is to Aid U. S., Industrialists Told

New York, Dec. 1 (AP).—Robert L. Garner, vice president of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, said today the European Recovery Program should be continued only as long as it serves the well-being of the American people.

Garner spoke at the opening session of the National Association of Manufacturers' fifty-third annual congress of American industry at the Waldorf Astoria.

The three-day congress—NAM's first national meeting since the Democratic election victory last month—adopted national teamwork and cooperation with other nations as its keynote.

NAM's managing director, Earl Bunting, said earlier in the session that three flaws in the American economy the people want corrected are inflation, insecurity and inadequate thrift.

Bunting urged the businessmen, industrialists, labor leaders and Government officials attending the meeting to work for cooperation between industry and Government and between management and labor.

"Capital and labor would be lost without each other," he said.

At the first congress session in the morning, more than 750 persons representing NAM's 1600-member business and industrial firms heard addresses by Bunting, Spruille Braden, former Assistant Secretary of State, and Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor.

Audience Is n Happy Mood

The audience was in a happy mood and gave Bunting a loud burst of applause as he stepped onto the stage to open the congress. Before the speeches began, a choral society sang a chorale, "Sound of Unity," composed especially for the 1948 congress.

Garner, a Washington resident, said that "in my opinion, ERP is a measure of intelligent self-interest, and no one should expect this country to continue to bear the heavy burdens involved in foreign aid except as the people believe that it protects and promotes their own well-being—their economic and financial interests and their security."

He emphasized, however, "the practical necessity of working out a solution to the balancing of foreign trade and finance along lines which are in accord with, and not contrary to, the basic objectives of United States policy.

"How it is done will greatly affect conditions in this country and the course of events overseas."

American exports in 1948 will total about 17 billion dollars and imports about 10 billion dollars, Garner said. He added that the difference between exports and imports is made up primarily of ERP and other foreign aid.

The three ways to strike a balance in foreign trade and finance between exports and imports are, he said:

1. An increase in exports.
2. A decrease in exports.
3. A flow of United States funds abroad.

Expects Reduced Exports

Garner said that in view of the traditional American attitude toward imports, a balance of trade in the future is more likely to be reached by a drastic reduction in exports than by increasing imports.

He suggested that increased European production will reduce the amount of American exports.

Earlier in the NAM session, Paul G. Hoffman, economic cooperation administrator, said the Marshall Plan (ERP) has brought about a new spirit of cooperation in western Europe that is "our best hope of peace." Hoffman said the ECA has boosted production of coke, coal, steel, electric power and other services and goods in the countries participating in ERP.

Garner pointed out that the United States is beginning to produce surpluses in certain types of goods, and added:

"We are already seeing evidences of attempts to use ERP funds to absorb these surpluses, both agricultural and industrial, whether or not they are what Europe needs most from the United States."

"ERP was set up with taxpayers' dollars to give Europe a chance to get back on its feet. It makes no sense to use these dollars except for those things most essential to this purpose."

Braden Urges Powerful U. S.

The NAM gathering also heard Spruille Braden, former Assistant Secretary of State and onetime Ambassador to Argentina, declare the United States must lead the way to lasting peace by eliminating statism at home and renewing the spiritual and liberal principles "which made this country great."

Soviet Has All But Won Pacific War, Judd Says

New York, Dec. 1 (AP).—Representative Judd (R.,Minn.), said today Russia "has all but won the war in the Pacific" through American "blunder and default."

Judd, speaking at the National Association of Manufacturers' fifty-third annual congress of American industry, said if Russia wins China and other rich parts of East Asia, "the men of Asiatic temperament who run Russia may very well just sit it out for a few years or decades until the western world, including the United States, has bled itself to death."

U. S. Sets Higher Farm Goals for Next Year

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The Government yesterday asked farmers to produce next year more milk, chickens, turkeys, sheep, sweet potatoes, legume and grass seeds and tame hay. It also urged continued high production of summer vegetables.

Smaller acreages of flaxseed and a small reduction in rice were recommended.

The increased goals, the Agriculture Department said, are necessary because of continued high consumer demand and the need for restoring better crop rotation on the Nation's farms.

Roster of Increases

The increases asked are:

Dairy: Increase in milk production of 3 per cent, to be reached by increasing yields per cow, with more liberal feed grains and improvement of pastures. This year's milk production per cow—5000 pounds—is a record high.

Poultry: Increase of 10 per cent over this year, or 700 million young chickens. The goal calls for 380 eggs per person in the United States next year, and 23.5 pounds of chicken meat.

The new goals ask 35.1 million turkeys, or an increase of 10 per cent over this year. This would provide about four pounds of turkey meat per person compared with 3.4 this year.

More Pork Chops

The department already has called for a 17 per cent increase in the 1949 spring pig crop—which means more pork chops next fall.

Sheep and lambs: An increase in stock sheep from 28.5 million (the lowest since the Civil War) to 30.5 million. The department says it will take several years to rebuild sheep herds—which means little increase in lamb and mutton during that period.

Flaxseed: A goal of 3,026,000 acres—about 36 per cent below this year. This year's production was a near-record 50 million bushels. The new goals are for 26.7 million.

Rice: A goal of 1.6 million acres—the same was asked for this year but turned up 8 per cent below what was actually planted.

Sweet potatoes: A goal of 607,000 acres—12 per cent above this year's harvest.

Summer vegatables: The suggested 717,850 acres of 18 summer vegetables is slightly more than harvested this year—should result in production of 3,162,000 tons.

Hope for Arthritics Found in Substances Released During Jaundice and Pregnancy

By Nate Haseltine
Post Reporter

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 1.—Jaundiced patients and pregnant women offer medical scientists the best study base in their search for a remedy for rheumatoid arthritis, a Chicago pathologist declared here today.

The search is on, said Dr. Edward F. Rosenberg, for the "common denominator" of the two conditions, infectious hepatitis and pregnancy, which give "amazing relief" to rheumatoid arthritics.

Dr. Rosenberg, chief of the arthritis clinic of Michael Reese Hospital, Chicago, Ill., told the second annual interim session of the American Medical Association:

"Nature has shown us that it has the means to lick rheumatoid arthritis, that the human body releases something (during pregnancy and jaundice) that has a curious inactivating effect upon the disease," he declared.

"Thus, the future may be bright for these arthritics if the ameliorating effects of jaundice or pregnancy can be reproduced in some artificial manner."

Already Have "Good Leads"

Dr. Rosenberg estimated that of the Nation's 6½ to 7 million sufferers of rheumatic diseases more than two million are rheumatoid arthritics. It is one of the more insidious forms, he said, because it cripples persons in their physical prime, generally between 20 and 30 years of age.

He said he was "most hopeful" that biochemists will succeed in isolating and duplicating the natural remedy, but that at present he could only report: "We have some good leads."

He belittled reports that rheumatoid arthritics could receive any "lasting benefit" from transfusions from pregnant women, adding that such measures would also be limited to "the natural reluctance of pregnant women to give up any of their blood."

The AMA's house of delegates tonight rejected establishment of a national health insurance plan.

The delegates approved instead a national enrollment agency, which would cooperate in coordinating all prepaid health insurance plans.

The national health insurance plan was proposed by Blue Cross, hospital insurance group, and the Blue Shield, which is medical care insurance of varying degrees. The rejected plan was for a Blue Cross-Blue Shield Health Service, Inc.

Reason given for the rejection was the possiblity of Department of Justice action against a national company.

The national enrollment agency would make it possible for any person in any medical service plan to receive the benefits of his medical insurance wherever he goes.

The house reaffirmed its opposition to compulsory medical insurance.

Alexandria Hospital Gets Economy Plan

Directors of Alexandria Hospital will meet "before the end of the week" to act on the committee report of the Alexandria Health Council suggesting methods of balancing the hospital's budget. The board recently announced the hospital has no funds to continue operation after January 1.

The report was received by the board at a closed meeting yesterday, D. S. Haddock, hospital president, said.

No action was taken, although there was some discussion, he stated.

The report suggested trimming the hospital's employment rolls to curtail expenses, and advanced a seven-point program for increasing revenue.

The Health Council Monday night forwarded the report prepared by a committee headed by Dr. Arthur J. Maurot, president of the Alexandria Medical Society, to the hospital board to study and to submit comments.

Soviet-British Scientists' Rift

London, Dec. 1 (U.P.).—The Moscow Academy of Sciences has broken relations with the British Royal Society, it was learned today.

Sir Brian Robertson, president of the Royal Society, revealed the rupture in an address in which he said that recent events in the Russian scientific world have "rudely disturbed our mind."

"I refer to a report," he said, "that eminent Russian biologists have been constrained to subscribe to interpretations of data in the field of genetics which they previously rejected or perhaps had thought unworthy of serious consideration."

Robertson said Pravda, official Communist organ in Moscow, told the Moscow Academy it "forgot that the most important principle of science is the party principle. That is a forthright declaration which leaves little scope for ambiguity."

He said he hoped Russian policy "will not seriously impede the advance of biological science."

Last night three British scientists broadcast a bitter attack on Russian scientist Trofim Lysenko, whose theory that environment is the predominant factor in genetics has been accepted as official by the Communist Party in Russia. They charged he had liquidated scientists who favored the "Western" theory that heredity played a major role in genetics."

Private Home Rooms Sought For Inaugural

An all-out drive to obtain accommodations in private homes for inaugural visitors will be pushed by the Federation of Businessmen's Associations.

The decision was take by the federation's board of directors at a meeting last night in the American Security and Trust Building.

It followed a frank statement from Dr. Benjamin Striner, president of the business group and co-chairman of the business and civic groups subcommitte of the general inaugural committee, that the inaugural housing situation "is shaping up to be a calamity."

Calls Upon Residents

"Our courtesy, friendliness and hospitality will determine the impression visitors obtain of Washington," Striner told the businessmen. "What can you do?" He also called upon city residents to open their homes to inaugural visitors "at reasonable prices."

The group received an official report on inaugural housing prospects from J. A. Kamerow, co-chairman of the inaugural subcommittee with Striner.

Earlier yesterday Mrs. Ernest K. Lindley, chairman of the inaugural committee's hospitality and housing committee, estimated approximately 150,00 requests for housing during Inaugural Week are expected.

Mrs. Lindley's committee plans to open a bureau to handle such requests above the Whelan drug store, 14th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., next Wednesday, she announced.

Newspapers will be asked to carry housing information blanks to be filled in by those willing to rent room space, she said.

"I believe we are going to do the impossible and provide accommodations for all," Dr. Striner declared, but he added there would be "drastic shortage of hotel rooms."

Hoover Issues Clarification Of Reports

Chairman Herbert Hoover of the Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government yesterday issued a statement to clarify reports of his remarks after his conference with President Truman on Tuesday.

Mr. Hoover said the top organization which the commission hoped to effect was 10 or possibly 11 departments of Cabinet status and five or six major agencies or "administrations" such as the Veterans Administration.

"In one of these agencies would probably be combined the numerous services rendered to various departments of the Government. In other words this particular agency would perform the 'housekeeping' functions.

"No change would be proposed in the status of the regulatory agencies, such as the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Interstate Commerce Commission, and so forth, which are responsive to Congress and are not part of the executive establishment.

"As things stand, the President bears an intolerable administrative burden due to a large number of agency heads who report directly to him. Their combined claims on his attention, even at the rate of one hour per man per week, leave no time for problems of policy.

"The principle to be stressed is that of reducing to about 16 the major agencies of the executive establishment and distributing among them some 60 agencies that now report directly to the President.

"Mr. Hoover stated that if the whole of the commission's program could be carried through, a matter which might require some time for the passage of legislation and for subsequent reorganization, then there should be a saving of about 3 billions a year in rendering the same governmental services as at the present."

'Big Name' Hopes Of Symphony Told

By Paul Hume
Post Reporter

Big names in the conducting world came through in a telephone interview with Howard Mitchell yesterday.

Mitchell, newly appointed conductor of the National Symphony, spoke from Springfield, Mass., where the orchestra played last night. "We expect confirmation Thursday from Pierre Monteux and George Szell for guest appearances in Washington next season," said Mitchell. (Monteux is the famous French conductor of the San Francisco Symphony; Szell, noted Czech operatic and symphony conductor is now in his second season with the Cleveland Orchestra.)

J. E. Mutch, manager of the orchestra, is also negotiating with such great orchestral leaders as Bruno Walter and Ernest Ansermet. If these men are available they will also appear with the National Symphony.

Too Early to Be Specific

"It's still too early to talk about specific works for next season," said Mitchell. "But there are many things I want to play which Washington has not yet heard that I think they would like. And, of course, we will keep on playing the great masterpieces of the standard repertoire."

This is also the time of year when managers begin engaging soloists for the next season, but no announcement on soloists is expected for a time. During Hans Kindler's 17 years with the National Symphony prominent guest conductors have led the orchestra, including George Enesco, Igor Stravinsky and Bruno Walter.

More Wednesday Concerts

"I am especially anxious to increase the number of Wednesday night concerts next year," Mitchell went on. "I think that the orchestra should play 8 or 10 concerts on consecutive Wednesday evenings before Christmas, and the same number after the first of the year. In that way the people of Washington will know that every Wednesday evening they can count on a concert by their orchestra."

The National Symphony at present plays 10 Wedneesday concerts, and is on tour much of the remaining season. In other cities the resident orchestra plays from 20 to 30 concerts, on a regular weekly basis. Their tours are arranged so that the orchestra can always be at home on the designated night.

The National Symphony will return to Washington in time for concerts on December 12, 15 and 19, before taking time out for Christmas vacation.

French Make Magnificent Music Here

By Paul Hume

Because no French orchestra has toured America in decades, few could be prepared for what happened last night in Constitution Hall.

There the French National Orchestra, under the direction of Charles Munch, played one of the greatest concerts in my experience. Nothing in this review will give you the faintest suggestion of the splendor of the entire evening.

Drawing upon music by Berlioz, Debussy, Ravel, Roussel and America's Walter Piston, Munch exploited every resource of his 96-piece ensemble. The violins are as transparent as glass in texture, if a bit less voluptuous than the round toned sections known in this country. Violas and cellos have a mellow body to their notes that is a marvel to the ear. The woodwinds are world famous, and should be.

Oboes, flutes, clarinets and bassoons sounded as no similar players of our knoweldge sound. The essence of each instrument is apparent at each note, and to the infinite enrichment of the music.

Brass and horns are lighter in quality, but of a plangent "riding" quality that makes full climaxes unique in color. The style of playing is one where great soaring moments are achieved through a miraculous fusion of absolute rhythmic fidelity and melodic clarity. Thus, with no overblowing of winds, or high pressure from strings but through purely musical means, the shape and form of a composition is exposed.

This is due to the players themselves, who have been magnificently schooled in the great conservatories of France. It is due also to the tremendous sweep of Charles Munch's command over music and conducting technique. Every nuance of sound, every orchestral effect, each increase and corresponding slowing down in tempo is prepared, directed, and tapered off.

The evening gloried in excitement, in sound that disappeared into thin air—it shone in the sparkle of Ravel's tribute to Couperin, and flamed in his Daphnis and Chloe music. Debussy's La Mer had a performance which seemed to mingle the wonders of Koussevitsky and Toscanini.

Charles Munch goes to Boston next season, succeeding Serge Koussevitsky. Thus America and Washington will hear him again—often, we trust. His great humility in the face of his art, and his self-effacing tributes to his players, mark him a rare man. His music proved him a unique conductor.

The families of each member of the orchestra were sent CARE packages yesterday through the Washington Committee for French relief. We wish there were some way of letting the people of France know how much we appreciate their sending us their music, their orchestra, and Charles Munch.

Driver Hurt When Auto Hits Light Pole

Merle E. Heilman, 23, a welder of 5103 41st ave., Hyattsville, was seriously injured at 1:10 a. m. yesterday when his car struck a light pole on Michigan ave. ne., in front of Trinity College.

Police said Heilman lost control of the car while rounding a curve. The car, a total loss, careened across a loading platform, jumped a sidewalk and struck the light pole. Lights along Michigan ave. were temporarily darkened.

Heilman was admitted to Casualty Hospital with head and back injuries.

In an accident at 20th and K sts. nw., at 5:50 a. m., an undertaker's limousine owned by Joseph Gawlers' Sons and operated by Ralph E. Hicks, 30, of 32 Farragut pl. nw., was in collision with a trailer truck driven by William Lyons, 42, of 1931 Bennett pl. ne. Both drivers escaped injury. Police charged Hicks with colliding.

2 in Rocway Towers Case Seek Freedom

Baltimore, Dec. 1 (AP).—Two of 19 men sentenced to prison after last June's giant gambling raid on Rocway Towers made a legal bid for freedom today on technical grounds.

The two—William B. Belfield and Edward J. LaPrairie filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, alleging (1) the grand jury that indicted them had systematically excluded members of minority groups, and (2) they had been given insufficient time to prepare their defense.

Belfield and LaPrairie were sentenced to one year in jail.

Their petition was brought into Baltimore City Court, where Judge Michael J. Manley said he would order the penal institution's warden to show cause why the two prisoners should not be released.

Filed through Attorney James J. Laughlin of Washington, the habeas corpus petition recalls the case of a convicted slayer, Sam Zimmerman, to be argued before the United States Supreme Court in January. Zimmerman's attorneys contended his indictment and conviction were not valid because the grand jury indicting the Baltimore Negro had not sufficient Negro representatives.

Israel Repays Union For $1,000,000 Loan

New York, Dec. 1 (AP).—A one-million-dollar loan made by the AFL International Ladies Garment Workers Union to the government of Israel five months ago has been repaid, Union President David Dubinsky said today.

The check was delivered to Dubinsky yesterday by Dr. Israel Goldstein, treasurer of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, and Gottlieb Hammer, comptroller of the agency.

Deer Hunter Toll Is 111

Chicago, Dec. 1 (AP).—This year's deer-hunting season has been hard on hunters.

At least 111 have died so far from gunshot wounds in 21 States. At least that many more have perished from causes relating to hunting, such as heart attacks induced by excitement or overexertion, drownings and auto accidents.

The Nation's gunfire toll last year was 141. This year's story is not yet completed.

At least 3,417,000 deer hunters were licensed this year, compared with 3,284,700 a year ago.

Taking Pictures

Gift of a Camera Right for Everyone

By Ollie Atkins

YOU will make no mistake by giving cameras, photographic materials and camera accessories for Christmas gifts.

Everyone—men and women, young and old, stay-at-homes or gadabouts—they'll all enjoy and USE a camera. If some of the folks on your Christmas list already have still or movie cameras you can buy a host of items which will make picture-taking better and more fun.

The wartime and postwar shortages of photographic materials is virtually ended now and you will find your favorite camera shop is well supplied with still and movie cameras in a wide range of prices. All kinds of accessories are available, too.

One warning I should like to pass along is not to breeze into the camera store and tell the clerk you want a set of filters for a Kodak. The word "Kodak," trade mark of the Eastman Kodak Co., means all types of cameras to the general public but to a camera store clerk it is just about as descriptive as the term "automobile" when applied to the various makes and models of cars.

Before you shop for accessories for brother's camera, find out exactly what make and model it is—then the clerk can give you the exact equipment.

Still cameras range in price from the Baby Brownie at $2.75 to the Foton at $750. Movie outfits start at $50 and run to any amount you want to pay, as amateur and professional equipment merges in the high price brackets.

But you do not have to give a camera! Almost everyone already has a camera. What these folks need most and appreciate are the extra accessories necessary for a full use and appreciation of whatever camera they now own. Filters are very inexpensive, yet few photographers have a complete set. New camera cases, lens shades, tripods, proxar and distar lens attachments, film are items every camera owner needs.

For the more serious photographers who do their own darkroom work an interval timer, a thermometer, film tanks, trays and a host of other darkroom gadgets make wonderful gifts.

Even the most casual snapshooter will appreciate a pretty album in which to mount his pictures and this is a lovely but inexpensive present with which you just cannot go wrong.

CHRISTMAS STORY—Charlie Lindsay at Ford Photo sold a very nice Kodak Tourist camera to Harold Kneeland, Washington Post assistant Sunday editor, and Harold was so tickled with the thing he couldn't wait until the holiday to present it to the Mrs. So he turned it over to her the very day he got it. Oh, well, she may be able to make photo Yuletide greeting cards in time for this Christmas.

The word "mask" in our recent discussion of the Christmas card problem seems to have some people worried who do not process their own pictures. If you do not do your own darkroom work, you have no need for a mask. Just bring your negative to the camera shop and select your mask (card design) there—it is included in the cost of having your cards produced.

Mildred Lehman, wife of the Arlington writer, Milton Lehman, had trouble with her Argoflex camera. Taking the camera to Fuller & d'Albert's shop she got it repaired while she waited with parts hey had in stock—total cost 25 cents.

Color and monochrome photographs, the best produced by the National Photographic Society, will be on display all this month at the National Museum of the Smithsonian Institution. All these pictures are by local people and mostly of local subjects—the display is one every photographer should see.

March 19 is the new date set for the annual White House Photographer's Association banquet honoring President Truman. The affair will be at the Statler Hotel with George Dorsey of Pathe Newsreel and Robert Denton of Paramount heading the exhibit committee. The annual catalogue will be turned out by Guy Bowman, also of AP Photos.

A special print clinic will be held tomorrow at 8 p. m. in Room 5065, South Building, Department of Agriculture, as members of the department's photographic seminar examine their prints.

EXAMPLE—Reports M. J. Walthall of this picture: "I entered the Washington Institute of Photography as their first veteran student, taking their course in Professional General Portrait Photography. The knowledge I gained as a result of this course is quite evident in this picture—one of many photographed, retouched and printed by me."

Alexandria Council Agrees Upon Budget of $3,936,624

By Richard Lyons
Post Reporter

A tentative budget calling for expenditures totaling $3,936,624 was agreed on last night at a closed meeting of the Alexandria City Council.

The council will take final action on the budget, which is effective January 1, at a public hearing December 17.

The tentative budget proposes no increase in tax rates although the expenditures are 18 per cent higher than the $3,227,000 appropriated last year. Under the tentative budget, nearly every city department will receive an increase in funds next year. The largest appropriations were these:

Public schools. $954,494 (last year, $846,000). The council reduced the school board's requested budget by $10,000.

Department of Public Welfare: $201,435 (last year, $168,860). Of the increase $15,000 will go for hospital payments of indigent sick.

Police Department: $286,497 (last year, $261,020). The council reduced the request of the Chief of Police by $18,000.

Health Department: $103,715 (last year, $92,840). The council tentatively increased from $6000 to $8000 the salary of the health officer, an office now vacant.

Construction: $322,258 (last year, $284,818). Included in this item are appropriations of $50,000 to widen Four Mile Run from Mount Vernon ave. to Glebe rd; $25,000 to dredge Four Mile Run, Hooff's Run and Royal St. Channel, and $40,000 to cover a two-block partion of Hooff's Run in the business section of the city.

Fire Department: $193,456 (last year, $164,150). This follows closely the request of the Fire Department.

For the first time, the budget included an apporpriation for a dental program. The proposed amount is $16,360, which will be used to pay clinicians, hygienists and a clerk and to buy equipment. The budget also includes $25,000 for an alcoholic clinic

Downey Not to Run For Governor in '50

Senator Downey (D., Calif.) yesterday said he would not be a candidate in 1950 for Governor of California.

Downey told a news conference that "if I am a candidate for any political office in 1950 it will be for Senator. But I am too busy with official matters at this time to make any decision."

Trade Journal Offers Press Appraisal Aid

New York, Dec. 1 (AP).—An offer to join in a one-year appraisal of the performance of the press has been made to Chancellor Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago by Editor and Publisher magazine.

The offer was made in an editorial discussing a speech by Hutchins at Louisville, Ky., November 19.

Hutchins chastised members of the national Conference of Editorial Writers for "what you did to the report of the Commission on the Freedom of the Press" and declared:

"The most important recommendation of the commission is that which proposes the creation of a new, independent, continuing agency to appraise the performance of the press in discharging its responsibility for public enlightenment."

Editor and Publisher suggested that Hutchins "pick out six laymen or educators and we'll select six newspapermen who can sit down and honestly discuss the good and the bad points of the press without rancor."

The magazine proposed the plan be tried for a year with "two meetings at six months' intervals each for one day."

The trade journal offered to print transcriptions of the meetings in full, or edited with your consent. Or we'll publish only the conclusions, and you (Hutchins) can write that."

A university spokesman said Hutchins probably would reply direct to the magazine.

Editor and Publisher recalled that the Chicago University head, in his talk, described editorial writers as teachers, but added:

"I did not say you were good teachers . . . a good teacher has to know how to read. Not all of you know how."

He characterized The New York Herald Tribune, Washington Post, Washington Star, Christian Science Monitor and St. Louis Star-Times as "good teachers."

N. Y. Social Register Lists Eisenhowers

New York, Dec. 1 (AP).—The 1949 New York social register lists for the first time Gen. and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower—but it was a transfer from the Washington, D. C. book. Eisenhower now is president of Columbia University.

Other newcomers to the New York register included:

Mrs. Barbara Sears Rockefeller, who married Winthrop Rockefeller last February, and Alexander G. Barmine, author and former Soviet general who married Edith Kermit Roosevelt, granddaughter of Theodore Roosevelt.

One on the Aisle—

2 New Dishes, 2 Warmed Over

By Richard L. Coe

ABOUT THE TOWN: The Thanksgiving movie menu stretches into leftovers just as efficiently as turkey, turnip and cranberries, which keep on tasting just as well as long as they last . . . Only two new pictures arrive this week, both opening this morning . . . The Capitol gets "My Dear Secretary," latest on the welcome screwball list . . . Keenan Wynn, Laraine Day and Kirk Douglas have the leads . . . The Warner brings in "The Gallant Blade," wherein Larry Parks duels again as he did in "The Swordsman."

THE METROPOLITAN and the Columbia play host to a couple of old favorites . . . "They Drive by Night," at the former, employs two particularly capable leading ladies, Ann Sheridan and Ida Lupino, with two tough guys bringing them woe, Humphrey Bogart and George Raft . . . This was directed by Raoul Walsh eight years ago and is a bang-up melodrama about truck-driving perils . . . The Columbia employs that cumbersome new word "Re-present" for its new print of "San Francisco," boasting that title song so unforgettable to all who saw the 1936 hit . . . Clark Gable, Jeanette MacDonald and Spencer Tracy battle the San Francisco earthquake in this memorable melange of derring-do.

E STREET'S NATIONAL begins an eighth week for "The Red Shoes," thus tying the two-month record set by Frank Fay's "Harvey," when the reserved-seat movie house was a living theater last spring . . . The ballet film definitely will stay through the eighteenth, undoubtedly playing host several times more to Robert R. Young, the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad prexy, who's already seen the film five times . . . Miss Truman was in the National audience, too, not long ago.

THE HOLDOVER PARADE finds the elegant trappings of "The Three Musketeers" holding the Palace screen for a second week, "Hamlet" at its familiar stands, the Playhouse and the Little; "My Man Godfrey" supplying a laugh-hungry world with merriment at the Hippodrome, where it closes Saturday, and "La Traviata" sticking for another full week at the Dupont, where they're now having late shows Fridays as well as Saturdays. Keith's sticks happily to the lush parade of musicians collected by Sam Goldwyn for Danny Kaye and "A Song Is Born."

NEWS AT THE TRANSLUX centers around its lounge art gallery, a trick first established with the opening of the Playhouse . . . Prize paintings by Washington artists will be exhibited each month . . . Artists represented in the inaugural showing, which opens Saturday, are John Gernand, Richard Lahey, Clare Fontanini, Omar Carrington, Andrea Pietro Serega, Jessalee Sickman and Ethel Robertson Gath.

THINGS ARE HUMMING, too, at Productions, Inc., and its affiliate, the Institute of Contemporary Arts, 1322 New York ave . . . The Institute will show Douglas Fairbanks, sr., in "Robin Hood" Friday night at 8:30 as part of its revival series . . . Monday night, Productions, Inc. will present a special performance of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" for students of Holton Arms, Sidewell Friends' School, St. Alban's and the Maret School at the Universalist Church, 16th and S sts. . . . The production, first of a series, has been especially produced for students in this area.

SPEAKING OF STUDENTS, two of the youngest callers this desk has ever been honored with arrived the other evening costumed as Alice and the White Rabbit . . . Marie Girard was a sweet-voiced Alice, Janie Ebla the clock-watching White Rabbit . . . The little girls came to talk about the Lewis Carroll classic which the Children's Theater of Washington will be presenting Friday nights the 3d and the 10th and Saturday afternoons the 4th and the 11th in Roosevelt Auditorium, sponsored by the D. C. Recreation Department . . . Rose Robison Cowen is directing two casts in the happy adventure . . . Tickets for all performances at the Snow agency, 1108 G st. or at the District playgrounds.

THE WASHINGTON WORKSHOP is in a pleasant haze because just before he left for Italy, where he hopes to complete two plays, Tennessee Williams gave the production group rights to "The Glass Menagerie" for a mid-January performance . . . Mary-Averett Seelye already is directing Mary Goldwater, Peter Jenks, Nanette Fruthkin and Arthur Leib in this first Williams hit, with Bert Awalt in charge of lighting and special music by Vivian Werner.

ALL AMATEUR acting groups are invited to send representatives to tonight's meeting of the One-Act Play Tournament committee . . . Sponsored by the District's Recreation Department, this year's tourney will be discussed at 8 o'clock at Thomson Center, 12th and L sts.

THE GAUDEO PLAYERS tonight will be acting William Roos' comedy, "January Thaw," in the assembly room of the Blessed Sacrament School, Chevy Chase Circle.

SECRETS! Edith King is trying to pry some from Marguerite Chapman, who only toys with her needlework in "The Gallant Blade," opening this morning at the Warner, with Larry Parks as the dueling hero

Tibetans Reach London; Selling Santa Whiskers

London, Dec. 1 (U.P.) — Six Tibetans, wearing long orange-colored robes and Western-style hats and shoes, came to London today to sell false hair for Santa Claus whiskers.

The Tibetans had hoped to see King George VI, but since he is ill, they were received at St. James' by the Lord Chamberlain, the Earl of Clarendon.

The Tibetans carried a message of good will from their ruler, the Dalai Lama, and brought King George a picture of the Lama and a colorful tapestry.

GM to Close Foundry

Lockport, N. Y., Dec. 1 (U.P.)—General Motors Corp. today planned to close its local foundry plant within 60 or 90 days because of lack of orders for gray iron castings. James H. Smith, general manager, said 255 workers would be laid off.

Hen Preceded Egg, Convention Is Told

If your eggs aren't what they're cracked up to be, listen to the unscrambled advice of M. A. Khoury, who contended yesterday that the chicken—and not the egg—came first.

Khoury, a poultry specialist with Armour & Co., made the final talk before the Southeastern Regional Restaurant Convention at the Statler Hotel.

Yesterday's program was highlighted by awarding of prizes in the culinary art exhibit for the most elaborate gastronomic delights. Grand prize went to Clement's Pastry Shop, 708 13th st. nw.

Khoury merely quoted from the first chapter of Genesis to substantiate his claim that the hen preceded the egg.

He also told interested housewives and restaurant operators that brown eggs, because their shells are thicker, are better than white. The darker variety is more immune to absorption of foreign matter through its pores, he said.

Khoury advised egg buyers to get eggs in cartons, with the "point" down. The yolk is then preserved, he said, because it naturally clings to the "lung" of the egg situated at the blunt end. Otherwise, the inside structure is easily destroyed.

Another speaker at the closing session was Walter Snyder, executive secretary of the National Sanitation Foundation.

He termed sanitation "the backbone of public health," and proposed a national program to "eliminate the confusion caused by a multiplicity of local laws and ordinances, many of them contradictory."

Tea Rooms—Allsons Little Tea House, 1301 S. Arlington Ridge rd., Arlington, Va.

School-Age Population Up 10,000

School-age population of the District is estimated to have increased by more than 10,000 persons between 1940 and 1947, contrary to a national trend.

This was disclosed yesterday in estimates of the Nation's population in the 5-to-17-year bracket, announced by J. C. Capt, Census Bureau director.

In 1940, the country's youth in that bracket numbered 29,745,246 and in 1947 the estimated figure was 29,317,000—a decrease of 1.4 per cent.

The District of Columbia in 1940 had 105,552 children between 5 and 17 years old, and in 1947 an estimated 116,000. This was an increase of 9.9 per cent, and contrasts with a decreasing population trend in this bracket in the south, northeastern and north central States.

Maryland showed a slight increase in school-age population between those periods, while Virginia had a loss.

In 1940, Maryland had 395,124 children between 5 and 17, and in 1947 an estimated 402,000—a 1.7 per cent increase. Virginia, in 1940, had 668,614 and in 1947 an estimated 677,000—a decrease of 1.6 per cent.

The Census Bureau said the general trend of decline "reflects primarily the smaller number of births in the period 1935 to 1942 than in the period 1922 to 1929." Persons born in the earlier group are included in the 5-to-17-year tally made in 1940, and those born between 1935 and 1942 are shown in the estimates for 5-to17-year-olds of 1947.

Decision Near In Broadmoor Tenants' Suit

A District Court suit brought by 36 tenants of the Broadmoor who are fighting eviction by cooperative purchasers of their apartments was taken under advisement yesterday.

The hotly contested fight over the Connecticut ave. apartment house was heard by Judge Edward A. Tamm. He is considering motions for summary judgment and dismissal.

The Broadmoore building was sold in October to a cooperative corporation. Since that time, each apartment unit has been sold and is in the possession of the new owners except for the 36 involved in the suit.

Spencer Gordon, attorney for the incumbent tenants, charges that the cooperative is a scheme to boost rents.

Leo A. Rover, representing the cooperative, says that the co-op members are interested in establishing a community of homes and not in collecting rents.

John J. Carmody, who represents defendants Bernard Bralove and Edward C. Ernst, former owners of the building, claims that his clients sold the building to the co-op and have no place in the suit.

Attorneys agreed that the question of the legality of the co-op system of real estate is in an unsettled state in many parts of the Nation.

Gordon, who contends that the cooperative plan was foisted on many unwilling tenants, said it was instigated by "entrepreneurs" or the owners of the building. He said that it had in effect increased rents. He cited a case where he said that a suite that previously rented for $145 a month now costs perhaps $200 a month.

Rover argued that the cooperative was nonprofit and that its legality was established by court decisions here and in Maryland.

'Robe' Murder Case Stalled

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 1 (U.P.)—Gov. Herman Talmadge said today that his Georgia Bureau of Investigation does not have enough evidence to arrest anyone for the murder of Robert Mallard.

When and if it obtains such information, and the local prosecutor at Lyons, Ga., feels that he has a strong enough case to take to court, "the GBI stands ready to make all such arrests as may be indicated," the Governor said.

The investigation of the ambush-killing of the 37-year-old Negro mortuary supplies salesman appeared to have bogged down.

Sheriff R. E. Gray at Lyons, where Mallard was killed, said he was prepared to ask a grand jury for indictments against a number of allegedly white men who may have been involved.

Committee to Organize Wednesday for Zoning Law Study

A nine-man citizens' committee will organize next Wednesday in the District Building to consider changes in zoning laws leading to expansion of the District's parking facilities.

The committee, which was appointed by Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, Engineer Commissioner, will consider two principal questions:

1. Whether the Board of Zoning Adjustment should be given additional powers to make exceptions to zoning rules to permit provision of parking facilities otherwise prohibited in these areas.

2. Whether to expand mandatory regulations requiring builders of various types of residential area structures to provide sufficient off-street parking space to meet needs of residents.

Robert O. Clouser, planning director of the Zoning Commission, is chairman of the group. Members are:

Joseph H. Abel, Washington chapter, American Institute of Architects; Alvin L. Aubinoe, Home Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington and the Building Owners & Managers Association of Washington.

Maj. Gen. Ulysses S. Grant 3d, ret., chairman, National Capital Park and Planning Commission; Dr. H. C. Dickinson, chairman, Engineering and Accident Records Committee, Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board.

Charles C. Koones, chairman, Public and Private Building Committee, Washington Board of Trade; Thornton W. Owen, Washington Real Estate Board; George E. Keneipp, director, District Department of Vehicles and Traffic, and P. Y. K. Howat, director, District Motor Vehicle Parking Agency.

At present, the Zoning Board requires builders of one-family dwellings, apartments, clubs, boarding and rooming houses, fraternities and lodges to provide sufficient parking space to meet the needs of residents in the structures.

Hoover Group Would Reward Supervisors Who Effect Economies

A system of rewarding supervisors who bring about economy in Government has the approval of the Hoover Commission.

The supervisor, for example, who came up with a practical suggestion on how his job and those of the people under him could be abolished would be given the highest reward—a reward that would include both cash and a better job.

Each supervisor would be encouraged under the reward system to reduce the number of people under him. He would be guaranteed both cash awards and promotions.

Such a system would do much to wipe from the public mind the mistaken impression that the salary of a Federal employe is determined by the number of people under him—the more people the higher the salary.

LOYALTY: Seth W. Richardson, chairman of the Loyalty Review Board, will speak on the work of his group next Wednesday at a dinner meeting of the Society for Personnel Administration at the YWCA. What he has to say will be of wide interest.

30-YEAR: Navy Secretary Sullivan yesterday commended three 30-year employes of the Naval Gun Factory here. He gave Navy civilian service pins to George Pool, W. E. Mattingly and John N. Sioussa, all of this city. Each of the veteran employes began their Navy service as a machinist apprentice.

Incidentally, it was discovered just before the ceremony that there were no 30-year service pins. So, the men were given 40-year awards and told the correct ones would be along shortly.

CAREER: We hear a lot about turnover in the Federal service but there's another side of the story, too. Take Navy as an example. The loyalty of its civilian employes is the envy of most private concerns.

Navy has 304,000 civilians in it is country and 245,000 of them have been in the department for five or more years. Here are other statistics:

Six hundred employes have had 40 or more years of service; 7200 have had 30 or more years on the job; 21,000 have been on the job 20 or more years; 70,000 have had 10 or more years service, and 146,000 have been on the job at least five years.

This record is all the more impressive when it's considered that Navy had fewer than 100,000 civilians in this country prior to 1940. Yet Navy's employe turnover is on the high side, but the turnover is confined mainly to "fringe" groups where it's expected.

BIRTHDAY: Nine years ago today I wrote my first Federal Diary column . . . NAVY: Robert J. Martin, an inspector in the Naval Gun Factory here, made a suggestion which will save Uncle Sam $65,125 annually in labor costs. The Navy gave him a $300 cash award for his valuable idea . . . RETIREMENT: Representative George Miller (D., Calif.) will speak at 2 p. m. Saturday at a meeting of the National Association of Retired Civil Employes at the National Museum . . . FCC: Federal Communication's new budget officer is Robert Cox of the Budget Bureau.

Move Started To Define Population of Silver Spring

Taxing District Would Be Renamed To Gain Recognition For 1950 Census

A plan to fix boundaries for the community of Silver Spring to gain recognition of its population was set in motion last night at a meeting of the Silver Spring Board of Trade at Indian Spring Country Club.

This is the plan, subject to approval of the Bureau of the Census and the new Montgomery County Council when elected under the new charter plan:

What is now known as the East Suburban Taxing District would be renamed the Silver Spring Taxing District and all the population therein, except that in the incorporated towns of Kensington and Takoma Park, would be counted as Silver Spring's.

Suggested by Colonel Lee

The plan was suggested by Col. E. Brooke Lee, Park and Planning Commissioner, after members of the Board of Trade had heard A. Ross Eckler, assistant director of the Bureau of the Census, speak on the possible figures for Silver Spring in the 1950 census.

Eckler was assisted in his talk by Clarence Batchelet, Bureau of the Census geography.

Eckler said it was difficult to set a population figure for Silver Spring and many other unincorporated communities because there are no definite boundaries. He suggested these two possible solutions:

1. To disentangle unincorporated areas from the Greater Washington Area and break them down into distinct communities.

2. To tabulate the suburban fringe area of Washington through means of election districts. For example, Silver Spring which is in the Wheaton Election District along with Kensington and Takoma Park would be credited with all the population of the election district minus that in the incorporated limits of Kensington and Takoma Park.

In suggesting during a general discussion that the East Suburban Taxing District could be renamed Silver Spring Taxing District for census purposes, Colonel Lee proposed a petition for the change to the new county council.

Asked if the Bureau of the Census would object to such a plan, Eckler reserved decision but said he saw no reason why the idea should not be suggested. The board voted to have its legislative committee send such a request to the bureau and to petition the new county council to change the name of the taxing district.

A board spokesman said that William E. Bowman, postmaster of Silver Spring, has estimated he serves 65,000 addresses in his jurisdiction.

Montgomery Changing to Charter Rule

At midnight last night a new form of government went into effect in Montgomery County.

The changeover to new governmental machinery will be gradual, however, and to all outward appearances the day's events at Rockville, the county seat, will be just the same.

Demise of the old system of county government which dates back almost to Revolutionary days was marked yesterday by expressions of fear and confidence by opponents and supporters of the charter adopted by county voters on November 2.

Allen H. Gardner, Washington attorney and Silver Spring resident who is described as the "father" of the charter movement in the county, issued the following statement: "If Montgomery's citizens accept the present moment as a challenge to unselfish vigilance in county affairs, the success of the charter is assured. The fight for good government never ends."

The opposite view was expressed by F. Barnard Welsh, prominent Republican and legal adviser to the County Commissioners. "Over a period of 150 years, we have developed a workable and, I think, a fine system of government which has now been entirely disrupted by an attempted codification which is going to cause great confusion and plenty of litigation," Welsh declared.

"I think we should wish them (the first elected charter council) all the success in the world and we do wish that the charter had been a little more intelligent in its makeup," commented County Commissioner Wesley I. Sauter, a leading charter opponent.

The official who joined in a lewsuit filed last week attacking legality of a scheduled charter council election, also declared: "I'm afraid that it's going to be a legal holiday for the lawyers. We will do everything, of course, in our power to see that it does work insofar as we are able and would like to correct the impression that the commissioners are acting in any way to obstruct it. We felt we would be remiss in our duty to the public if we hadn't attempted to straighten out this question of the election."

MERCY MISSION—Mrs. Merlyn Stratman, in an "iron lung" at Gallinger Hospital, receives treatment from special oxygen inhalator, flown and railroaded from St. Louis

New inhalation equipment, flown from St. Louis to Gallinger Municipal Hospital yesterday morning, is giving pretty Mrs. Merlyn Stratman, 24, of 9620 Sligo Creek pkwy., Silver Spring, a fighting chance to survive bulbar poliomyelitis.

The inhalator, only machine which provides patients with highly concentrated doses of oxygen, was located in St. Louis late Tuesday night by the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis, in response to an urgent call from Dr. Lewis K. Sweet, chief medical officer in pediatrics at Gallinger.

Dr. Kenneth Sugioka, who helped develop the new equipment which was first used in the Minnesota polio epidemic of 1946, flew from St. Louis with the heavy machine, made from Army surplus, in his lap.

Can't Breathe or Swallow

Mrs. Stratman was brought to Gallinger with polio the day before Thanksgiving. Early Tuesday the disease had paralyzed her respiratory system and spread to that part of her brain which controls swallowing. Thus she was unable to breathe or swallow. A tracheotomy had been performed Sunday, but the patient was still unable to take enough oxygen of sufficient strength to insure her recovery, despite the fact that she was in an iron lung.

Dr. Sweet, who had read about the new high concentrate oxygen inhalator in a late issue of the American Journal of Pediatrics, called Polio Foundation headquarters in New York for assistance. Within a few hours the equipment was airborne for Washington

Used With Iron Lung

The machine operates in conjunction with an iron lung. It takes 100 per cent oxygen from a tank and passes it through water heated to 35 degrees centigrade to the patient through a hole in the windpipe. In ordinary tracheal inhalators, the patient receives room air in addition to the oxygen, but with such patients as Mrs. Stratman, any room air can be fatal, Dr. Sugioka explained.

The Greater Washington polio total yesterday stood at 262, with 132 in the District and 130 in nearby Virginia and Maryland. Total on the same date last year was only 56.

A 6-year-old girl from Indianhead, Md., was added to the polio list at Children's Hospital yesterday.

The occasion will be the first dinner meeting of the year of the Alumni of Ohio Wesleyan University.

2 D. C. Men Convicted on Sex Charge

Verdict Reached In 35 Minutes On Assault With Intent to Rape

An all-male Prince Georges County jury last night convicted two men of assault with intent to rape a District woman who testified they abandoned her in the nude in Oxon Hill, Md., last September.

Convicted were Paul C. Fugitt, 31, a refrigerator installation man, of 1105 6th st. sw., and Frank F. Cowens, 41, a cab driver, formerly of 3378 Alden pl. ne. The jury ruled against capital punishment.

Before the jury retired in circuit court at Upper Marlboro, Judge Charles C. Marbury said it could find the men guilty of rape, guilty of assault with intent to rape, guilty of assault with intent to rape without capital punishment, guilty of assault and battery, or not guilty.

The verdict surprised those in the courtroom. When the foreman of the jury read the verdict which carries with it a possible maximum imprisonment of 20 years a gasp ran through the courtroom. The jury had reached its verdict in 35 minutes.

Fugitt's wife, who had testified for the defense during the day, ran to his side when she heard the verdict. She became hysterical and was finally led away by relatives. Judge Marbury remanded the men to jail. He did not set a date for sentencing.

The men were convicted on the testimony of the 43-year-old mother of four children who related a story of many drinks, a rambling cab ride, a mental "blackout" and then—finally—being abandoned in the Maryland countryside.

She said she joined Fugitt and Cowens in the latter's cab the evening of Sunday, September 5, on a ride punctuated with drinks that took them to a Maryland drinking spot just over the District line on Kenilworth ave., then to Cheverly, back to the District, and again into Maryland, to Oxon Hill.

She testified that while they were at a housing development in Cheverly she rejected a lewd proposal made by Cowens.

Later, she related, when they returned to the District they drove to the home of Fugitt's mother-in-law. Fugitt, she said, explained he wanted to pick up his wife and four children.

The wife did not accompany them but the children, ranging in age from 2 to 9, did, the woman testified.

The woman said she "blacked out" during the second trip to Maryland and awakened on a lonely road to find the children gone, her clothes stripped from her body and Cowens trying to perform an indecent act.

She declared that when she protested, the two men drove off in the cab and left her standing nude on the road. She said she walked several miles to the nearest house to obtain clothes and call police.

The woman's testimony was challenged by Mrs. Paul C. Fugitt, wife of one of the defendants, who said when the trio arrived at her mother's house the woman was "very drunk."

Mrs. Fugitt told the court she joined the party in the cab and so did her brother-in-law, John Fugitt. She said they drove to a tavern in Oxon Hill, Md., and left the woman sleeping in the car.

Mrs. Fugitt said that John Fugitt went out to the cab and found the woman gone, that after a search did not locate her, she returned home with her husband.

Mrs. Fugitt was followed on the stand by John Fugitt and Cowens. Their testimony was similar to that of Mrs. Fugitt. Cowens denied the charges.

Dr. James I. Boyd, county medical examiner, said his tests did not prove rape but that it would have been possible. He said the woman had bruises and lacerations all over her body.

Fairfax Fights Falls Church Annexation

By Don Olesen
Post Reporter

The Fairfax Board of Supervisors yesterday announced its open opposition to any move by the City of Falls Church to annex Fairfax County land.

This flat statement, first opposition openly recorded by the board, came during the body's regular meeting in the Fairfax Court House.

In a resolution made by Supervisor Maurice Fox and unanimously passed, the board instructed Commonwealth's Attorney Hugh Marsh "to take such steps as are necessary to protect this county from annexation action."

Falls Church was not specifically named in the resolution, but earlier statements by board members left no doubt that the move was directed toward the new city.

Before the six supervisors passed the resolution, members commented that Fairfax County would lose valuable, tax-producing land if Falls Church is successful in its annexation bid.

Supervisor Fox noted that Falls Church on Monday night had included a $14,000 item in its approved annual budget specifically earmarked for annexation studies.

Out of this sum $2500 is to be spent for a preliminary survey of a seven-square-mile section of adjoining Fairfax land to see if annexation is financially possible.

If it is found to be practicable, city heads will use the remaining $11,500 for a full-dress survey and to defray court costs when the suit is battled in Fairfax Circuit Court.

Falls Church's reaction to the board's open hostility to the move was quick.

City Attorney LaRue Van Meter said the city will "sit tight to see if the preannexation survey makes the move practical."

Then, he added, "if our case is good, we'll rely on the court to do justice" in the case.

Fairfax Board Rezones Trailer Camp Site

Despite a 300-signature petition opposing the move, the Fairfax board of supervisors yesterday rezoned a county trailer camp site from residential to business to permit the owner to build a drive-in movie theater there.

Seven residents of the adjacent Fenwick Park, Tyler Park and Tremont Gardens housing developments presented the petition of other homeowners and declared the theater would be noisy, a nusiance, and lower their property values.

The trailer camp site lies on Lee hwy., just west of the Falls Church city line. It is owned by D. S. Boger. The board voted 4 to 2 in favor of the rezoning.

Sealed by Court

Mrs. Gizycka Completes Deposition

Questioning of Mrs. Felicia Gizycka in her attempt to break her mother's will was completed yesterday after 2½ days of interrogation, and her deposition was immediately sealed by court order.

The motion to seal Mrs. Gizycka's pretrial questioning transcript was made by her own attorneys, and was not opposed by attorneys for executors named in the will of her mother, the late Eleanor M. Patterson.

Taken at the request of the executors, Mrs. Gizycka's deposition was believed to cover her charges that Mrs. Patterson, Washington Times-Herald owner and publisher, was of "unsound mind" and subjected to coercion when she made her will which involves an estimated $16,586,571 estate.

'Scandalous' Matter Hinted

In asking District Court to seal the deposition, Mrs. Gizycka's attorneys said:

"The nature of the present proceeding is such that the form of the examination, out of the presence of the court, may involve scandalous matter affecting third persons which should be subject to the scrutiny and determination of the court prior to public exposure."

They also said that unless it was sealed "there is reason to believe that it will be used for undesirable publicity purposes," and that disclosure "prior to trial may prejudice and intimidate important witnesses."

The sealing order was signed by Judge James W. Morris. The deposition first in the case to be sealed, may remain sealed or portions may later be made public, depending upon action in trial court.

In another motion filed yesterday, the executors' attorneys sought a court order to accelerate the trial, asking for a trial date of January 5, "or as soon thereafter as practicable." This motion will be argued on Monday.

Mrs. Gizycka yesterday agreed to a press interview, which is scheduled for this morning in the offices of Robert & McInnis, her local attorneys. She asked reporters to submit questions in writing before the interview.

The contested will leaves Mrs. Gizycka $25,000 a year and some property, but no share in the Times-Herald, bequeathed to seven of its executives.

Mitchell Grill Lawyer Asks Rehearing

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

Recantation by Police Pvt. Samuel E. Wallace Tuesday of his former testimony that Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett had told him to "avoid mudslinging" in the Mitchell Grill case yesterday led to a demand for a rehearing.

Wallace, prosecution witness at the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board proceedings which resulted in suspension of the cafe's license for 53 days on 41 counts of liquor law violations, yesterday publicly changed his original story in the presence of Major Barrett and reporters.

Letter to ABC Board

Seizing on this discrepancy, F. Joseph Donohue, attorney for the grill, yesterday drafted a letter to the ABC Board demanding a rehearing. The letter said in part:

"It would appear from the account in The Washington Post of this morning of a press conference called by Major Barrett yesterday immediately following the announcement of the decision of the board in the case of the Mitchell Grill (235 G st. nw.) that the witness Wallace has again changed his testimony."

At the ABC hearing last month, Wallace, in explaining why he had not mentioned the presence of various policemen in the grill, testified he had been told by Barrett and Lieut. Roy Blick, vice squad head, to "avoid mudslinging." This, he said, he interpreted as meaning not to drag other officers into the case.

The testimony led to an accusation by Donohue at the time that Barrett was trying to suppress evidence.

Barrett Calls Press

On Tuesday, Barrett called a press conference in which he denied making the statement attributed to him by Wallace. He summoned the latter, since shifted from undercover man to patrol duty, into his office, where Wallace corroborated his superior's denial. Wallace said only Blick gave him the instructions.

It was virtually on Wallace's testimony that the grill's proprietor, Henry G. David, was convicted. Originally 57 charges were brought, but the board dropped 16.

Board Member James O'D. Moran dissented from the board's findings in 7 of the 41 counts on the grounds of "insufficient evidence," but he was overruled by the majority opinion.

Wallace's testimony as to violations he said he observed was contradicted by Frank Manthos, another policeman, also since transferred to patrol duty.

Civil Police Need by U. S. Anticipated, Mason Says

Explains Barrett Expected Demand From Pentagon For D. C. Reserve

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett urged organization of a District police reserve corps in anticipation of a national defense agency proposal for such groups, Commissioner Guy Mason disclosed last night.

Mason said Barrett told the District Commissioners in closed conferences that officials of the Office of Civil Defense Planning in the Pentagon had told him a police reserve force would be included in a report written by Russell J. Hopley, director of the civil defense agency.

The police unit was ordered shelved Tuesday night by Commissioner John Russell Young after public furor over the project. Simultaneously, the Pentagon agency revealed it never had asked local officials to carry out its recommendations, and that its report has not yet been approved.

Personnel Shortage

This explanation of how the reserve police corps came to be organized has never been told publicly before. Reporters in the District Building have seen only a request by Barrett in which he asked for the force on the basis that the Metropolitan Police Department was faced with an "acute shortage of personnel" in the face of "the many increasing demands for police service." No mention was made of the use of the corps as a civil defense unit.

Mason emphasized that he did not favor "this hush-hush stuff," but preferred to keep the public informed on the reasons for various actions by the city fathers.

John Russell Young, president of the Board of Commissioners, who repeatedly has stated the unit was intended only as a civil defense organization, was not available for comment on Mason's disclosure. He left the District Building at 12:20 p. m. for "out of the office appointments," according to his aide, Charles Stofberg, and did not return.

Young Spikes Reserve

Commissioner Young suspended action on the reserve late Tuesday after reporters questioned him on the difference in statements between Barrett and himself on the reason for establishing the reserve corps.

Earlier, the Commissioner had stated that such a reserve group already had been organized in Los Angeles, Calif. Inquiry in Los Angeles yesterday revealed the Los Angeles Police Reserve Corps, a unit of the Citizens' Emergency Corps, was established on September 19, 1945, to cope with major disasters, and was not part of a civil defense plan.

This unit, besides aiding in such cases, was "also to assist regular police officers in law enforcement and the maintenance of peace and order during the temporary congregation of large numbers of persons under conditions which make it impracticable to furnish adequate police protection solely by means of regular police officers."

In shelving the police reserve program, Commissioner Young said it would be suspended pending "further word from Forrestal (Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal) or the President or someone else."

Major Barrett yesterday said a remark to a reporter of The Washington Post had been misinterpreted. A statement, "The District Building is handling it," he declared, pertained to the Hopley letter, and not to the entire controversy over what was the real reason for setting up the reserve corps.

Shepherd Park Citizens Protest New Parking Lot

By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

Deadline to Reclaim Oak Hill Passes

Oak Hill, once the Virginia estate of President James Monroe, appeared to be headed last night for full ownership by Thomas N. DeLashmutt, a former Arlington builder.

At closing time at the Federal District Court in Alexandria, Clerk Earl C. Fletcher said the estate's 70-year-old owner, Frank C. Littleton, had not yet presented the money he needs to reclaim the property.

The 1725-acre estate, which lies 10 miles south of Leesburg, was sold at public auction September 2 to DeLashmutt on a bid of $220,000.

Littleton, who reportedly owes about $200,000 on the estate, had until last midnight to present the court the $220,000 bid price to reclaim the property, plus interest on the amount since September 2.

Littleton's attorney, John C. Wood, could not be reached yesterday for comment regarding the estate.

Hospital Given Car

Amputees at Walter Reed Hospital can now practice driving on an automobile equipped with "steering-rod" control similar to that used by President Roosevelt when he drove himself.

A new sedan, with clutch, brake and accelerator levers on the steering rod, was presented to the hospital yesterday by the Metropolitan Dodge Dealers in Washington. Even men who have lost both legs can drive the automobile, it was said.

Presentation was made by George Little, Dodge area official from Philadelphia. Col. Joseph U. Weaver, Walter Reed commanding officer, accepted the gift.

Driver Pleads Guilty

A truckdriver who, police said, attempted to shoot his former employer because the latter fired him pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of assault in Montgomery County Circuit Court.

The defendant, Reginald I. Smith, 42, 4339 Harrison st. nw., agreed to enter the guilty plea after authorities withdrew an earlier charge of assault with intent to kill Walter E. Carter, vice president of Fussell-Young Ice Cream Co. last August 17.

Imposition of sentence was deferred by Judge Stedman Prescott.

DP's Convert Articles

Nearly 200,000 sewn and knitted articles have been produced in the past 18 months from surplus materials donated by the American Red Cross for European displaced persons volunteer production program.

A report from Howard L. Benton, director of ARC operations in Europe, announced yesterday that 103,809 knitted items and 81,242 other articles of clothing were produced during the project, which was under the direction of the International Refugee Organization.

According to the IRO, some 5000 workers were used in the conversion of surplus ARC textile articles into needed garments for DPs.

Board Backed On Control of Playgrounds

The Washington Highland Citizens Association last night adopted a resolution supporting the present organization of the District of Columbia Recreation Board and its jurisdiction over Washington playgrounds.

Main speaker on the program of the meeting, held at Patterson School, S. Capitol and Elmira sts., was Traffic Director George E. Keneipp. He urged passage of a financial responsibility act to cover motorists in the District of Columbia.

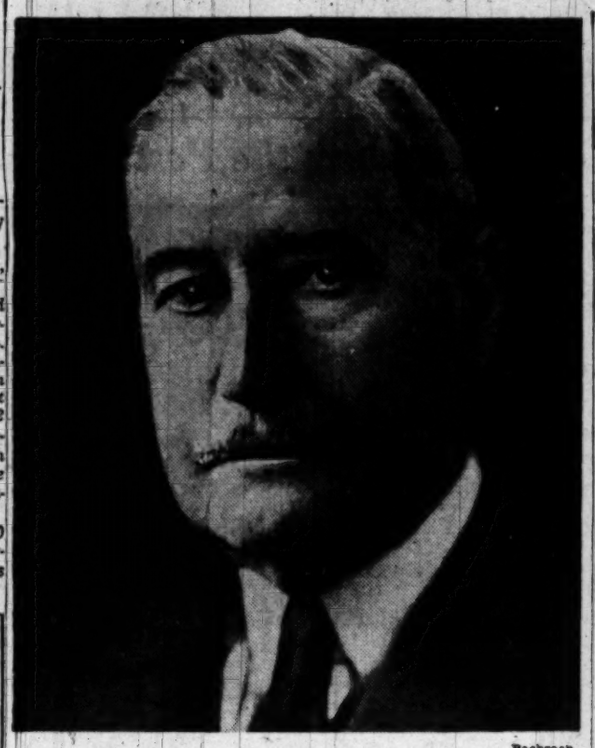
More than 200 new members were added to the association's roster, following a report of the membership committee.

Crestwood

Crestwood Citizens Association, meeting at Roosevelt High School, 13th and Upshur sts. nw., voted last night to join the North Washington Council of Citizens Associations.

The group also urged District officials to repair streets in its neighborhood and to build a temporary automobile bridge across Rock Creek connecting Bladgen ave. and Broad Branch rd. nw.

President Truman Leads Tributes to Noted Editor and Publisher



Bachrach

DIES AT 85—Frank B. Noyes, chairman of the board of directors of the Evening Star Newspaper Co., thought that the title of "newpaperman" was the most honorable that could be self-conferred. His colleagues say he remained a newspaperman as long as he lived and that he was proud of his calling

President Truman led a long list of Government officials, members of Congress and newspaper notables who expressed their sorrow yesterday at the death of Frank Brett Noyes.

Mr. Noyes, chairman of the board of the Evening Star and first president of the Associated Press, died at 1:40 a. m. yesterday at his apartment, 2339 Massachusetts ave. nw. He was 85.

Mr. Truman sent a letter of sympathy to Mr. Noyes' grandson, Newbold Noyes, jr., which read:

"A dominating figure, who had been a power in American journalism from the turn of the century until he entered into well-earned retirement a few years ago, passes from our national life with the death of Mr. Noyes.

"A native of Washington and member of one of its distinguished families, the best interests of the Capital City ever found in him a stanch supporter. His last years were saddened by many family bereavements, but his high spirit remained unbroken. My deepest sympathy goes out to you and to all who mourn with you."

Memorial Service Friday

The Noyes family announced that a memorial service will be held at 2 p. m. Friday in St. John's Episcopal Church at Lafayette Square with the Rev. C. Leslie Glenn, rector of the church, officiating. The burial will be private.

Mr. Noyes had been in failing health for some time because of advancing age. He went into semiretirement last February when he stepped down as president of the Evening Star Newspaper Co. and was succeeded by his brother-in-law, Fleming Newbold. At that time, Mr. Noyes was elected chairman of the newspaper's board of directors.

Mr. Noyes was president of the Associated Press from 1900 to 1938 and then was designated honorary president. He resigned from the board of directors of the Associated Press in 1947 after 54 years of service.

He outlived his wife and three children. He married the former Janet Thruston Newbold on September 17, 1888. She died in 1942. Their three children who preceded him in death were Newbold Noyes, Mrs. Edward H. Hart and Mrs. Ethel Noyes Lewis.

Mr. Noyes was born July 7, 1863, when his family was living at what was then 82 G st. sw. (The number since then has been changed.)

Father Joined Star in 1855

He was reared in a newspaper atmosphere. His father, Crosby Stuart Noyes, came to Washington from Maine in 1852 and joined the Evening Star in 1855, three years after it was founded.

When Frank Noyes was born in 1863, his father was in fact if not in title editor of the newspaper.

Mr. Noyes went to school first at Ann Willett's private school in South Washington. Later he attended the old Jefferson School and finally was graduated from the Washington High School in 1878.

He started college, Columbian College (which later became George Washington University), but did not remain long. He decided he would rather learn the newspaper business "from the ground up."

He took his first summer job at the Evening Star when he was 13. His salary was $3 a week. In subsequent summers he worked in the business office and contributed some theater reviews.

In 1886—at the age of 23—he became treasurer and business manager of the newspaper.

His father was an all-around newspaper man, skilled in reporting, editorial writing, business management and civic movements. He trained his three sons in those paths.

Theodore W. Noyes, the eldest, became the editorial policy and civic movement leader of the trio.

Frank, the second son, devoted most of his effort to the business end of the newspaper, and Thomas, the youngest, entered the news department.

Thomas, at one time manager of the newspaper, died in October, 1912. Theodore became editor, and died in July, 1946.

As a young man, Frank Noyes came to know Victor Lawson, Chicago publisher. In 1901, Lawson made a deal to merge his morning newspaper, the Chicago Record, with the Chicago Times-Herald, owned by Herman H. Kohlstaat. It was stipulated that Frank Noyes be publisher of the Chicago Record-Herald which resulted from the merger.

In 1902, Kohlstaat retired and Noyes assumed the duties of editor n chief. In 1903, he acquired all the stock of the company. He sold out in 1910 and returned to Washington to become president of the Evening Star.

Frank Noyes first became connected with the Associated Press in 1894 when he was elected a director and member of the executive committee of an Illinois corporation which was to become the modern-day Associated Press.

Just 12 years earlier, the Associated Press of Illinois, then known as the Western Associated Press, revolted against domination by an association of New York newspapers which began exchange of news in 1848, using the name "Associated Press." However, a temporary truce was reached.

The New York organization shortly after 1891 was superseded by the United Press (no way related to the present day United Press Associations) and feelings between the eastern and western groups of news distributors became intense.

Stone Made Manager

Melville E. Stone, who was associated with Lawson in the operation of newspapers in Chicago, was made general manager of the Associated Press of Illinois in 1893 and made an arrangement with European news agencies for coverage of their territories.

The Associated Press of Illinois then announced itself as a competitor of the New York United Press and Lawson, Stone and Charles S. Diehl, who was in charge of the Chicago office, went East and signed up several New York and Philadelphia newspapers as members.

The Evening Star was then obtaining its news from the United Press. After deliberation and talks with officials of both associations, Frank Noyes decided justice and the cause of honest news reporting lay with the Associated Press.

He not only took the Evening Star into the camp of the Associated Press but also persuaded the Baltimore Sun, the Baltimore American and the Philadelphia Public Ledger to follow suit.

His activities on behalf of the new organization stirred Charles A. Dana's New York Sun to fury.

Attacked in Editorial

An editorial in the New York Sun on February 22, 1895, attacked Frank Noyes as a "thoroughly dishonest director" of the Associated Press.

Noyes' libel suit against Dana attracted national attention. After protracted litigation, the New York Sun in 1897 printed a retraction and apologized. By this time, the United Press dissolved and the Associated Press was going ahead rapidly.

In 1900, the Associated Press of Illinois was dissolved and immediately reorganized under the laws of New York. Noyes was elected president of the new corporation and remained its head for 38 years.

During his residence in Washington, Mr. Noyes was in constant contact with high Government officials, members of Congress and foreign diplomats. During World War I he was a frequent visitor at the White House for conversations with President Wilson.

He had few hobbies, although he occasionally played golf and bridge. He liked to travel and did extensive reading.

He was fond of boats, too, and for many years owned a schooner which he used to cruise to Winter Harbor, Me., where he had a home. He also had a home at Palm Beach, Fla., but disposed of it after the death of his wife.

After their return from Chicago in 1910, Mr. and Mrs. Noyes occupied a home at 1239 Vermont ave. nw., from which they moved into an apartment at 2339 Massachusetts ave. nw. Mr. Noyes continued to live in the apartment after the death of Mrs. Noyes.

He received honorary degrees from George Washington University, the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Maryland.

He was a member of the Association of the Oldest Inhabitants the Society of District of Columbia Natives, the Columbia Historical Society, the National Press Club, the Chevy Chase Club, the Metropolitan Club, the Board of Trade and the Mid-City Citizens Association.

He is survived by six grandchildren, Newbold Noyes, jr., Crosby S. Noyes, Thomas E. Noyes, Janet Hart Golden, Ann Hart and Willmott Lewis, jr., and five great-grandchildren, Newbold Noyes 3d, Annette Noyes, Josephine Noyes, Alexandra Noyes and Ann Golden.

Many Notables Join In Tribute to Noyes

Many notables joined President Truman yesterday in paying tribute to Frank B. Noyes.

Robert McLean of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, who succeeded Mr. Noyes as president of the Associated Press, said Mr. Noyes' many services to the AP "will remain as the greatest contribution by an indivdual to newspapers.

Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, said "For 55 years he deeply interested himself in the Associated Press, having, he once said, an affection for it akin to what he had for his wife and children. He was jealous of its good name and earnest in advancing its welfare."

Great Loss, Meyer Says

Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of The Washington Post, said Mr. Noyes' death "marks a great loss to journalism in the Nation and in the District of Columbia."

"Though he had retired from the presidency of the Associated Press for some years," said Meyer, "and had for some time been inactive on account of ill health in the conduct of the Evening Star, his passing leaves a great gap. His distinguished career will remain a valued memory in our community and to a host of personal friends."

Hugh Baillie, president of the United Press Associations, in a cable from Buenos Aires, lauded Mr. Noyes as "one of the greatest pioneers of journalistic history."

Tributes to a departed colleague came from Paul Patterson of the Baltimore Sunpapers, Arthur Hays Sulzberger of the New York Times, Col. Robert R. McCormick of the Chicago Tribune, Edward H. Butler of the Buffalo Evening News, Norman Chandler of the Los Angeles Times, Palmer Hoyt of the Denver Post, Paul Bellamy of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, Roy A. Roberts of the Kansas City Star, John Cowles of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune and many others.

Film Director Found Dead In Apartment

Hollywood, Dec. 1 (U.P.).—Movie Director Raymond McCarey, 44, brother of noted Producer-Director Leo McCarey, was found dead on the floor of his apartment today.

Police reported they found two empty bottles that had held prescriptions on a table.

Pending an autopsy, police listed the death as a "possible suicide."

Leo McCarey told police his brother had been in poor health and despondent over a pending divorce suit.

Raymond McCarey, although not so famous as his brother, had been a director, writer and production manager of pictures, chiefly comedies, for more than 20 years.

Robert H. Fancher

New York, Dec. 1 (U.P.).—Robert H. Fancher, 80, secretary of the United Press, died in suburban Port Chester late today.

C. P. Carpenter Dies; 41 Years With Gas Co.

Clifford P. Carpenter, 65, purchasing agent for the Washington Gas Light Co., died of a heart attack in his Chevy Chase home yesterday, one day before his official retirement.

Mr. Carpenter

Mr. Carpenter, joined the gas company in 1907 and had served as its purchasing agent since 1918.

He had been on leave of absence from the company since August. A month before he went on leave, he was given a testimonial dinner celebrating his 41-year purchasing career.

Born and reared in Washington, Mr. Carpenter attended public schools here and Georgetown University Law School. Before joining the gas company, he had worked with the telephone company and for a short time as a member of the staff of the old Washington Times.

Mr. Carpenter is survived by his wife, the former Sara Henderson, and a son, William Henderson Carpenter, who is now serving in Berlin in the Army's office of civilian personnel.

Funeral arrangements have been delayed until Mrs. Carpenter learns if her son can attend services in Washington.

H. Peyton Howard, Sr.

H. Peyton Howard, sr., 73, a notary public for more than half a century, died yesterday in his home at 5505 42d ave., Hyattsville, Md., after a brief illness.

A native of Washington, Mr. Howard had served as notary for the Riggs National Bank after many years in the insurance business.

In addition to his wife, the former Henrietta Dyer, Mr. Howard is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Roberta H. Kent and Mrs. Henrietta H. Westerheid of Hyattsville; two sons, H. Peyton Howard, jr., of Washington, and J. Tarbell Howard of Hyattsville, and four brothers, W. E. and John D. Howard of Hyattsville, and G. Clifford and J. Cassin Howard of Washington.

Funeral services will be held today at 10 a. m. at St. Jerome's Catholic Church, Hyattsville. Interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Lewis T. Gladding

Funeral services for Lewis T. Gladding, 78, retired Government Printing Office employe, will be held today at 2 p. m. in the Lee Funeral Home, 4th st. and Massachusetts ave. ne. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Gladding, who lived at 1327 Monroe st. ne., died Tuesday in George Washington University Hospital.

A native of Providence, R. I., he had lived in Washington for 40 years, and served for about 30 years in the Government Printing Office before his retirement several years ago. He was a thirty-third degree Mason, belonging to King David Lodge, No. 28.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Isabel C. Gladding; a son, Francis N. Gladding, of Washington; four daughters, Mrs. Earl W. Lindsey, Mrs. Stanley S. Gordon and Miss Lois Gladding, well known local bowler, all of Washington, and Mrs. William Myers of San Francisco, Calif., and two sisters, Mrs. Leonard Kelly of Bridgeport, Conn., and Mrs. Hobert E. Lowe of East Providence, R. I.

Rev. Eugene P. O'Grady

Baltimore, Dec. 1 (AP).—Funeral services were held today for the Rev. Eugene P. O'Grady, Catholic Army chaplain who was killed November 28, 1944, in Germany.

He had served as regimental chaplain of the 115th Infantry Regiment of the Twenty-ninth Division.

More than 1000 clergymen, war veterans, relatives and friends attended the services. Father O'Grady, the only Catholic chaplain from the Baltimore Archdiocese killed in World War II, had received temporary burial in Holland.

Alexander K. Stratton

Funeral services for Alexander K. Stratton, insurance man and former Old Dominion Railroad Co. official, were held yesterday at his late residence, 3507 Macomb st. nw. Burial was in Presbyterian Cemetery, Alexandria.

A resident of Washington for nearly 30 years, he was born in Lnychburg, Va., where as a young man he was employed in the Office of Internal Revenue.

Later he became associated with the Southern Railway, resigning to accept the post of secretary-treasurer with the Old Dominion. In 1932 he joined the insurance firm of Franklin & Strunk in Washington.

He was active in affairs of the Central Presbyterian Church in Alexandria.

Surviving are his wife, the former Mary Bell Agnew of Alexandria and one sister, Mrs. B. T. Puryear of Lynchburg.

William Hull Gilbert

William Hull Gilbert, who boasted he had shown more than 100,000 persons the sights of Washington during the past half century, is dead at 78. He was the city's oldest Capital guide.

While fellow guides attempted to raise money for a funeral, Mr. Gilbert's body lay at the morgue. He died in Gallinger Hospital Saturday. He lived at 614 5th st. nw.

Friends described Mr. Gilbert as a student of his business, a man who took pains to educate the sightseers as he showed them the city he knew so well.

On more than one occasion Mr. Gilbert escorted royalty on Washington tours. He often guided distinguished diplomats and politicians.

H. B. Kirkpatrick

In Memoriam

JOHNSON, PAUL N. In loving memory of our dear husband and father, PAUL N. JOHNSON, who passed away one year ago today, December 2, 1947.
A precious one from us has gone
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our hearts
Which never can be filled.
Although your soul is at rest
And free from care and pain,
The world would seem like Heaven
If we had you back again.
Keep him Jesus, in Thy keeping
Until we reach the heavenly shore
And then, Oh Master—let us see him
Love and have him as before.
Loving wife, RESSIE AND CHILDREN.

October Loss Cuts Gas Net In 10 Months

By S. Oliver Goodman

An October deficit of $92,697 reduced Washington Gas Light Co.'s net income for the first 10 months this year to $784,306.

Last month's loss compared with a red-ink figure of only $8181 in October, 1947. The increased deficit was attributed chiefly to amortization charges related to the changeover to natural gas. Operating expenses also were higher.

Entering the heating season, the company is expected to show improved earnings from November on.

October gross was $949,133, a gain of $55,250 over the same period last year. Operating expenses of $994,013 were $148,077 heavier than in 1947.

Gas sales last month aggregated 9,464,076 therms, an increase of 8 per cent over October, 1947. Meters in service at the end of October numbered 172,017 here, up 2319.

Net income for the first 10 months this year was $174,289 higher than in the corresponding 1947 period.

Including subsidiaries in Maryland and Virginia, Washington Gas Light Co. reported consolidated net income of $1,149,075 for the 10-month period, against $808,630 in the like 1947 period.

FINANCING: New public offerings of bonds amounted to 397 million dollars for 48 issues in November, compared with 416 million dollars in October. But it was the biggest November total since 1927. On the other hand, only eight issues of stocks were offered last month for a total of 13 million dollars, the smallest for any November since 1942. In October 10 stock issues totaled 27 million dollars.

ODD LOTS: There are 24 telephones for every 100 persons in this Nation, not 4, as stated here yesterday . . . Packard Motor Car Co. reported record postwar production of 11,124 vehicles last month . . . General Electric Co. says its cash needs have reached their peak and it will repay half of its 50-million-dollar bank loans on December 28 . . . Bache & Co. in a special study says election results "favor continuations . . . of agricultural price support programs" . . . Dun & Bradstreet wholesale food price index declined to $6.36 this week, compared with $6.38 last week and $7.17 a year ago . . . Virginia Water Co., newly formed subsidiary of the Alexandria Water Co., has been authorized by the State Corporation Commission to issue 7500 shares of common stock, valued at $75,000.

DEAL REJECTED: Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. won't acquire control of the American Broadcasting Co., it was indicated yesterday. Edward J. Noble, ABC board chairman and owner of 53 per cent of the stock of the broadcasting firm, said: "The offer of Twentieth Century-Fox, while substantial, was not acceptable to ABC. Negotiations have been terminated."

FETE TONIGHT: Standard Brands, Inc., will honor 73 of its veteran employes in the Washington-Baltimore-Virginia area at a dinner tonight in the Mayflower. These employes, all of whom have a service record of 25 years or longer, will become charter members of a new "Quarter Century Club." Officers, newly elected to represent the club and in charge of the dinner, are Walter F. Kilian, president; William C. Clark, vice president; Thomas Mears, secretary, and John E. Boothe, treasurer.

EARNINGS: Zenith Radio Corp. reported net income of $879,566 for the three months ended October 31, equal to $1.79 a common share, compared with $844,273 or $1.71 a share in same 1947 period. Other earnings reports:

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

THE SILLY SEASON is here again for the pro football clubowners who are shoving in the chips in the annual frenzy to outbid the other league for the graduating talent of the colleges.

For three years now, ever since the All-America Conference came into being and muscled into the National Football League's supposedly private preserves, the owners in both leagues have been blowing their tops in the bidding for players. Guards who could be hired for $4000 prior to 1946, are now getting 10 grand. The average back makes more than Bronko Nagurski was paid with the old Bears.

POVICH

The Milwaukee Journal reports that the New York Yankees of the AAC have offered $40,000 for Stan Heath's signature on a two-year contract. The Yankees are in the screwy position of trying to outbid not only the National League, but clubs in their own circuit in their attempt to acquire Heath.

The Green Bay Packers reportedly own the NFL draft rights to Heath, the Nevada U. passing ace, but the player had not made his reputation when the AAC held its secret draft meeting earlier in the year, and this was overlooked by AAC teams. So among AAC clubs, it's an open race for him.

IT'S GETTING TO BE a costly business for both leagues. Precious few of the teams in either circuit will show a profit at the end of this year's schedule, but the impractical business of trying to outbid each other goes on. Apparently it will continue until wiser folks in the game start knocking some heads together and demand at least a truce in the suicidal war.

Typical of what has been going on for the past three years is the Bednarik case. The great Penn center, acknowledged to be the finest prize in college ranks, was drafted by the Philadelphia Eagles. The Eagles won him as a bonus choice after drawing lots in the NFL. But he was also drafted by the Brooklyn Dodgers of the AAC, and the story is that he will go to the Dodgers. The Eagles have wasted their first-pick privileges.

For players like Bednarik, it's wonderful. He can shop around and sign with the highest bidder. At the present market, he can get about $20,000 a year, an astronomical figure for a nonbackfield man. The college stars naturally hope the war never comes to an end.

THE NATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE is paying for its stubbornness in refusing to recognize the AAC and get down to a practical basis on the signing of players. The AAC is taking a beating, too. Boys will be boys, but why do so many of them have to own major league football clubs and go into such a pout about who got into the pro football business first?

It's a repeat of baseball history. The National League resented the invasion of the new American League in 1901. But the baseball people were smarter. When the National couldn't lick the American and put it out of business, it joined 'em, and there's been peace since. It wasn't bought dearly. The baseball business began to prosper like never before and the two leagues complemented each other.

The NFL doesn't have to go the whole way and embrace the AAC as a brother league. It can remain stand-offish if it likes, yet lick the problem of inflated player payrolls that are wrecking so many clubs. All the AAC wants is limited recognition—a common draft rule wherein the names of all graduating collegians would go into a hat and each club's picks respected. Player payrolls, without the panicky competitive bidding, would go down 30 per cent.

THE NEW YORK GIANTS, usually a big moneymaker in the NFL, are going to lose a wad this season, with the Yankees and Dodgers offering counterattractions in the New York area. Green Bay is having its worst season at the gate. Even the champion Cardinals won't make much money. Boston has lost $750,000 in four years of operation. Redskin people say they show a profit only because of the exhibition-game take. Detroit is a big loser. The Eagles are doing well enough, and the Bears, of course, are doing very well.

Only two teams in the AAC are making a dime—Cleveland and San Francisco. In the Eastern Division, New York and Brooklyn are taking an awful financial shellacking. Buffalo is losing money. Baltimore is doing better than in 1947. But the Chicago Rockets are careening toward oblivion and the Los Angeles Dons are a costly operation.

Twelve years ago the Redskins needed crowds of only 12,000 at home to break even. This year the break-even figure is around 30,000, with runaway costs of operation. How tough can it get? It can certainly get as tough as the club owners make it for themselves and they haven't spared much effort in that direction.

The 22 riders, clamoring to be paid, threatened to walk out on the Empire State Cycling Corporation, sponsoring the race.

After a hasty conference between the cyclists and James A. Proscia, director, they relented and, at last reports, had finished their forty-eighth hour with every indication of circling merrily to the scheduled finish Saturday night.

Proscia frankly admitted the difficulty and said he gave the competitors a $1000 check and an agreement to share with them 50 per cent of the gate receipts the rest of the way.

No Customers

Lack of same was the principal reason for the riders' anxiety. If the riders walked out of the armory,it would just about make it unanimous. Hardly anyone has walked in to see them.

George Shipman, 39-year-old half of the American team from Brooklyn, admitted that he was about ready to give up if he hadn't seen some cash. "After all," said Shipman, "this is a rugged grind—I don't want it to cost me money, too."

His teammate, Howard Rupprecht, Maplewood, N. J., was a little more lenient in his attitude. Rupprecht thought the boys should go through with their event, discouraging though it had been. Rupprecht's father was a racer in the good old days and Howard recalled the time he made $700 a night.

Franco Georgetti of Italy, the most famed rider in the race had this to say, "We started it, we should finish it." Georgetti, now 46, once made $1000 a night in New York where six-day bike racing had its palmiest days.

The threatened walkout was about all Proscia needed. In four nights his promotion has drawn fewer than 1600 paid customers.

He'll Lose $25,000

"I figure it will cost me $25,000 when I get out of town," Proscia said. "I was so disgusted, I didn't much care whether or not the boys continued to race."

Proscia revealed that his Armory rental for the week is $7500. It

Storrs, Conn., Dec. 1.—Staving off a Connecticut rally in the last five minutes, American University upset the Uconns, 50-47, before 3100 fans here tonight.

After a nip-and-tuck first half which ended with Connecticut ahead, 23-22, the invading Eagles from Washington, D. C., rolled up a 48-32 advantage with five minutes left. Then Mike Sorota began pouring in set shots from outside American's tight zone defense, but time ran out before the Uconns could catch up.

The Eagles' height and their very effective zone against the veteran Connecticut team were the deciding factors. Bob Lamon, former Eastern High of Washington star, and LeRoy Ishman dropped in 12 and 10 points to pace American. Sorota's 18 took scoring honors for Connecticut.

Practically the same Connecticut team defeated American twice and Army once in rolling to a 17-6 record last season. It was the Uconns opener, while the triumph was American's third straight.

Doak Walker And Justice Head AP's All-America

By Frank Eck
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, Dec. 1.—A pair of terrific triple-threat men and two fleet-footed backs who excel on end sweeps comprise the high powered backfield of the Associated Press All-America football team announced today.

The boys who have been doing everything possible with the ever elusive pigskin are Charlie (Choo Choo) Justice of North Carolina and Doak Walker of Southern Methodist. They are the offensive standouts on the 24th mythical team.

Their running mates are Bobby Jack Stuart of Army and Art Murakowski of Northwestern's Rose Bowl-bound Wildcats.

And if this quartet wanted for additional offensive strength a coach of such a talented array could always turn to the ends, George Barney Poole of Mississippi and Dick Rifenburg of Michigan's undefeated Wolverines.

The remainder of the veritable stonewall known as the line includes Tackles Leo Nomellini of Minnesota and Bill (Moose) Fisher of Notre Dame, Guards Rod Franz of unbeaten California and Paul (Buddy) Burris of Oklahoma and Center Charles (Chuck) Bednarik of Pennsylvania.

Speed is the keynote of the backfield which averages but 176 pounds. However, with such a front wall maybe the backs would need no speed for the line averages 220 pounds with Rifenburg the lightest at 197 and Nomellini the heaviest at 250.

Three Repeaters

Walker, Fischer and Bednarik repeated from the 1947 team.

To the Midwest again goes the honor of placing the most collegians on the team. Four hail from that sector while two are from the East, two from the South, two out of the Southwest and one from the Pacific Coast.

Oklahoma was the only State placing two men on the first team. They are Stuart, the Tulsa jackrabbit, and Burris from Muskogee.

While Justice and Walker were unanimous choices, three other players—Rifenburg, Fischer and Burris—drew wide acclaim from the hundreds of Associated Press staff writers, newspaper sports editors, broadcasters and coaches who assisted in the nominations.

Irish, Michigan Dominate

Michigan and Notre Dame, rated the top two teams in the country throughout the season, and California, unbeaten Rose Bowl host, are the only elevens to place more than one man on the 33-man squad.

Besides Fischer, Notre Dame's Emil Sitko is a second team back and Leon Hart a third team end. Michigan has Rifenburg on the first eleven and back Charles (Chuck) Ortmann with the second team while California has, in addition to Franz, Jackie Jensen, as third team back.

While the "two platoon" system was in vogue this season, because of the unlimited substitution rule, only three players on the first team saw part-time action. They are Justice of North Carolina, Stuart of Army and Rifenburg, Michigan's wingman.

Michigan, Irish Land 2 Each On U. P. Team

By Leo H. Petersen
United Press Sports Writer

New York, Dec. 1.—The Midwest, with five players, thanks to the powerhouse clubs of Michigan and Notre Dame, dominated the 1948 United Press All-America football team selected today by sports writers and sports broadcasters from every section of the country.

Two players each from the Far West and the Southwest and one each from the East and South rounded out the club made up of the finest players at their positions this year.

Michigan and Notre Dame, two of the Nation's undefeated and untied major teams, placed two players each, while California, a third perfect record eleven came up with one.

Michigan was represented by Tackle Alvin Wistert and End Richard Rifenburg, while Guard William Fischer and End Leon Hart were selected from the Irish eleven. The fifth Midwest nominee was Minnesota's big 250-pound tackle, Leo Nomellini.

The East's lone representative was Charles Rednarik, the Pennsylvania center. He was one of the three repeaters from the 1947 United Press All-American team, the others being Walker and Fischer.

One member of the United Press's 1947 all-star club, George (Barney) Poole of Mississippi, dropped down to a second team berth this season.

The South dominated the second team with five players. In addition to Poole, they are Tackle Al Derogatis of Duke, Guard William Healy of Georgia Tech, and Backs Jack Cloud of William and Mary and Johnny Rauch of Georgia.

The Midwest was represented by three players on the second club, Center Alex Sarisian of Northwestern, Tackle Phil O'Reilly of Purdue and Emil Sitko, the backfield speedster of Notre Dame. The Far West landed two berths, Guard Rod Franz of California and Norman Van Brocklin, Oregon's brilliant back, while the other position went to the East—End Dan Foldberg of Army.

Ray Krouse Is Mentioned On Both AP and UP Teams

Two Washington, D. C., natives, Tackle Ray Krouse of Maryland and Halfback Andy Davis of George Washington, are given honorable mention on All-America teams announced yesterday by Associated Press and United Press.

Both press services gave recognition to the play of Krouse, while U. P. mentioned Davis. Other representatives of D. C. colleges are End Elmer Wingate, Maryland, and Halfback Billy Conn, Georgetown. Wingate was named by U. P., and Conn by A. P.

Other players n the area who received notice by both A.P. and U.P. are: Ends Jim Lukens, Washington and Lee, and Lou Hoitsma, William and Mary; Tackles Red Caughron, W. and M.; Scott Emerson, Navy, and Wes Curtier, Richmond; Guard Jim McDowell W. and M.; Back Jack Cloud, W. and M.

Recognized by A.P. alone was Guard Johnny Thomas of Virginia. Only on U.P.'s list are Tackles Stu Barbour, Virginia, and Jack Ittner, V.P.I.; Guard Jack Phillips, V.M.I.; Center Tommy Thompson, W. and M.; Backs Bobby Thomson, V.M.I.; Pete Williams and Bill Hawkins, Navy; Johnny Papit, Virginia, and Lynn Chewning, Hampden-Sydney.

Hints in D. C. Visit

Feller Doesn't Expect a Cut

THE FURTHEST thing from baseball player Bob Feller's mind today is baseball, a game which enabled him to earn at least $100,000 last year.

"I just don't want to talk about baseball until after the first of the year," the Cleveland fastballer said here last night. Bob and Jim Neri, a friend from Waukegan, Ill., were in Washington briefly last night, stopping here en route to Waukegan.

"After the first of year, I'll talk baseball," Bob said, "and the first man I'll talk with will be Bill Veeck . . . little matter of contract you know."

FELLER HAS had two or three preliminary salary talks with Veeck, Tribe prexy, and said he doesn't anticipate any trouble. He wouldn't say how much he'd ask for this year, but gave some indication that he didn't expect to take a cut when he said, "After all, I didn't have too bad a year."

He Had It as a Player, Too

Sauer's Spirit Helped Navy No Little

By Whitney Martin

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (AP).—You can't take anything from those Navy kids, of course. After all, it was their teeth which were jarred into full spinners and it was their shoulders which were hammered down to their elbows, and their arms and legs which took the battering in that furious, crunching game with Army last Saturday.

But, granted that it is traditional for Naval Academy football teams to neither give nor ask quarter in their encounters with their service rival from up the Hudson, it also is quite possible that a least a little of the spirit which enabled them to play the unbeaten cadets even came from a guy named George Sauer.

A team usually reflects the confidence or lack of such as demonstrated, even unconsciously by the head man. Spirit, like color, is an intangible quality, with the difference that you can create spirit a lot more easily than you can color.

PERSONALLY, WE THINK George Sauer added more than a little spirit and confidence to his Navy boys. He was that kind of a player himself, a guy who never knew when he was licked, who always came back for more.

We know, for, to the best of our memory, we saw him in every college game he ever played. Saw him in his moments of triumph, which were many. Saw him on the rare occasions when you wanted to weep with him as he sat in utter despair, with the future bleak as a frozen prairie.

We saw him when, as a sophomore at Nebraska, his team suffered its first defeat, a not disgraceful 19-to-7 trouncing by a more experienced Northwestern team.

Later that same year—1931 it was—when his youthful team apparently had hit a winning stride, D. X. Bible took the Cornhuskers to Pittsburgh for their annual game with the late Jock Sutherland's mighty Panthers.

IT WAS A DREARY, raw Thanksgiving Day, and the vast, formidable Pitt-Stadium squatting like a cold, brooding monster, seemed to be waiting there to engulf the kids from the cornbelt.

And engulf them it did, with the not inconsequential help of a Pitt team that on that day reached its peak. With fine players such as Sebastian and Heller doing everything right, George Sauer and Bernie Masterson and those other Nebraska sophomores were humiliated, 40 to 0.

They didn't forget. The next year Pitt came back to Lincoln. "The best team ever, the Pitt followers enthused, visioning an afternoon of light exercise. The score was 0-0. Those sophomores of 1931 were learning.

Came the senior year. Sauer and Masterson and their teammates made up a smooth, polished football team. Again they went back to that vast Pitt Stadium of sad memories. Again they met a mighty Pitt team. Again they lost. But it was 6-0, with, if memory serves, Howie Odell catching a pass for the winning touchdown.

WE JUST CAN'T erase the memory of that game, and of George Sauer. He gave it everything he had. Sixty minutes, or mighty close to it, of as tough and as rugged football as any man ever played, and when it was over he just sat there in the dressing room, spent, weeping with sheer frustration, but ready to go out there right now and continue the battle.

We've seen him play with Charley horses you could ride; with a splinted broken thumb sticking out like a flagstaff; with sprains and aches and pains. They just couldn't keep him out of there.

Is it no wonder that such spirit, added to the traditional Naval Academy spirit, produced that classic performance of last week.

McKinney, Feerick Pace Locals With 16 Each

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Two streaks were perpetuated at Uline Arena last night.

The unbeaten Washington Caps continued their all-conquering ways with a 75-63 triumph for their thirteenth in a row. Their victims were the hapless Providence Steamrollers, who easily extended their losing streak to eight straight.

The Steamrollers are the Eastern Division cellar dwellers and they look the part. They've been beaten in 11 of their 12 Basketball Association of America outings.

Kleggie Hermsen put the Caps in the good graces of the 1974 onlookers by shooting the locals into a 4-0 lead before the game was 30 seconds old. The entire Cap gang took it from there and had things pretty much their own way the rest of the rather listless contest.

Katkaveck Clicks in Clinches

With a late flourish, Capt. Bob Feerick, Washington's all-league guard, and Bones McKinney, their altitudinous, clowning forward, wound up high point men, each with 16. Johnny Ezerski and Georgie Nostrand were best for the poor little Rhode Islanders, dividing 26 points equally between them.

Twice during the first half the Rollers pulled up to within four points of their oppressors, but each time Leo Katkaveck, the rookie star from North Carolina State, swished in the basket, which enabled the Caps to widen their margin once more.

Katkaveck, the league's most promising freshman, collected 10 points and also played a grand floor game. He and Hermsen, who alos got 10 points, did most of their scoring in the first half, while Feerick and McKinney kept the score board lighted up after intermission.

The Caps simply had too much height and too much class for the Rollers. So close were the Caps guarding, the Rollers had to shoot most of the few shots they got while off balance. That they didn't fare too well in indicated by the final score.

REBOUNDS—After watching last night's exhibition, fans are still wondering how the Rollers held the Caps to three overtime periods before bowing in Providence last month. Freddie Scolari didn't dress for last night's game. He's nursing an injured ankle and may not play tonight in Providence where the Caps try to make it 14 in a row . . . Kenny Sailors, who along with Ernie Calverly sparked a mild Roller uprising in the fourth period, was banished on personal fouls . . . Irv Torgoff and Stan Stutz of the Baltimore Bullets, scouted the Caps last night. The Bullets provide the opposition here Saturday night . . . the Caps led 21-14 at the first quarter, 39-28 at intermission and 54-41 as the last 12-minute session started . . . Washington was a 16-point favorite.

Nats to Open Season With A's April 18

The Nats will open their 1949 American League season on Monday, April 18, at Griffith Stadium against the Philadelphia Athletics, Vice President Calvin Griffith announced last night.

Griffith also released the Nats' exhibition schedule for next spring. The 30-game schedule includes 18 games with major league teams. For the first time in over 20 years, the Nats will meet the Yankees in a spring training game.

The Yanks will be played March 16 at the Nat base at Orlando, Fla., and again on March 23 at the Yankees' St. Petersburg camp.

Other major league teams the Nats will meet in the spring include the Red Sox, Phillies, Cincinnati Reds, Athletics and Brooklyn Dodgers. The Dodgers will be played three times, the last a night game at Griffith Stadium on April 14.

The Nat pitchers and catchers will report to Manager Joe Kuhel at Orlando February 28 with the balance of the squad due the following Saturday.

Al Evans to Be Operated on Friday

Nat Catcher Al Evans will have his appendictis removed Friday.

Man Kills Deer With Hammer, Boasts License

Riding a bicycle over the plant's 2600-acre grounds, Harper sighted a 127-pound buck with seven points. He and two other men on bicycles "rounded-up" the animal and when the deer lunged at a high fence, Harper jumped from behind a pole and killed it—with a claw hammer.

"I have a deer hunting license, Harper said.

Priory Opens Today With Longwood

The new Tri-State Athletic League opens its basketball season today at 4 p. m. when Priory journeys to Olney, Md., and opposes Longwood Prep.

The league's four other teams, Devitt and Woodward of Washington, Stuyvesant of Warrenton and St. Mary's of Annapolis, open next week. Plans for a championship playoff will be formulated at a meeting of the league coaches today.

Priory lost its only other gagme this season, to the Quantico Marine Base High School team, 32-30. George Macdonald, set shot specialist, and Jack Duchesne, a lay-up artist, are expected to pace Priory. With its star, Jimmy Jiras, out of action while recovering from a football injury, Longwood will depend on a raw freshman squad.

D. C. Negro Group Protests Billing Of 'Title Game'

A group of parents of Negro high school students has protested the advertising of Saturday's Gonzaga-Central football game as one deciding the schoolboy championship of Washington.

J. Warren Wilson, assistant United States ttorney, said he has notified the game's authorities of the protest, and is holding further action in abeyance. He said that the advertising may be misleading and in violation of District laws.

Represented by Attorney Joseph C. Waddy, the consolidated parent group contends that to be truly a championship event, there should be an elimination series involving Cardozo High, winner of 34 straight games and undefeated, untied and unscored on this year.

Beau Wynn Takes Place From Cyper

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 1.—Bullhead, aptly-named son of Bull Lea and Hothead, came through with a stretch drive that was good for a length victory in the Blue Ridge Purse, featuring the mid-week program. Veteran Jockey Frank Law engineered Bullhead's move. In a tight photo for second money, N. S. Scava's Beau Wynn took the nod from R. E. Nagle's Cyper.

Performing in the colors of K. Wheeler, Bullhead returned a $12.40 mutuel to his backers in a crowd of 5000. S. H. Hall's Tintrel was the favorite in the field of eight.

The action was at 120 feet more than 6 furlongs and Bullhead registered time of 1:22 3/5 over the heavy strip and under sunny skies that had a June, instead of a December hue.

Tintrel Fades

Tintrel flashed speed to show in front during the short run to the first turn and then faded. Frosty River then took over the pace-making and opened a good lead ahead of French Lure and Cyper. Bullhead was steadied early and came to the outside for racing room approaching the stretch.

In the final drive, Frosty River tired and Cyper went to the front as Beau Wynn came from far back. Bullhead wore down Cyper and was opening daylight at the end. Beau Wynn's bold rush was good enough to force Cyper out of the place award.

The victory was the third of the year in 19 tries for Bullhead who took decisions at Laurel and Rockingham this autumn.

Downs Wins Two

Apprentice Willie Downs, leading rider at the meeting, added two victories to his string. He took the fourth race with E. W. Price, jr.'s, Bonziah Seniah at $6.60 and E. L. Miller's Let 'Em Wander at $2.80, the shortest price of the session to date.

The daily double paid $17 on the 6-and-5 combination. C. Brockdorff's Baylette paying $5.80, won the first race under Jockey J. Hernandez's riding and Flamingo Farm's Kapok annexed the second at $4.20, with Apprentice F. D. Rivers doing the booting.

BAYLETTE, $5.80, $3.60, $3.00; BIG MOOSE, $9.00, $4.40; VITACLE, $4.60.

BAYLETTE broke alertly, were down BUGLER without any effort and drew away in the final drive. BIG MOOSE, squeezed back in early stages, drove between horses and closed resolutely. VITACLE, rushed into contention, weakened slightly near the end. BUGLER had no excuses.

SECOND RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds up. Went to post at 1:34. Off at 1:34. Start good. Won driving; place same. Time, 1:36.

KAPOK, $4.20, $2.40, $2.40; SECURITY G., $3.00, $2.60; SILK MAN, $2.80.

KAPOK assumed command at the start, was rated in front, but bore to the extreme outside entering the stretch, ducked to inside at stretch turn and bothered SILK MAN. SECURITY G., shuffled back at start, drove along the inside in stretch and held on gamely at the end. SILK MAN moved up boldly entering home stretch, had to be taken up when KAPOK bore in and turned in good effort. Jockey Dosher lodged a claim of foul against the winner, but was not allowed.

DAILY DOUBLE, BAYLETTE AND KAPOK, PAID $17.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1000; claiming. For 3-year-olds up. Went to post at 2:02. Off at 2:04. Start good. Won driving; place same. Time, 2:02½.

CO-ED, $28.00, $8.60 $4.80; LITTLE PISTOL, $7.00, $4.80; CALABOZO, $3.20.

CO-ED, well up throughout, assumed command turning into stretch and had something left at the end. LITTLE PISTOL, under restraint in early stages, circled his field in stretch and closed resolutely. CALABOZO picked up tired horses at the end. TAMBO had no excuses.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-fourth miles. Purse, $1000; claiming. For 4-year-olds up. Went to post at 2:33. Off at 2:33⅓. Start good. Won ridden out; place driving. Time, 2:19½.

BONZIAH SENIAH, $6.60, $4.20, $2.40; AYAH'S BOY, $10.00, $4.20; KING BRAND, $2.80.

BONZIAH SENIAH well rated, moved to his field swinging into the home stretch and under severe pressure drew away. AYAH'S BOY disposed of MR. FLIP after going three quarters, took long lead, but could not cope with the speed of the winner at end. KING BRAND, sore going portward, trailed his field until stretch turn and then closed resolutely.

FIFTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $1200. For 3-year-olds. Went to post at 3:01. Off at 3:01. Start good. Won driving; place same. Time, 1:33⅘.

Bonnie Carolyn	(B'nard)	112	7	7	6½	8	8	8	113.80

LET 'EM WANDER, $2.80, $2.60, $2.20; WAR STORY, $5.60, $3.40; LUCKY INCIDENT, $3.00.

LET 'EM WANDER, rated off the early pace, moved up gamely on the outside in the stretch and drew away under pressure. WAR STORY stole through on the inside down the backstretch, opened up clear lead but was not quite good enough. LUCKY INCIDENT, always well up, came well in the final drive. CERTIFIED, shuffled back at start, closed very fast.

SIXTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $1200. For 3-year-olds up. Went to post at 3:32. Off at 3:32. Start good. Won driving; place same. Time, 1:22⅘.

Horses	Jockeys	Wgt.	Post	St.	¼	½	Str.	Fin.	Straight
Bullhead	(Law)	112	2	6	8½	3½	3½	1½	$3.20

Casano	(Meyerhoffer)	108	4	7	8	8	8	8	10.40

BULLHEAD, $12.40, $6.80, $4.40; BEAU WYNN, $23.80, $15.30; CYPER, $7.60.

BULLHEAD worked way to contention on outside, disposed of FROSTY RIVER and drew out. BEAU WYNN saved ground when outrun early, came wide into stretch. Went between horses and closed boldly. CYPER moved to front between calls and then hung. FRENCH LURE closed willingly.

SEVENTH RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $1000. For 3-year-olds. Went to post at 4:01. Off at 4:01½. Start good. Won driving; place same. Time, 0:53⅘.

Horses	Jockeys	Wgt.	Post	St.	¼	½	Str.	Fin.	Straight

WESTWARD, $8.80, $3.60, $2.60; SLOWER, $3.00, $2.80; RINGALONG, $3.40.

WESTWARD was closest to pace of SLOWER from start, responded to strong urging and was under pressure while holding on gamely at end. SLOWER took command early, drew clear but could not resist winner while under hard drive. RINGALONG had speed in spots. GRECIAN BREEZE could not threaten seriously.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1000; claiming. For 4-year-olds up. Went to post at 4:31. Off at 4:31. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Time, 2:06⅘.

RELIEF FLAG, $4.40, $3.20, $2.20; BROWN TINT, $3.40, $4.40; SWEET MELODY, $3.00.

RELIEF FLAG, not hurried in early stages, came between horses to better position and won cleverly. BROWN TINT went to inside to get to lead and continued gamely, but was no match for winner. SWEET MELODY went to front early, set good pace and was tiring at end. CHAIN MISS moved up gamely and then faltered.

Hamilton, Pitt To Confer Today

Pittsburgh, Dec. 1.—Capt. Thomas Hamilton is due here tomorrow to confer with University of Pittsburgh officials who have offered him a newly created post as athletic "czar."

An immediate decision by Hamilton, Navy's athletic director, is deemed unlikely. He must be released by the Navy to take the Pitt job and said today he won't confer with high Navy officials in Washington until Friday.

League Fails

Homesteads Probably Will Disband After 12 Years Here

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

When the Negro National Baseball League was dissolved because of financial losses yesterday, the Washington Homestead Grays, a fixture here for 12 years, found themselves left out in the cold.

Philadelphia, the New York Yankees and Baltimore, the only financially sound outfits in the disbanded league, were accepted into the Negro American League.

The Grays, in the red for three years, are now faced with two alternatives—to break up, or operate as an independent unit.

They will probably disband, Grays' President Rufus Jackson said yesterday at his home in Homestead, Pa. But their future will be definitely decided at a meeting here of Grays' executives in three weeks.

As resasons why the Grays will probably fold up, Jackson listed:

1. The Grays' attendance has been declining steadily at home and on the road since 1945.

2. Joining the A. L. would produce very steep traveling expenses because the teams are so widely scattered (other cities represented in the league are Birmingham, Memphis, Kansas City, Cleveland, Indianapolis, Chicago and Houston).

3. The major leagues have outbid the Negro leagues for all the young promising stars, and have snatched away such drawing cards as Larry Doby, Satchel Paige, Jackie Robinson and Roy Campanella.

4. And television of major league baseball has been keeping the paying customers at home.

Mikan Scores 44 Points, But Lakers Lose

Fort Wayne, Ind., Dec. 1 (AP).—Center George Mikan of the Minneapolis Lakers missed tying the Basketball Association of America scoring record by only three points tonight but his team lost to the Fort Wayne Zollners, 84 to 74.

Mikan collected 14 field goals and 15 free throws for a 44-point total. Carl Braun of New York set the BAA mark of 47 points against Providence last year. Mikan's first-half tally of 29 compared with Braun's one-half record of 31.

Bob Kinney and Carlisle Towery of Fort Wayne fouled out of the game trying to stop the 6-foot 10-inch Laker. Mikan drew five personals himself and sat out part of the third period. He played all of the fourth quarter without another error.

D. C. Mother Of Four Sets U. S. Pin Mark

MRS. VIRGINIA KNODE

MRS. VIRGINIA KNODE, 32-year-old mother of four boys, fooled a lot of people—including herself—when she rolled a blazing 190 duckpin score here yesterday.

Her mark, made in the Independent Housing League at Hi-Skor Alley, was the highest tallied in the country this year by a woman duckpin bowler. It missed the world's record set by Peggy Vreeland at New Haven, Conn., in 1940 by only 11.

Remarkable thing about her feat is that Mrs. Knode's previous high was 115 in five years of casual bowling. She averages 91—in fact, her first two games yesterday were 91 and 101.

Mrs. Knode, wife of Daniel P., jr., of 2333 Q st. se., still was trying to convince herself last night that she actually hit 190. Her best explanation was, "It may have been because I made a nickel bet I'd do better than my anchor man, Coy Powell."

That probably will have to suffice. Mrs. Knode's boys are Daniel R., 13; C. Stephen, 4; Ronnie, 3, and Wayne, all of 10 months.

Alexandria Honors Unbeaten Caps Friday

Northern Virginia will have its opportunity to honor the Washington Caps Friday night in a special program at the new Alexandria roller skating arena.

Among the speakers will be Virginia State Senator Andrew W. Clark and Alexandria City Manager Nicholas A. Colasanto. All the members of the undefeated Caps will be introduced.

Colonials Hosts Friday To Quantico

George (Jug) Garber, pinch-hitting for the ill Otts Zahn, makes his coaching debut along with the GW team, as the Colonials open against the Quantico Marines at Eastern High gym Friday night.

Concluding a brief swing through the East, American faces St. Francis in Brooklyn on Friday, and stays overnight to play Brooklyn Poly Saturday night.

The Terps face a rather robust opening game test as they meet always strong Temple Saturday in the first half of a double-header at Philadelphia's Convention Hall. In the nightcap, St. Joseph's of Philly, tackles Tennessee.

Catholic Home Saturday

In its second start of the season, promising Catholic U. entertains the Washington Marine Headquarters in a Saturday night contest.

The Colonials have back every key player of last year's second place Southern Conference team. And they have height to go with their experience. Bill Cantwell, their leading scorer is back, as are Co-Capts. Maynard Haithcock and Dave Shapiro, and 6-foot 5-inch Ace Adler, Phil McNiff, Gene Witkin and Chet Pietris. Outstanding newcomers are Moe Schulman, former Eastern All-High, and 6-foot 6-inch Hal Nuttman.

Edwards Heads Terps

Capt. Johnny Edwards, 6-foot 3-inch forward and pivot man, heads Coach Flucie Stewart's returning Terps. Other first-line Old Liners returning include Spencer Wright, 6-foot 2-inch guard, Frank Armsworthy, 6-footer from Baltimore, and Eddie Creszence, midget forward from Massilon, Ohio. Crashing in as a freshman is 6-foot, 3-inch Lee Brawley of Duncan, Ariz., who made the All-Navy team in 1946.

The untested Cardinals are not expecting to be seriously pressed by the Headquarters Marines, who ran away from Towson, 65-36, last Monday.

Knicks Lose To Rochester

New York, Dec. 1 (AP).—Arnold Risen's free throw with 25 seconds remaining gave the Rochester Royals a 73-72 victory over the New York Knickerbockers in a Basketball Association of America game tonight before 13,859 at Madison Square Garden.

The lanky center from Ohio State scored 28 points to lead the Royals to their ninth victory in 11 starts. The triumph solidified Rochester's hold on first place in the Western Division race.

Risen did his greatest work in the fourth quarter when he sunk 15 of his team's 17 points.

CBS, Others Now Control T of C Club

New York, Dec. 1 (U.P.) — One of the most modernistic developments in sports history occurred today when two giants of the entertainment world, the Columbia Broadcasting System and the Music Corporation of America, entered the field of sports promotion as stockholders in the Tournament of Champions.

They were accompanied into the new venture by Allied Syndicates, Inc.—an exploitation group.

Lawrence L. Lowman, vice president and general executive of C. B. S., confirmed that each of the three entering corporations had purchased 25 per cent of the stock in the Tournament of Champions, which thus far has promoted only fights.

George Kletz, wealthy New York plastics manufacturer, kept his 25 per cent of the stock and will continue as president of the reorganized T. of C.

The wealth, facilites and brains behind the new set-up indicated that the T. of C. was geared now for an all-out battle with Mike Jacobs' Twentieth Century Club in staging, broadcasting and televising fights.

Kletz explained that the T. of C. will concentrate, in the immediate future, in bringing a better brand of boxing to millions of television fans. However, the T. of C. will expand its operations into other fields of sports later, he emphasized.

cost him another $6000 to set up the $38,000 banked oval. And expenses are mounting although the crowds aren't.

Both riders and the promoters are shocked at the apathy with which Washington has treated their production. Both sides feel that it's the worst "turkey" in six-day bike racing history.

No Room for Trout—Rolfe

Detroit, Dec. 1 (U.P.).—Red Rolfe, newly-appointed manager of the Detroit Tigers, indicated today that there is no place in the 1949 Tiger plans for Paul (Dizzy) Trout, a mainstay on the Detroit pitching staff.

At a meeting of the Detroit Sports Broadcasters Association, Rolfe outlined the Tigers' hurling prospects for next year, but did not mention Trout, who has been playing for Detroit since 1939.

"I don't think that Trout will be much good to us," Rolfe said when asked about the omission.

He won 17 games and lost 13 in 1946.

4 Terps Play In Bowl Games

The Maryland football team didn't figure collectively for a Bowl bid, but four players were outstanding enough individually to be nvted to postseason games.

Two of the players, Fullback Harry Bonk and Center Gene Kinney, will perform in two games. They have been selected along with Quarterback Vic Turyn and Guard Ed Schwarz for an all-star squad which plays the Charlotte (N. C.) Clippers Sunday.

Bonk and Kinney will be in action again Christmas, the fullback with the South team in the annual Blue-Gray tilt at Montgomery, Ala., and Kinney in a charity game in Miami.

Primo Carnera Beats Baxter in Mat Feature

Primo Carnera was awarded a 24-minute victory over Laverne Baxter in last night's Turner's Arena wrestling feature when Baxter failed to return to the ring after being tossed out.

In the preliminaries, Pete Peterson and Bibber McCoy wrestled to a 30-minute draw, Michelle Leone pinned Jim Siskay with a body press in 14 minutes, and Marvin Mercer and Dutch Schweigert teamed to whip Ivan Rogalski and Joe Kamaroff in 42 minutes.

Governors' Group Elects Lane to Dual Position

Detroit, Dec. 1 (AP).—Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., of Maryland was elected today to the dual position of chairman of the National Governors' Conference and president of the Council of State Governments.

In both capacities he succeeds Gov. Lester C. Hunt of Wyoming, who was forced to give up the posts after his election to the United States Senate.

District Legion To Hold Two-Day Convention

A special convention of the Department of the District of Columbia of the American Legion to consider revision of the present constitution and by-laws will be held Friday and Saturday in the Department of Commerce Auditorium.

The convention will convene at 8 p. m. Friday with both day and evening sessions scheduled for Saturday.

Other items on the agenda announced by Department Commander David E. Kisliuk include financing of a fulltime service officer to represent the local department at regional offices of the Veterans Administration, financing of the department's monthly newspaper and establishing a board of managers to maintain and operate the American Legion Club at 2437 15th st. nw.

Couple, 3 Children Escape Flames By Ladder Route

A District couple and their three young children climbed to safety down a fire ladder when a blaze destroyed the rear areas of two buildings in the 900 block of 11th st .nw., early yesterday.

The couple, Mr. and Mrs. Gonza Glascoe, and their youngsters David, Myrtle and Angeline, all of primary school age, found themselves trapped in their second-floor apartment at 908 11th st. nw., when an automatic gas heater exploded.

The explosion occurred in storage building operated by Glascoe next door at 910 11th st. nw., at 8:19 a. m. and the flames rapidly licked their way upward to the second floor rear of both buildings.

Condition of Austin Is 'Very Satisfactory'

The condition of Warren R. Austin, chief United States representative to the United Nations, was described as "very satisfactory" last night at Walter Reed Hospital.

Austin Tuesday underwent a "fairly serious" operation, the nature of which was not revealed. Attendants said he "enjoyed his breakfast very much" yesterday and that the operation was successful.

Salvation Army Starts Christmas Caravan Today

The Salvation Army's annual "Christmas Caravan," which collects unwanted toys, delivers them to District fire stations for renovation, and redistributes them to needy children, gets under way officially today.

Approximately 10,000 toys will have been delivered by the night before Christmas when the caravan ends. Biggest single project assigned to District women's groups is the dressing of 1500 dolls.

William J. Flather, jr., is chairman of the Army's activities committee. Agencies cooperating in the caravan include the District Fire Department, the American Legion, Army and Legion auxiliaries, churches, fraternal and civic groups throughout the city.

Parties, Pinhoe Bazaar Begin Early, End Late

PARTIES followed the clock yesterday beginning at the cocktail hour and continuing through until midnight and after. Besides, there was the Pinhoe bazaar at the British Embassy, which drew throngs from as early as 10 a. m. until 8:30 p. m.

The French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet were hosts at a small reception last evening at the embassy for Charles Muench, conductor of the French National Orchestra and orchestra members who had played earlier in a concert at Constitution Hall. Members of the embassy staff and their wives were in the group to meet the distinguished conductor.

Countess Palffy, who came down from New York to speak at the Women's National Press Club luncheon, Tuesday, stayed over to be honor guest at a cocktail party yesterday given by Mrs. Hope Miller at the Sulgrave Club.

The American-born countess who has just written a semibiographical book which she calls "Largely Fiction," has been living in Boston in recent months following her return from Europe.

She says she has no "home," that her idea of the best way to live would be "to have a room on the Queen Elizabeth stocked with paper and a typewriter."

Finnish Counselor, Wife, Are Party Hosts

THE Commercial Counselor of the Finnish Legation and Mme. Lehtinen entertained yesterday afternoon from 6 to 8 at their home on Wyoming ave. Over 150 members of diplomatic and residential society attended the party.

The party was a farewell for the financial counselor of the Finnish Legation, Ragnar Smedslund, and Mrs. Smedslund, who are leaving soon for Helsinki.

Baraibars Entertain At Embassy Dinner

A DINNER was given at the Spanish Embassy last evening by the Charge d'Affaires and Senora de Baraibar. Rear Admiral and Mrs. Roscoe H. Hillenkoetter were among the guests. Also Mr. and Mrs. Harold Randall, Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Hoffman, the Commercial Attache of the Panamanian Embassy and Senora de Heurtematte, Mme. d'Amecourt, Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Pack, the First Secretary of the Spanish Embassy, Gaspar Sanzy Tovar and the Second Secretary, Carlos de Goyeneche.

The daughters of the host and hostess, Theresa and Anita, were also guests at the dinner. Senorita Theresa Baraibar has just returned from a visit to New Orleans, La., where she was made an honorary citizen.

Mrs. Ward Entertains At Travelogue Luncheon

MRS. DOROTHY LEE WARD entertained at the first of a series of luncheons Tuesday at the Sulgrave Club with Lady Rama Rau, wife of the Indian Ambassador, the ranking guest.

The hostess called it a travelogue luncheon, for in lieu of the usual place cards she had written messages to the guests on postcards of Italian scenes which she photographed during her summer abroad. Mrs. Robert E. Freer served as a master of ceremonies, reading the cards to the guests.

Others in the company were Mrs. John Steelman, Mme. Nehru, wife of the Indian Minister; Mrs. William S. Culbertson, Mrs. Harry G. Meem, Mrs. George G. Thorpe, Mrs. James Souby, Mme. Vladimir Rybar, Mrs. Roy St. Lewis, Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Mrs. Lawrence Smith and Mrs. John Boyd Stanley, niece of the hostess.

Holiday Debutantes

Harris & Ewing

MISS AMIE WILLARD, daughter of Comdr. and Mrs. W. B. Willard, will bow to society with her sister, Miss Helen Parker Willard, on December 28, first at a tea at home, and later that day at a dinner dance at the Sulgrave Club. The debutante is a student at Sweet Briar, and her sister is at Pine Manor

MISS HELEN PARKER WILLARD, who with her sister, Miss Amie Willard, will be presented at a tea at home on December 28, and a dinner dance that evening at the Sulgrave Club

Glogau

MISS EVELYN HARMAN, daughter of Mrs. Everette McDowell Harman, who will make her debut at a dinner on December 22 at the Chevy Chase Club. She is a student at Georgetown Visitation Junior College

Whitneys Give Dinner Party

THE Assistant Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney entertained at dinner last evening, taking their guests later to hear the French National Orchestra at Constitution Hall and then to the reception given for the orchestra by the French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet.

The Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John W. Snyder were among the guests and others in the company were Mr. and Mrs. Clark Clifford, Mrs. Stuart Symington, wife of the Secretary of the Air Force; Col. Robert F. Landry, Air Force Aide to the President, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Peck, brother-in-law and sister of Mr. Whitney, who are visiting them from New York.

Mrs. Miller Returns

Mrs. Jesse Miller has returned from a short stay in New York, where she was joined by her daughter, Miss Jane Miller, who is a student at Wellesley.

Lieut. William G. Devens Weds Katharine Tansey in Tokyo

DISTINGUISHED members of official and diplomatic society in Tokyo, Japan, attended the wedding yesterday of Miss Mary Katharine Tansey and Lieut. William George Devens. Mrs. Devens is the daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Patrick H. Tansey of Washington, and her husband is the son of Mrs. William George Devens and the late Col. Devens of Arlington.

The candlelight ceremony was performed by Chaplain John Brucker in the St. Luke's Chapel of Tokyo. After the low nuptial mass the Apostolic Delegate, Archbishop Paolo Morella, imparted the Papal blessing on the couple.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin, made with high neckline, fitted bodice and long train. Her veil of Brussels lace was caught with a coronet of rosebuds and she carried a bridal bouquet of rosebuds and babies' breath centered with an orchid.

Miss Nanette de la Chevalerie was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Mary Lee Hodge and Miss Charlotte Gercke. Lieut. George Pink was best man. Ushering were Lieutenant Barrett, Lieutenant Eyster, Lieutenant Cassidy, Lieutenant Conor, Lieutenant Campbell, Lieutenant Pitzer, Lieutenant McCullen and Lieutenant Dumas. A military arch of sabers was formed, through which the bridal couple descended from the altar.

A reception was held in the ballroom of the Imperial Hotel following the ceremony.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Devens will make their home at Kisarazu, an air force base in Japan, where Lieutenant Devens will be post engineer.

Ill Child to Get Doll Presented By Mrs. Truman

The doll presented by Mrs. Truman to the Thrift Shop sale was sold yesterday. It will go as a gift to a little child who is sick in a hospital. On the card will be written "presented by Mrs. Truman." The mother who purchased the doll did not leave her name at the shop.

Quite a few dollars are still obtainable at the sale. Some of them are lovely enough to be collector's items. Embassy dolls from Siam, Peru and Switzerland still grace the tables at the Thrift Shop. Outstanding in the collection is a wax doll over 50 years old, dressed in an old-fashioned way with high shoes and wearing bangs and pigtails.

Proceeds go to the Thrift Shop which is operated for six children's charities here in Washington: Children's Hospital, Junior League's Children's Projects, Columbia Hospital Pre-Natal Clinic, St. John's Orphanage, Children's Country Home and Child Welfare Station at Children's Hospital.

Carroll.

Mrs. William J. Cumbie was Miss Catherine Lucille Inscoe before her marriage November 27 to the Reverend Cumbie. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Inscoe of Silver Spring, Md. Her husband is the son of Mrs. L. A. Cumbie of San Antonio, Tex. The ceremony took place at the First Baptist Church of Silver Spring, where the bridegroom is assistant pastor

Chase-Statler

Hessler

Mrs. Donald Milton Johnson was Miss Doris Marie Johnson before her marriage on November 27 at the chapel of the Naval Communications Station. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Johnson of Takoma Park, Md. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Johnson. The couple will be at home in Takoma Park

Sodality Union Card Party Today

The Sodality Union of Washington will hold a card party at the Mayflower Hotel today. The Rev. Charles W. Nelson is honorary chairman and Mrs. Joseph A. Egon is general chairman for the event.

Appointed to serve on committees are Miss Marie O'Connor, Mrs. Walter L. Nelson and Mrs. Ellen Burke, Mrs. Peggy Brannan, Miss Mary Keating, Mrs. Charles McHenry, Mrs. Charles W. Cooke, Mrs. Lucy Goldsborough and Miss Irene Morgan, Mrs. Mary Poston, Miss Catherine McConough, Miss Elizabeth Milovich, Mrs. Frederic Tuttle and Mrs. Stephen Ryan and Mrs. James H. Frity.

Service Guild to Meet With Mrs. Irving Berger

The Service Guild of Washington will hold its next meeting on Friday, 2 p. m., in the home of Mrs. Irving Berger, 2850 Woodland dr.

Mrs. Edith Goranson, American Red Cross Recreation-Booker at Walter Reed Hospital where the Service Guild has a project, will give an informal talk on the needs of the community services within a hospital setting. Mrs. Philip Rosenfeld will preside and tea will be served following the business meeting.

White Accessories

Be sure to keep the white accessories on your dresses spotlessly clean. Most of the embroidered collars used so extensively this season will launder beautifully and there is no excuse for soiled neckwear.

Random Tips

A poultice of oatmeal and cold water will draw the fire from a burn.

When cleaning fish you will find them easier to handle if you cover your fingers with salt.

May Prove Annoying

Turn off the radio when you and your friends start a game of bridge. It may not annoy you to have a musical background to your game but you will find it disturbs about 95 per cent of your friends.

Church Women To Hold Bazaar

The Women's Association of the Universalist National Memorial Church will hold its annual turkey dinner and bazaar today at the church, 16th and S sts. nw.

Aprons, infants' and children's hand-made articles, Christmas cards and stationery, books and handicrafts will be sold at the bazaar which opens at 2 p. m. in the Weston Room.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Young Wife and Mother, Whose Veteran Husband Is in College, Wants to Complete Her Teacher Training and Get Job, But Her Mother Protests

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband is a veteran going to college and we live here in the college town. We have two children of preschool age.

I would like to go back to college in January, for the second semester with my husband, and in a year I would be qualified to teach school. I have a widowed grandmother who would give the children excellent care while I was at college; and although I would still have the housework and nightly studies, I know I can do it if I try hard enough.

Although I love to do housework, cook, sew and take care of the children, my purpose in teaching would be to earn money, in order to buy things for the house that we can't afford now; and also help Tom buy a car, because it's doubly hard to take the children places without a car.

Short-Hour Job Appeals to Her

HAVING CONSIDERED all types of jobs, I decided on teaching because I could take the children to school every day as I go, all of us could come home together and in summers we'd have three months' vacation for sewing, canning and lots of family life; whereas other types of employment require longer hours and, Saturday work the year round.

Tom doesn't care whether I work or not; it's up to me to do what is best for the children and our home life, but my mother takes a discouraging attitude. She doesn't want me to work; and she has never helped daddy, other than to raise two children, and he has done much better than average. They can buy anything they want now.

Does a man work better if his wife does not? If I were earning a salary over a period of years, would it cause my husband to rely on our pooled wages for family maintenance; or would he strive to be a good provider, so that my money could go into nice things not necessary for security? Please answer before January classes start. D. B.

Definitive Slant on Working Wives

DEAR D. B.: It is one thing for a wife and mother to work professionally outside the home because her talents, training, energies and interests run in overflow measure in that direction; i. e., because she has "more to give" to society than can be contentedly contained within the framework of family life.

In such case, psychologists say the quality of family life is apt to be improved by the wife's enlarging her scope of activities, without neglecting her primary obligations, of course,—because by giving her personality this additional suitable exercise, she escapes the galling effects of enforced frustration of dynamic potentials, and in her happiness, bestows more positive love and happiness upon her intimates.

It is another thing for a wife and mother to act as wage-earner of necessity, to help defray basic costs of family maintenance,—for food, shelter, clothing, health care, etc.,—that her husband's income can't cover, with security-margin to spare.

Accent on "Things" Blights Sentiment

IN SUCH CASE she is a family morale-builder par excellence. She is a helpmeet-plus, a special treasurer, and should be cherished accordingly by husband and children. And a great many working wives belong in this admirable category.

However, it is something else again for a wife and mother to scamp homemaking to work for money, merely,—or the "nice" things that extra money can buy,—if her husband's provider-showing seems modestly adequate to present and unfolding needs.

In such case, her wage-earning is of dubious value to the family, since her grubbing lacks the redeeming qualities or purposes which illuminate the other two categories, and husband and children are apt to feel vaguely slighted and inconsequential to her, as if money and "things" mattered more. It is this type of working wife whose husband may lose zest for trying to carpet her path with roses, figuratively speaking; and perhaps these remarks will help you choose the course most beneficial to your married life. M. H.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

Fishy Dishes

Perhaps the least distasteful method of dealing with the fishy dishes and silver is to rinse them in cold water and then put in a dishpan along with the soap powder and water and bring to a boil on the stove while you are putting away leftovers from dinner. If the dishes are not very fine, a little ammonia is well added. Certainly these fragrant suds are more pleasant and the job is almost over before you get into it.

Mrs. Stark is the former Miss Mary Etta Wirth, daughter of Mrs. Etta Marie Wirth and the late William George Wirth, both of Washington.

District CAR to Have Yule Party Saturday

The District of Columbia Society, Children of the American Revolution, will have a Christmas party in the auditorium of Jessup Blair Community Center in Silver Spring Saturday.

Holiday skits will be presented by the D. C. CAR junior State board and the four District societies of Harriet M. Lothrop, Wakefield, George Washington and Mount Vernon.

Mrs. Maude Tormohlen, D. C. CAR State chairman of American music, will present the Christmas carol program.

Safer Thing to Do

Whenever possible, serve salad dressing separately and let the guests serve themselves. Not only does the lettuce wilt when dressing is on it for a length of time, but there are so many varied ideas in regard to salad dressing that it is the safest thing to do.

Overdone

It is a wise woman who is careful how she makes up her face in the daylight, being careful not to overdo it. Artificial lights can stand much more make-up than pure sunlight, the latter making a heavy make-up result in an ordinary appearance.

Women's League Benefit Dance Set

The annual dance of the Puerto Rican-American Women's League at the Hotel 2400 Friday, December 10, will benefit the homeless, sick and destitute children of Puerto Rico.

Music for the dances will vary from Latin numbers to North American songs. Members of the arrangements committee have planned a carnival air for the event and a number of young women will appear in the native costumes of their countries.

President of the league is Mrs. Addison Bomberger. Mrs. Robert Thompson is chairman of the committee on arrangements. Tickets may be reserved by calling Woodley 8765 or Oliver 3382 or they may be purchased at the door.

Ring Contends DPs Make Good Citizens

In the opinion of William E. Ring, the great majority of the people in the displaced persons camps in Europe are the type of people who would make good citizens anywhere. Mr. Ring, a member of the National Catholic Welfare Conference News Service, spoke informally to members of the Washington Alumnae Chapter of Randolph-Macon Woman's College at 2317 Calvert st. nw., yesterday evening.

Mr. King was one of the newspapermen who toured the Displaced Persons camps of Austria and Germany during the month of September. He found that despite the years of suffering and the crowded conditions of the camps, the people had high self-respect and an ambition to get ahead.

Colony Convalescents

Battered Republicans Regret That They Have But One Voice to Give

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

NEW YORK, DEC. 1.—In Gotham's snappiest upper crust there's a new very select group of unemployed who last June relinquished their jobs to "work for their country," as it is delicately put. The rigors of Republican campaigning were such that several of the most prominent are hospitalized for overhauling; others, on physicians' orders, are convalescing either in the Colony Restaurant or at some rustic Long Island Palazzo. Meanwhile, with small variation, life for the fortunate few follows the elaborate early winter pattern—showing off new frocks and new gewgaws at a spate of charity balls and small restaurant dinners, which today cost in the neighborhood of $15 a plate. Fashions for evening are full-skirted and bare-topped, shrouded with considerable yardage of tulle velvet and expensive pelts. To liven bared shoulders, old-fashioned necklaces of all kinds have been disinterred from safe deposit caches. For example, Toni Frissell, the famous photographer, who is Mrs. Francis MacNeil Bacon in private life, wears a wonderful ancestral diamond dingledangle. Pre-Christmas charity whirls include a Bal de Tete given at the Plaza, December 9, for Mrs. Lyle Hull's favorite cause, hospitalized veterans' music service. The glossiest gals of varying ages are going all out for fancy headcoverings—an added plum for coiffures who are enjoying a tremendous bonanza since the new short hairdos must perpetually be teased into tidiness.

That Gibson Girl Has a Ball

THE GIBSON GIRL ball honoring Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson and benefiting her pet project, child placing and adoption, is scheduled for December 20. Tickets for the party are very special—printed with a picture of Mrs. Gibson in Gay Nineties dress and an accompanying poem authored by no less a personage than Elder Statesman Bernard Baruch. Lady guests are supposed to pompadour their skimpy locks, affect shirtwaists and such—gents presumably are admitted unadorned.

Literati Surprisingly Cosy

IN THE MORE sophisticated salons three literary lions share kudos—Evelyn Waugh and the Sitwells, Sister Edith and Brother Osbert. Waugh, author of the Hollywood epic, "The Loved One," is surprisingly cozy. He's short and has a sense of humor which makes most of his conversational participants wary. His wife and four children are at home in London and Mr. Waugh was supposed to be embarking on a series of mysterious—highly paid, of course—articles for a national magazine.

The Sitwells, who are usually described as "Flemish renaissance" also are cozy. Osbert, who is tall and looks somewhat like a benevolent camel, laps up Americana and all its odd foibles with completely un-British gusto. Asked if he wasn't bored with being lionized, he replied happily, "Never—I love it." The Sitwells, incidentally, are embarking on a series of poetry readings—Edith offstage, her brother onstage. Don't ask for further explanation. A few plays are packing in the sophisticated—"Edward My Son," with its star, Robert Morley, the most sought-after theatrical personality in town; Moss Hart's expose of theatrical agels, "Light Up the Sky"; "Life With Mother," and Bobby Clark in a wonderfully leggy musical "As the Girls Go."

Miss Truman a Hit at the Met

THE METROPOLITAN OPERA opening sounded a sour note in conservative circles. The boxes where the Old Guard once reigned were three-quarters filled with the socially unfamiliar, the eagerly exhibitionistic. Margaret Truman, guest of the socially ambitious International Business Machine Thomas Watsons, made a tremendous personal hit. She wore a lovely dress and her hair coiffed with fluffy becomingness. Next day newspapers—once lukewarm Margaret fans—rediscovered her with disgusting mushiness. On exhibition as always were Mrs. Bryon Foy's beautiful bare shoulders, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt's headache band and lone-white-fox-biting-its-paw scarf. Mrs. Betty Henderson, the effervescing gal of 70-odd winters, who propped her feet on a buffet table last year, gratified this season's customers with a towering hairdo and two waist-length false curls. Hollywood's representative, John Loder, clowned for his public by playing the flute on the dowager's hirsute appendages. Clustered somewhat forlornly among cafe society debris were such defenders of the social barricades as T. Chesley Richardson, George Bagby, Ella de Peyster, the Misses Wetmore, wealthy spinster, Carolyn Trippe, Mrs. Reginald Townsend, aglitter with jewels inherited from her aunt, Lady Decies, and the James Gerards. Washington representatives almost snowed under in the melee were Mrs. Stanley Reed and her son, who is engaged to Hariette Dyer; the Italian Ambassador and Senora Tarchiani.

Light for the Piano

The best light for the piano is an indirect floor lamp, placed so that the light falls over the player's shoulder. Indirect is better because the resulting light is glareless and the player's shadow does not fall on the music. Small lamps on the piano do not give enough light and are apt to vibrate when the instrument is played.

In Bridal Procession

Miss Celia Mary Patty became the bride of LeRoy E. Fulton on November 24 at Woodside Methodist Church, the Rev. Philip C. Edwards officiating.

Mrs. Fulton is the daughter of Mrs. William M. Patty and the late Mr. Patty of Delmont, Pa. Mr. Fulton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Fulton of Esconeido, Calif.

The bride was gowned in French blue satin with matching bonnet and a white rose corsage. Mr. and Mrs. Gerald C. Walker attended the couple and entertained at a reception at their home following the ceremony. The newlyweds will be at home in Washington on their return from their honeymoon.

Mrs. Fulton attended Strayer's College and has been employed by the Republican National Committee for the past six years. Her husband is a student of George Washington University where he is a member of Tau Kappa Epsilon Fraternity. He served for three years in the Army Air Force.

Shelley—Clark

Miss Erwin Clark, personal secretary of Senator Spessard L. Holland, and William Paul Shelley, jr., the Senator's executive secretary, were married on November 23 in Bartow, Fla. They will reside in Washington following a New York honeymoon. The Rev. Paul Redfearn performed the ceremony in the First Methodist Church.

Mrs. Shelley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Matthias Clark of Bartow. Given in marriage by her father, she wore ivory satin, an orange blossom tiara holding her veil, and carried a white orchid surrounded by roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaids were Mrs. James L. Durrance, Mrs. W. Thorley Clark and Mrs. W. E. Clark.

Mrs. Shelley was graduated from Summerlin Institute and the American Business College, Lakeland, Fla. Her husband, a lieutenant colonel in the Organized Reserve Corps, received his degree in law and business administration from the University of Florida. He was a member of the Florida Blue Key, the student body executive council, Alpha Tau Omega and Phi Delta Phi Fraternities.

Herndon—Maire

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Lucille Maire to Donald Floyd Herndon took place on November 27 at the Sixth Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Earl Fowler officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Edna Hopper Maire of Silver Springs, Md., and Mr. Herndon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Herndon of Washington.

Cyril E. Maire, jr., gave his sister in marriage. She wore lace-trimmed ivory taffeta and carried cream-colored snapdragons, sweet peas, roses and crysanthemums. Mrs. G. Edmond Massie 3d, was matron of honor for her sister, and the bridesmaids included Misses Dorothy Stewart, Barbara Herndon, Jerales Miller and Patricia Myers.

The best man was Thomas F. Horton and the ushers were Ralph Smith, G. Edmond Massie 3d, Richard Eldridge and Edward McAllister. A reception followed at the home of the bride's mother.

Harris—MacKechnie

Miss Frances Ruth MacKechnie was married on November 27 in Deerpark Reformed Church, Port Jervis, N. Y., to George Kermit Harris. The newlyweds will return from their honeymoon in Maine to reside in Washington.

Mrs. Harris is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James I. MacKechnie of Port Jervis. Mr. Harris is the son of Mrs. Fred Plourde of Millinocket, Me., and the late Merle Harris.

The Rev. Edward W. Meury performed the ceremony and Mr. MacKechnie gave his daughter in marriage. She wore ivory satin and carried white camellias, snapdragons and chrysanthemums. Miss Jean Startup was maid of honor. The best man was Ralph C. Frederick and the ushers were J. W. Clark and Donld F. MacKechnie. A reception followed.

Richman—Polsby

Mrs. Edith Woolf Polsby of New Haven, Conn., and Paul Richman of Washington were married on November 24 in New Haven, with Rabbi Rogert Goldberg officiating.

Mr. Richman for the past 10 years has been director of the Washington office of the B'nai B'rith Anti-Defamation League. A graduate of Hebrew Union College, he also served as national membership director of B'nai B'rith.

A Pain in Any Case

Some Chronic Headaches Mean A Great Deal, Others Nothing

HEADACHES, whatever the cause, are no joke. They are a red light that means, "Stop. Investigate. See your doctor."

A headache may be so trivial that you need only an aspirin tablet, or so serious you need the assistance of a neurosurgeon, according to an article by Maxine Davis, in the December issue of Good Housekeeping magazine.

"Don't get upset every time you have a headache; but don't endure this discomfort unnecessarily or neglect something that may need attention . . . A headache is not an ailment; it is a symptom. So don't be annoyed when your doctor gives you a thorough physical examination," the article explains.

The kind and location of your headache and the time it lasts gives the physician a clew to its cause, but does not guarantee diagnosis.

"In about 50 per cent of the cases that come to the doctor's attention, the article explains, "headache is caused by definite organic trouble. The other cases are more difficult, because not infrequently they are related to emotional disturbances."

A Recipe for Turkey Tetrazzini

Will you give me a recipe for "Turkey Tetrazzini"? F. L. S

The recipe follows:

Turkey Tetrazzini

1 tablespoon salt
3 quarts boiling water
6 ounces long spaghetti
¼ cup turkey fat
1 bouillon cube
¼ cup enriched flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon celery salt
2 cups milk
1 cup diced turkey
½ cup sliced mushrooms (4-ounce can)
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Add 1 tablespoon salt to boiling water. Gradually add spaghetti and boil until tender (about 12 minutes). Drain and rinse. While spaghetti is cooking, add bouillon cube to turkey fat and melt in top of double boiler. Stir in flour, salt and celery salt. Gradually add milk, stirring constantly until smooth and thickened. Blend well. Add drained spaghetti, turkey and mushrooms. Mix well. Pour into greased 1½-quart casserole. Sprinkle top with grated Parmesan cheese. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) 20 minutes. Serve hot. This recipe makes 6 servings.

So many people write to your column about finishing furniture that I want to pass on my experience with a tung oil preparation. It gives a tough and, I understand, waterproof finish, changes the color of the wood less than varnish or shellac, and is applied with a small cloth without time-consuming mixing or brush cleaning. It requires, I find, only 4 to 6 hours to dry and the final coat (you apply two or three) can be buffed to a luster if desired or waxed. The only drawback is that all the old finish must be removed (not too bad a job with commercial removers), then washed with turpentine and sanded. (We follow sanding with steel wool.) But I believe the time spent in preparing the wood is made up in the ease and speed of applying the tung oil. It is especially recommended for natural pine finishes, and we used it successfully on a knotty cedar radio cabinet. M. McM.

A day or two ago, Mrs. T. asked where to buy rye flour. I have had the same trouble she has had, but find I can get it at a cooperative store on 14th st. The telephone number of this store is Hobart 4323. W. T. E.

I have a beautiful appliqued quilt on unbleached muslin which cannot be washed because the colors are not colorfast. Cleaning is not satisfactory on the unbleached muslin. Is there anyway of making colors fast or a safe way of washing such a quilt? J. A. S.

There is no effective home method for setting colors which run, or washing such colors safely. Having the quilt dry cleaned seems the best way to clean it, unsatisfactory as this is.

I have heard of a method of cleaning the oven of a stove by use of ammonia, leaving the solution in the oven overnight. Do you know what the solution contains besides ammonia? J. A. S.

Nothing need be added to ammonia when it is used for softening the burned on deposit in an oven. Wet a cloth with ammonia and soak the walls and bottom with it. Close the door and leave overnight.

My wedding dress was a beautiful white, crisp marquisette, with frosted flowers that stood out. I had it cleaned and, much to my sorrow, it turned out limp and yellow, with most of the frosting practically gone. Is there anything I can have done to it to restore it to any where near its original crispness? E. P.

You will be able to give the dress body by dipping it in a gum arabic solution. To make the solution, add 1 pint of boiling water to 1 ounce of gum arabic and stir over low heat until the gum arabic is completely dissolved. Dilute according to stiffness desired and dip the dress into this after the final rinse when it is washed.

I have a gray seersucker dress that was quite badly scorched when pressed with a defective iron. Is there any way to remove the brown scorch stains? The dress has been rewashed but the stains are still noticeable. M. F. B.

You may be able to remove the scorch by applying a bleach in this way: Dampen a white cloth with hygrogen peroxide and lay it on the stain. Cover this with a clean dry cloth and press with a medium warm iron. If the peroxide soaks through the top cloth replace it with a dry one. Ironing directly on the dampened cloth may produce rust stains.

The education department of the Young Women's Christian Association at 17th and K sts. nw. is starting a course in beginning cooking and meal planning on Friday, December 3, from 6 to 9 p. m The course runs for eight lessons and the fee is $12 for the course.

I have discovered that the new wax products for windows and metals is wonderful for silver. It is quick and makes silver brighter. Is there anything in the product that would hurt silver? E. D. W.

We have been advised by a chemist that there is nothing in this product that would be harmful to silver.

How could I remove the odor of perspiration from a black cotton washable blouse? It has resisted soap and water rubbings and scrubbings. R. S. G.

A thorough laundering, followed by outdoor drying, should remove all the perspiration and attendant odor from the blouse. However, you might use powdered pepsin, too. (One store where this may be purchsed can be reached by telephoning Republic 7700.) Dampen the underarm area with water, then sprinkle with pepsin powder. Let stand a half hour, keeping the spot damp. Then rinse out pepsin with water and launder in the usual way.

I am a newcomer in Washington and want to know where I can get information about various recreation activities here. T. D.

A good way to keep up with concerts, football games, hikes, dances and other recretational events scheduled in Washington is to check the publication Do You Know, issued monthly by the District of Columbia Recreation Department. This can usually be found on bulletin boards in the various Government agencies and at all branches of the District Public Library.

"But Mother, You Promised!"

Every now and then, we parents make promises with children which later we don't feel we need to keep. Perhaps the promise has been made under stress. We have wanted Billy to hurry and have said he could have a soda or an ice cream cone if he did. But it has gotten later and later and there just isn't time to stop at the soda fountain.

Keeping such promises may not seem too important to us but it is to the youngsters. If situations of this sort happen very often, our children will begin to lose confidence in us and even worse, perhaps, develop the idea that it isn't important to keep one's promises.

One should be careful to make only those promises which can be kept. At times, very unusual circumstances may make it impossible for the promise to be fulfilled at the time planned but one should be scrupulous to explain fully to the child why this is so and then be sure to do what one has promised when it is possible. Such carefulness will pay big dividends in the development of children's confidence in us and in keeping promises they have made.

Incorrect Washing Can Spoil the Fit

"Girls who have several sweaters will find a sweater form most convenient for quick drying back to shape. An adjustable form can be used by the whole family.

"If you don't have a sweater form, you must do two things: take the measurements or outline of the sweater before you wash it, and afterward block or shape it to these measurements.

"You can draw the outline on a large piece of heavy paper, or you can use closely spaced, rustless pins to form the sweater's outline on a thick towel."

YES! YES! YES!

You can get more wear out of those shoes. Take them to Cody's Servicenter, the most unusual place in town. They'll shorten or lengthen them, take off the platforms or put them on, open or close the toe or heel, dye them any color you wish. They clean and repair just about everything. They have complete alteration services on both men and women's clothes. Cody's Servicenter, 712 12th Street, N.W. STerling 7098. Mail orders accepted.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Hurry, Or You'll Miss All the Excitement!

The street was dark and narrow, and two cars had sideswiped — lightly. Two passing motorcycle cops arrested one of the motorists when he failed to produce a driver's license.

That's all that happened. But by the time sleepy residents of the area came running to the scene, great excitement prevailed. The crowd noises went like this:

"What'd he do, hit a parked car? Was he drunk?"

"I dunno. Somebody said there were three cars in a collision."

"How'd the cops get here so fast? They must have been chasing one of these guys."

"Must have been chasing this guy here—the drunk."

"Where? Which one is drunk?"

"Well, they're arresting him, aren't they? He sure does look pie-eyed."

"You say the other fellow was taken to the hospital? Oh, isn't it awful the way they drive nowadays!"

"He doesn't look drunk to me. How bad was the other guy hurt?"

"What happened? I just got here. Was somebody run over?"

"Henry, you come inside this minute, before you catch your death. The very idea—going out on a cold night in your bedroom slippers and no sox."

"You say a kid was run over? From around here? By golly, they hadn't oughta let these crazy drivers have a license. Which one is he?"

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

A problem: Our daughter, Susan Maxwell, was born at 12:05 a. m. Eastern Daylight Time, on June 8, 1948, in the Alexandria (Va.) Hospital.

The dropping of daylight time makes the actual time of her birth 11:05 p. m., June 7. So—Does Susan have a birthday? When?

Mrs. Claude F. DuTeil
3208 Martha Custis dr.
Alexandria, Va.

Dear Mrs. DuTeil:

Never in my life have I encountered a better excuse for enjoying two birthdays each year.

And after Susan passes the age of 29, she'll be right in style. She'll get one year older for every two birthdays, just like all her girl friends. Bill.

"Four kittens, 6 weeks old; applicant must have yard and no children under 6 years of age." (Shepherd 9247).

PERSONAL NOTES

Patsy Hindman, Purcellville, Va.: District Liner Flood wasn't "insulting" Slinging Sam the Redskin man. He was just bemoaning the fact that Sam didn't get enough pass protection, and that the team needs a better running attack.

Henrietta M. Hickerson, 3102 24th st. ne.: Thanks for those venerable jingles of bygone Central days. The one I liked best was: "Unto the maiden of my heart, by mail I did propose. Then waited for what might turn up; Alas! It was her nose."

OVERHEARD

SIGN OF THE TIMES?

Morris Katz of 303 D st. nw., was in a grocery store in his neighborhood the other day when a little boy came in, clutching a nickel.

Pointing to a box of crackers, the kid asked, "How much are these?" "Eight cents," was the answer.

"How about these cup cakes?" "Those are a dime," said the storekeeper patiently.

"The fruit cake?" "That's 12 cents."

The little boy pondered for a moment, then laid his nickel down on the counter and said:

"Here—you take it. It ain't good for nothin'."

Listen to Bill Gold's "This Is Washington," the District Line on the Air, Monday through Friday, over WTOP, from 10 a. m. to Arthur Godfrey time at 10:30.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—The Roosevelt Foundation, which probably will have a new chairman soon, is starting a fund for exchange scholarships, paid for by contributions in the currency of all nations—from Swiss francs to Chinese yen . . . Tallulah Bankhead's doctor checked her condition and found her in such good health that he said they should celebrate by going out together. William Langford, of the cast of "Private Li.es," cautioned the doctor: "If Tallulah is good, don't lead her down the path of evil. And if she's bad—don't follow her."

The Israel army has perfected infra-red eyeglasses with which its soldiers can see, in the darkness of night, as if it were daylight. It should be a postwar boon to auto drivers . . . In discussing an elderly writer who is prolific but has no talent, Michael Arlen said: "In him, writing is a bad habit."

A socialite astrologist who insisted on reading Sherman Billingsley's horoscope at the Stork Club gave him a full, thorough reading, complete with predictions for the next seven years—all based on the birthday Billingsley had given her: "February 30" . . . In signing her contract to appear on Broadway in "People Like Us," Margaret Sullavan, for the first time in a dozen years, didn't use her former husband, Leland Hayward, as agent. Miss Sullavan's deal was negotiated for her by Miriam Howell . . . Cecil Brown will do his radio commentating from Hollywood for the next few weeks. He leaves for California and MGM today to work on the treatment of the movie story he sold.

As part of the Cigars-To-Sibelius project, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt will take a cigar-collection box to the opera tonight. The Finnish composer also will receive humidors from Katharine Cornell and Miss Bankhead.

Now that you fixed up his drawing will that Swami be able to make Gus the Ghost vanish?
Horrors!
Of course not. But he left out the sun and moon—standard equipment in all the charts of Paracelsus, Agrippa, Gaffarel, d'Oducet and Menestrier—and we don't want the Swami whining around here afterwards that he didn't exorcise Gus-only because of an oversight—
But—

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Mme. Chiang's Luster Dimmed

By Drew Pearson

Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, now 56 but still beautiful, is the victim of a difficult Chinese circle.

In China she is unpopular because she is considered too pro-American. Yet she remained powerful because she was able to wangle munitions from the United States of America. When American munitions were found in the hands of the Japanese and later the Communists, however, the flow stopped, and with this stoppage Madame Chiang's popularity dropped—in both the United States and China.

MME. CHIANG

Her only asset in this lobbying battle is charm. Of this she has ample, though her effectiveness has been tarnished by tales of highhandedness and extravagance during previous trips to the United States of America.

The American public has heard, among other things, about the rudeness of her official family when entertained in the White House during the latter years of the Roosevelt regime. At that time Madame Chiang's niece, Miss Kung, objected to the sheets, picked up the telephone and tried to call Cordell Hull to lodge a personal complaint.

There was also Madame Chiang's mysterious flight to Brazil toward the end of the war, allegedly to cache some jewelry; plus the lavish way she lived in New York hotels while pleading for money for starving China.

All these have dimmed somewhat the American people's once great enthusiasm for the Wellesley graduate who married the President of China.

Troubles in China

If Madame Chiang has had her troubles in the United States, however, they are nothing compared to her troubles in China. In the first place she is younger than a brilliant and important sister and brother. And in China the youngest is supposed to rank last.

The fact that marriage to the President of China elevates the former Mayling Soong to be the first lady of the land does not at all help her position with the rest of the family. In fact it rankles.

Madame Chiang and her brother, T. V. Soong, are scarcely on speaking terms. Both were in Washington during one important period of the war, but scarcely exchanged a word together. Once the Chinese Ambassador had to remain at his home to take a phone call from Madame Chiang, which caused him to be late for dinner at the home of her brother. Whereupon he was kept waiting a full hour and a half in an anteroom until all other guests had finished eating.

Mayling's older sister is married to Dr. H. H. Kung, former Minister of Finance, and one of the wealthiest men in China. While the Chinese have starved, he has kept his millions.

Another sister, Mme. Sun Yat-sen, is the widow of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, founder of the Chinese Republic. Though now considered the Martha Washington of China, it is no secret that Madame Sun is openly sympathetic to the so-called Communist armies which her brother-in-law is fighting. Also no secret is Madame Sun's romance with a former American Army officer, Gerald Tannenbaum of Baltimore.

No love is lost between Madame Chiang and Madame Sun. The former supports her husband's right-wing labor association while Madame Sun, long the champion of Chinese guerillas and coolies has appealed to American labor leaders to support China's left-wing CIO.

Childless Mayling

One tragedy of Madame Chiang's life is that she is childless. As long as she bears the Generalissimo no progeny, popular sentiment is with him when he goes to another wife. Madame Chiang is wife No. 3, and for a time her husband went back to wife No. 2. That was one reason why she came to the United States during the war.

The Chinese war lords, who frequently call the tunes for the Generalissimo, have tolerated Mayling partly because of her friendships in Washington. As long as she delivered munitions, she stood well with them.

But even before General Marshall went to China as special United States Ambassador, we had come to realize that United States arms, badly needed at the European front, were finding their way into Japanese hands.

Merry-Go-Round

Tired of Vishinsky's constant quotation of Russian proverbs in U. N. debates, Western delegates now toss back some of their own: "The Soviet delegate will recall the old Ukranian proverb, 'The pot shouldn't call the kettle black.'" . . . Vishinsky's pet name for Dewey's GOP delegate to the U. N. is John Foster Dollars . . . Named acting chief of the American delegation in Marshall's absence, Dulles lost no time moving into Marshall's office in the Hotel D'Ilena, where, with a silk American flag at his side, he asserts the authority he had hoped to have with a Dewey victory . . . After Mrs. Roosevelt's vote against equal rights for illegitimate children, the French Communist newspaper, L'Humanite, attacked Mrs. Roosevelt as "the weeping delegate." . . . When the chief Chinese delegate to the United Nations got up to make a speech, his own delegation put on their ear phones and listened to the English translation—easier than to try to understand his Chinese.

Bethesda Man Has 45-Minute Talk With Hirohito

James L. Fieser, 5009 Edgemoor lane, Bethesda, now on a tour of Japan, not only received an audience with the Japanese emperor, but is bringing home a set of silver chopsticks given to him by the emperor.

Fieser

He cabled Mrs. Lieser in Bethesda yesterday that Emperor Hirohito extended his scheduled 10-minute audience to 45 minutes. He did not say what they discussed.

Lighted Ski Run With Motor Tow Prepared in Park

When snow comes, Washington this year will have a ski run.

It will be in Rock Creek Park along an old wagon road down Linnean Hill, ending in the flats near Pierce Mill.

Brush already has been cleared away, Harry T. Thompson, assistant National Capital Parks superintendent, said, and lights for its night use will be up by this weekend.

The Washington Ski Club, Thompson said, has agreed to install a motor-driven endless tow belt to haul skiers back up the hill.

Heretofore, Washington's skiing has been limited to slopes on the Rock Creek golf course and a few other uncovered hillsides.
